FINISH IS SPECTACULAR

FIFTY SPECTATORS HURT

Georges Carpentier, European heavyweight champion, knocked out Battling Levinsky, American light heavyweight champion, last night in the fourth round of their scheduled twelve-round battle before a crowd of more than 15,000 in the Jersey City baseball park.

The finish of the fight came one minute seven seconds after the fourth round opened. A heavy right blow to the jaw, one of a series of frantic rights and lefts which Carpentier showered on his rival, sent the veteran Philadelphia boxer crashing through the ropes in a neutral corner. Referee Harry Ertle stepped quickly between the two combatants, and with extended left arm, held Carpentier at a safe distance as he bent down and started the count which meant pugilistic oblivion for Levinsky and enhanced prospects of a match for the world's heavyweight title for Carpentier.

Knocked Through the Ropes.

When he fell Levinsky's body slipped slowly through the ropes. His right leg dangled inside the ring, over the lower hempen strings. As Referee Ertle reached five in his count, Levinsky, struggling to regain his feet, dragged his right leg over the lower rope and was completely outside the ring proper, perilously near toppling over into the press stand.

Levinsky was [illegible] his surroundings, but he sought instinctively to grasp an upper rope, and so drag himself to his feet. His muscles refused to respond to the dictates of his troubled mind, and the final, fatal tenth stroke of Referee Ertle's swinging right arm found the vanquished battler sitting and rocking, blindly waving his upraised arm, outside the ring.

When the count was completed and an excited throng gained a semblance of composure, Dan Morgan, manager, and Jack Britton, who coached Levinsky, jumped over to the side of their stricken charge and assisted him to his feet. Levinsky was half carried to his corner, where he responded to about five minutes' hard work by industrious handlers.

The Startling Finish.

The finish was spectacular. Levinsky, boxing a losing fight almost from the start, was cornered by the rushing, wild-eyed, eager Carpentier. The Frenchman had sent his rival to the canvas on two previous occasions, for counts of eight in each instance. He was lashing out savagely with both arms in wild attempts to land a decisive blow.

The Frenchman's rushing attack forced Levinsky into the corner. Carpentier in a leap was upon his foe, striving to batter down Levinsky upraised, protecting arms. A flurry of rights and lefts failed of effect, but Carpentier persisted and finally produced the desired opening. Like a flash, he darted forward, his right poised for instant action. Suddenly he crashed the blow home with the accuracy of an expert fencer lunging on the attack. The punch landed solidly on Levinsky's jaw and the boxer crumpled in a heap, slipping through the ring ropes on his journey downward.

The result was early forecast. Levinsky, not even approaching the battler of old, was outclassed pronouncedly by his young and ambitious rival. The big Levinsky, at 175 pounds, appeared in good condition physically, but in other respects he was not to be compared to the man recognized at one time as the cleverest light heavyweight in the ring. Levinsky's defensive skill was missing. He was slow, and the old brilliance of attack was noticeably absent. Almost from the time the men put up their hands it was evident that Levinsky was outclassed.

Levinsky Game Throughout.

As early as the second round Levinsky was in danger of a knockout. He was sent to the floor twice in this session and on each knockdown he required a count of eight to collect his scattered senses. Gamely he weathered a storm of blows which Carpentier aimed at his jaw, but gradually the American ring general was battered down to defeat.

In his victory Carpentier failed to impress as a po[illegible]bly dangerous opponent for Jack Dempsey. If the Frenchman fought at his best last night, and he evidently did, then he would do well to steer clear of the Utah mauler. Carpentier in his attack leaves himself wide open, and no man can afford to do that against Dempsey.

Carpentier, on his showing against Levinsky, is not impervious to attack. He is decidedly susceptible to assault, and his offensive is not quite up to the standard expected of a man considered in the light of a prospective opponent for Dempsey.

The brilliant speed, cleverness and boring skill expected of the Frenchman

British Unemployment Low; Few ex-Service Men Idle

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Dr. MacNamara, Minister of Labor, told me today that, although there had been much discussion of unemployment in the press, the latest figures showed just over 2 per cent., which was lower than in July, 1914. The increase in unemployment since August has been about one-half of 1 per cent.

Dr. MacNamara stated that 5,000,000 ex-service men and 210,000 officers had been reabsorbed in industry, leaving 180,000 men, of whom 10 per cent. were disabled, and 12,000 officers still unplaced.

It was hoped that 30 per cent. of this number could be placed in the building trades, as, owing to the war, the number of houses in Great Britain was half a million below normal.

INDIANS CROWNED WORLD'S CHAMPIONS

COVELESKIE AGAIN MASTER

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 12.—The supple right arm of Stanley Coveleskie pitched the Cleveland Indians into the baseball championship of the world at League Park this afternoon when the accomplished Polander humiliated Brooklyn in a 3 to 0 shutout. It was the third victory for Speaker's pitching master and the fifth for Cleveland. The Brooklyn Robins, with their widely heralded pitching staff, had to be content with the two victories won at Ebbets Field last week.

An overjoyed crowd of nearly 28,000 fans blazed into a conflagration of hysterical excitement when the game was over and Cleveland had realized at last the baseball ambition of twoscore years. Happy men and youths and hundreds of women fans who were just as happy swarmed onto the field and basked in front of the box of sunny Jim Dunn, the owner of the club which put the Forest City on the baseball map. The air was filled with deafening shouts and cheers as the curly, white head of Squire Charley Ebbets made its way through the crowd to Sunny Jim's box. The hand of Ebbets grasped the hand of Dunn and congratulated him on his victory.

The joy-crazed fans filled the streets and hotels tonight with loud praises of Tris Speaker and his ball players. Old-timers scratched their heads and harked back over Cleveland's long baseball career and recalled the many diamond stars whose names will be linked forever with local baseball history. They recalled the famous gladiators of the ball and bat who accomplished great deeds for Cleveland and yet failed to bring home a championship as great as the triumph of Speaker's team.

A Great Baseball City.

This city is rich in baseball lore. On its baseball diamonds the fans of the past have seen such players as Jim McCormick, Jack Glasscock, Nig Cuppy and Charley Zimmer. Here was the stamping ground of Jimmy McAleer and Patsy Tebeau, of Jess Burkett and the famous Sockalexis, the Babe Ruth of a by-gone day. The matchless Lajoie ever brings back memories of Cleveland when his name is mentioned and in the big gathering this afternoon were the sons and grandsons of the fans who used to cheer the playing of Cupid Childs.

It was in this hotbed of baseball that Coveleskie brought victory to Cleveland today. In winning his third game of the world's series against the Robins, the Polish impresario of the spit-ball took his place with the great flingers of the past who have won a trio of games. The great Matty of the Giants did it in 1905, Babe Adams did it for the Pirates in 1909, Iron Man Jack Coombs did it for the Athletics in 1910 and Red Faber did it for the Chicago White Sox in 1917. Covey's name is linked forever more with the greatest in the game.

He carried Cleveland through this afternoon in spite of rugged fielding behind him. The weak spot in the Indians' lineup was at short, where the inexperienced Joie Sewell handled the ball like a juggler. He gave the fans heart failure time and again when he failed to make easy plays. But Covey was in such superb form that he rose above all barriers and pitched himself out of difficulties with expert cunning.

Robins a Beaten Team.

From the moment that Coveleskie walked out to the pitching mound Brooklyn was a defeated team. Weakened through the absence of Jimmy Johnston at third, the Brooklyns played listlessly and at no time did they show any fighting spirit. The marvelous pitching staff which brought the Dodgers to the National League pennant has made a sorry showing in this series.

The pitching staff of the Indians, generally supposed to be tired out by the tough American League campaign, showed that it knew a whole lot more about pitching than the overrated Robin boxmen. Uncle Robbie, the Brooklyn manager, relied entirely on this pitching staff for victory, and it failed him miserably.

This world's series wasn't as great as some in the past. There have been far

RECORD CROWD IS PRESENT

Special to The New York Times.

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 12.—Samuel D. Riddle's incomparable three-year-old, Man o' War, was crowned champion thoroughbred of the continent this afternoon when he scored a ridiculously easy victory over Commander J. K. L. Ross's great four-year-old, Sir Barton, in their $75,000 match race at a mile and a quarter at Kenilworth. While a crowd of more than 20,000 persons looked on in amazement at the tremendous speed and power of the great colt, Man o' War led home his older rival by seven lengths after having been in front all the way after the first sixty yards of the contest. He actually galloped the Ross colt dizzy in the first mile and drew away so easily in the final quarter of a mile that he was never fully extended. The result showed quite clearly that Sir Barton was no match for the son of Fair Play, which ran his last race today. He will be retired for breeding purposes.

The distance was covered in 2:03, which did not closely approach the world's record held by Whisk Broom Second—2:00 flat, made at Belmont Park in 1913—and did not even equal the Canadian record of 2:02 4-5 made by Boots at Fort Erie. This was a surprise to the many who had looked for a new record, but that Man o' War could have made much faster time and at least have equaled the mark of 2:01 4-5, which he and Sir Barton held jointly at Saratoga, seemed entirely possible had he been forced to display his speed. He did, however, break the track record, which was 2:09 2-5, cutting 6 2-5 seconds from it.

As it is, even with the scalp of Sir Barton dangling at his belt, Man o' War has yet to show just how fast he can run.

Even Pace Maintained.

The fractional time for the race showed that an even pace was maintained all through the first mile. The time for the various distances was: 0:23, 0:46 2-5, 0:59 4-5, 1:11 4-5, 1:37 2-5, 2:03.

The victory places Man o' War at the top of the list of American horses in the matter of earnings. The $75,000 purse won today gave him a total of $244,465, and placed him fourth among the world's greatest money winners on the turf. Only Isinglass, Donovan and Rock Sand won greater amounts than this, while Domino, which until today led all American horses, earned but $193,550.

After the race was over Commander Ross congratulated Mr. Riddle and declared that Man o' War was the greatest horse he had ever seen, and that he believed the colt could defeat any horse in the world. Mr. Riddle could only say that he had expected his horse to win.

"A man cannot help but have confidence in so great a horse as Man o' War," said Mr. Riddle. "But this race was a fitting climax to his racing career."

The race was witnessed by approximately 21,000 persons, according to an announcement made by A. M. Orpen, owner of the Kenilworth track and the man who brought the contest to Canada. This was much less than had been generally expected for this turf classic, but it was the largest crowd that had ever assembled on a Canadian track. It was large enough to tax the capacity of the plant, though more persons could have found standing room in the infield. The stands were packed, and about 7,000 persons saw the race from the infield.

Keogh Displaces Sande.

There was a surprise in store for every one when, an hour before the running of the race, Commander Ross made an announcement that Frankie Keogh, contract rider for Samuel Ross and Dr. Carey T. Grayson, would ride Sir Barton, displacing Earl Sande. In his announcement Commander Ross said:

"I have determined to substitute Jockey Frank G. Keogh for Earl Sande on Sir Barton in today's race for the reason that my boy is not in good form, as his recent performances show. My action is taken without prejudice to Sande, and in making the change I am only exercising my prerogative as owner of Sir Barton. I would rather win this race today than all the other races in which Sir Barton may participate. Keogh is at the top of his form at present, and I want to take advantage of it so there will be no excuse after the race is won or lost. I have the utmost confidence in Sande, but feel that I would be doing myself and Sir Barton an injustice if I did not send him to the post with every avenue safeguarded."

It was said that the direct cause for this unexpected action was the ride put up by Sande on His Choice on Monday. In that race Commander Ross thought Sande appeared to ride timidly and that the boy was highly nervous. He feared that Sande might make some mistake in the big race, owing to his agitated condition, while Keogh would take up the task without having had

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—President Wilson was denounced as an anarchist today in placards carried by little girls who paraded past the White House. The demonstration, if it can be characterized as such, was staged by Sinn Fein sympathizers, a majority of whom behind the affair were understood to be women. One of the banners, carried by a little girl in white, referred to Premier Lloyd George as "Lloyd George the Anarchist and Wilson, his junior partner."

"Mr. Wilson, American women demand that anarchy in the White House be stopped."

Exactly why little children were chosen to take the leading part in the demonstration was not disclosed. It was suggested, however, that the older persons, those behind the affair, were afraid they would be arrested if they carried the anarchy banners, and so they gave the banners to little girls whom they knew the police would hesitate to take into custody.

There were nine banners in all, and in each instance the standard bearer was a little girl.

Whether or not the District of Columbia authorities will take any action in the matter is a subject which is understood to be under consideration by the proper officials.

ANDERSON TO ASK REMOVAL OF HYLAN

ROSS SEEKS LIGHT ON REVEL

Charges of Dry Law Violations Will Be Investigated, Says Federal Prosecutor.

At the same time yesterday that United States Attorney Le Roy W. Ross of Brooklyn announced his intention to investigate the Villepigue's Inn celebration on Sunday night, Oct. 3, at which Mayor Hylan is said to have dined among merrymakers who uncorked their private stock without molestation, J. C. Daschbach, reporter for The Philadelphia Public Ledger, who dug up the details of the wet dinner party, made it known that he had sent a dispatch to his paper including a statement from William H. Anderson, Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, saying, in effect, that he would see Governor Smith today and demand the removal of Mayor Hylan.

Dashbach quotes the head of the Anti-Saloon League as saying that he considered the party at Villepigue's Inn as the "final straw in Mayor Hylan's apathetic attitude towards enforcing the prohibition laws within the City of New York." This expression was procured from Mr. Anderson after a copy of the letter to Mayor Hylan had been submitted to the Anti-Saloon League Superintendent by the reporter. Mr. Anderson is said to have referred to his futile appeals to the Mayor to make an effort to have the prohibition laws enforced, and to have added:

"And now comes this affair at Villepigue's Inn so vividly described by Mr. Daschbach in this morning's Public Ledger. It is the final act of Mayor Hylan's contempt of the law. It is a concrete case of his unwillingness to stop the liquor traffic that goes on in defiance of the national and State laws."

The reporter includes in his dispatch the following comment:

"According to Mr. Anderson, who is a lawyer, the Governor has power to remove the Mayor after hearing charges against him. Mr. Anderson said that the Governor may constitute himself as the person to hear the evidence or may appoint a commission to do the work."

Mr. Anderson was not at his home in Yonkers last night when a reporter for THE NEW YORK TIMES called.

Mr. Ross Takes Cognizance.

The publicity given the dinner, which was attended by District Attorney Lewis, ex-Sheriff Daniel J. Griffin and many other well-known men, caused District Attorney Ross to take cognizance of the affair.

Mr. Ross announced that he had communicated by long distance telephone with the managing editor of The Public Ledger and had requested the latter to instruct the reporter to appear at Mr. Ross's office this morning at 10 o'clock. Mr. Ross said he was assured that the reporter would be on hand.

At the same time the Federal District Attorney sent a communication to W. Lee Smith, 203 West 140th Street, Manhattan, head waiter at Villepigue's Inn, and to Preston Rockey, formerly check boy and now caretaker of the inn, instructing them also to appear before him this morning to tell what they know of the affair.

"I am going to make a full and complete investigation of these charges to determine whether there is any warrant for Federal action," said Mr. Ross. "I do not think it will be necessary to call Mayor Hylan, but if it proves to be necessary will do so.

"I am going to find out what these witnesses have to say about the charges that liquor was brought to the dinner or was served there. If I find the charges warrant I will push the investigation to the limit."

District Attorney Ross apparently was the only officer of the law who seemed to have taken any cognizance of the disclosures regarding the dinner.

"Officially I know nothing of this occasion," said F. L. Boyd, Supervising Prohibition Agent. "It is all a matter of hearsay, for I have only heard people talking of what they had read in the papers. We have taken no cognizance of the charges and they have not been brought to my attention."

Mr. Boyd said that he was busy with many important investigations, and that he did not know whether the Brooklyn office had started an investigation of the Villepigue's Inn celebration, at least they had not done so on instructions from him.

No Statement from the Mayor.

When an attempt was made to question Mayor Hylan yesterday as he reached his office he said:

"I haven't read any letters. I haven't read any articles. I've got a big day before me, and I am going to shut myself in."

And he shut himself in his office with a bang!

A vigorous denial was made yesterday by James Villepigue, proprietor of the inn, that he had sold any liquor since the Eighteenth Amendment went into effect. He said that the celebration marking the closing of his restaurant had been attended by Mayor Hylan and other officials from both Brooklyn and Manhattan. He said that the Mayor and Dock Commissioner Hulbert had been patrons of his place for many years.

Mr. Villepigue said he had not seen any liquor at the dinner which the Mayor attended but that some of the patrons might have brought their private stocks with them.

BOOTLEGGERS FORM RUM 'CURB MARKET'

INQUIRY BY GOVERNMENT

Leaders of Several Whisky Rings Conduct Trading Between 9 P. M. and 1 A. M. Nightly.

Traffic in contraband liquor has become so flagrant and voluminous in this city that leaders of the bands of criminals who supply the saloons and "speakeasies" have established a "curb market" within a few blocks of Police Headquarters for the disposal of their wares.

This fact came to light yesterday, when it was learned that within the preceding forty-eight hours orders were received from Washington by Frank L. Boyd, Supervising Prohibition Enforcement Agent for this State, to make an immediate investigation.

The Washington officials are said to have obtained full details of the "curb market" operations and to have submitted all their information to prohibition enforcement officers here.

Although Mr. Boyd on Monday assigned more than twenty enforcement agents to break up the "curb market" and round up the bootlegger chiefs, he refused to discuss the matter when questioned about it last night. Pressed for a confirmation of the report that he had been ordered by John F. Kramer, Federal Prohibition Enforcement Commissioner, to investigate, Mr. Boyd replied only that he "had heard about the matter." He evidenced much surprise that the report had got out.

Combine to Facilitate Sales.

It was learned, however, that the chiefs of the many bootlegging rings had combined to facilitate the sale of the various brands of liquor which they obtained either on legitimate permits or through thefts from vehicles and warehouses.

It is understood these leaders have modeled their "curb" along the lines of the curb market in the financial district, and that for the last month at least the public sale of liquor to saloon keepers and proprietors of "speakeasies" or their agents has been conducted almost every night between the hours of 9 P. M. and 1 A. M. on any one of four corners in the district bounded on the south by Canal Street, on the east by the Bowery, on the north by Prince Street, and on the west by Mulberry Street. It was said that on several nights last week the "curb market" was located at Mulberry and Broome Streets.

Whisky, brandy, wine, gin and other liquors, Government officials in Washington were said to have been informed, were sold by the purveyors on the "curb," either in single cases or by the load. While the sales were effected on the "market," it was explained, the liquor itself was not handled at the "curb," but was obtained on orders at various rendezvous of the members of the bootleggers' ring in different parts of the city, and in New Jersey, Long Island and Connecticut points.

Motor Truck System Maintained.

Purchasers of the liquor were conveyed to the rendezvous in automobiles, owned by the leaders of the illicit traffic or their agents, and, it was said, the traffic had become so flagrant that expensive motor trucks owned by these men were stationed every night near the "curb market" or at the rendezvous for hire by the purchasers of liquor.

The identity of the person or persons who informed the Washington officials of the existence of the liquor "curb market" is being guarded, but it is known that when those officials were informed of the matter, they also were told that within the last ten days the leaders of the illicit traffic have boasted that Charles R. O'Connor, Federal Prohibition Director for this State, would be transferred within the coming week because he had reduced the number of permits granted to wholesalers, and thus considerably hampered the illicit liquor traffic.

That the tenement section in the vicinity of Police Headquarters has been the centre of bootlegging activities has been no secret to the prohibition enforcement officials. It was said they had run across evidence of that fact in numerous investigations in saloons, restaurants and "speakeasies."

Names of Leaders Obtained.

In several instances prohibition agents were said to have learned the names of leaders in the conspiracy, but these leaders had so thoroughly systematized the illicit whisky traffic that the Government officials were unable to obtain conclusive evidence against them. The bootlegger chiefs were said to have

SHOOTING MYSTIFIES POLICE

SLAYER TELLS OF HOLDUP

Declares Victim and Man He Missed Attempted to Take $2,000 Worth of Jewelry.

Despite a score of "eye-witness accounts" of a fatal shooting and a police chase after fugitives through the crowds in West Thirty-ninth Street, near Broadway, at 6 o'clock last evening, detectives were still struggling through mazes of conflicting stories at midnight in attempts to fashion a plausible story of the death of an ex-convict.

Hundreds of persons saw a sprinting man dash out of the traffic of West Thirty-ninth Street into the denser crowds of Broadway, with another at his heels firing an automatic pistol at every jump, and near the Princess Theatre, in the middle of the block, other witnesses had seen the man with the pistol shoot down another victim. But none of them was able to say whether the case was one of robbery or homicide.

Detectives were inclined at first to credit the version of the man with the pistol—William Stern, a jewelry salesman of 212 West 111th Street—who said he was walking toward Sixth Avenue on the south side of Thirty-ninth Street when three or four men seized him near the Princess Theatre, hurled him into a dark doorway and attempted to steal $2,000 in cash and jewels.

Stern's Record Disclosed.

When the police raked over their records at Headquarters they found that Stern, also known as Herman Kudich, had been sentenced to three months on Blackwell's Island on Sept. 11, 1911, for petty larceny. Their records showed also that Stern, or Kudich, under the name of Harry Smith was sentenced to three months in the House of Corrections in Boston, on Dec. 31, 1914. Detectives said fingerprints, picture and description proved that Stern had been in jail.

At midnight the man with the pistol was taken to Police Headquarters on a charge of homicide, and detectives began to hear the story of Pasquale Mille of Farmingdale, L. I., who was making the determined effort to get out into Broadway out of range of Stern's pistol. Mille declared that the case was "murder," not robbery, and he vehemently denied the accusation of a detective that he himself had served a term in Sing Sing. He was more interested in a couple of bullet holes in his coat.

It was Mille's story that he was to meet Paul Boittano of 137 West Seventy-sixth Street in Thirty-ninth Street at 6 o'clock and that he saw Boittano in violent argument with Stern as he approached the rendezvous. He said he did not care to take part in the quarrel and went into the candy store of William Halpern, a few doors from the Princess Theatre, to get a drink of soda.

Dead Man Had Prison Record.

Mille said he heard shooting while drinking the soda and ran out just as his friend Boittano fell dead on the sidewalk with two bullet wounds in his breast. As he started toward Boittano, he said, Stern opened fire on him and he fled toward Broadway at his best speed, with the man with the pistol close behind. He was held as a material witness.

Peering still further into the mystery of the shooting, the police found that the dead man also had a prison record. With three other men, he held up and shot the cashier of the East River Savings Bank on the Bowery in 1914 and was sent to Sing Sing for an indeterminate sentence. He served twenty-three months. The police of the West Thirtieth Street station said they had had their eyes on him for months.

Contending at first that he was not well acquainted with Boittano and did not know Stern at all, Mille admitted to detectives after lengthy questioning that he knew both men well. He denied that he knew of any reason why they should quarrel and declared he never had done any work with either of the men, or had any financial dealings with them.

Checking up Stern's story that his assailants had a pistol and a knife, the police searched the street and the dark hallway thoroughly, but found no weapons. Mille said he had no pistol and did not know Boittano was in the habit of carrying weapons. Stern declared that he had a shooting gallery near one of the Long Island camps during the war and had a Nassau County permit to carry a pistol.

Salesman "on His Own Hook."

Stern had a certified check for $660 in his pocket, $100 in cash and about $1,500 worth of jewelry, which he said he was peddling at Broadway and Sixth Avenue stores when he met Boittano. He would not say where he got the gems and declared that he was "a salesman on his own hook."

Although hundreds of persons saw the chase through Thirty-ninth Street, including lines of persons at the ticket offices of the Princess and Maxine Elliott's theatres, none saw the action

Attempt to Kill Serb Ruler Reported by Montenegrins

BRUSSELS, Oct. 12.—An attempt was made to assassinate Prince Regent Alexander of Serbia during his recent tour in Bosnia, according to the Montenegrin Press Bureau today. The bureau adds:

"A bomb was thrown under the train in which the Prince Regent of Serbia was returning from Serajevo. Two coaches were wrecked, but the Prince was unhurt. An inquiry into the incident gave no results.

"The Mayor and Municipal Council of Serajevo have resigned."

Serajevo, the capital of Bosnia, was the place where the Archduke Franz Ferdinand, heir presumptive to the Austro-Hungarian royal and imperial throne, and his morganatic wife, the Princess von Hohenberg, were assassinated in June, 1914—an event regarded as the direct cause of the diplomatic exchanges among the powers which in the following August led to the great war.

VAIN RIVER SEARCH FOR COUGHLIN BABY

Pasquale's Statement That He Sunk Body Accepted on Evidence Found.

ADMITS ANOTHER MURDER

Confesses Having Killed Philadelphia Woman Two Nights Before Kidnapping.

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 12.—The body of Blakely Coughlin, the baby smothered to death by August Pasquale, "the crank," when he was kidnapping the child from its parents' home at Norristown, June 2, was thrown into the Schuylkill River just below Norristown, according to the belief expressed today by the State Police.

When Major Lynn G. Adams, Superintendent of the State Police, yesterday told of the Sunday confession of Pasquale in the Norristown Jail, it was believed that the child's body had been buried near Bar Harbor, N. J., and an unavailing search for it was made there yesterday.

Pasquale had confessed, however, to disposing of the body, tied to a piece of rail in the stream, near the home of the baby's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Coughlin. In making public today the typewritten confession of Pasquale, Major Adams announced that Pasquale had also confessed to the murder of an aged woman in Philadelphia last Spring and the theft of $300 from her home.

Pasquale was taken from the Montgomery County Jail today by Captain Samuel Gearhart of the State Police, who conducted the prisoner to the banks of the Schuylkill River. "The crank" pointed out the spot where he said he had thrown the body. A professional diver accompanied them and, after making several attempts to locate the body, found a piece of railroad rail with a bit of string about it. Pasquale said he had tied the body securely to the rail, which he had found along the railroad.

Major Adams said today after he had been in communication with Norristown:

"I received word from Captain Gearhart that Pasquale had taken him to the spot along the Schuylkill River, just below Norristown, where he said he had thrown the baby's body. A professional diver accompanied them to the spot and went into the river all around the place he indicated. The rail and the piece of string were found."

Later Captain Gearhart ordered the diver to cease his efforts to recover the body and said:

"The case is now finished. We have obtained everything possible, as the child's body has apparently disappeared and melted into the waters of the Schuylkill."

George H. Coughlin, the father of the child, said that he was greatly relieved to know at last the real fate of the baby.

"I am very much relieved, now that the tension is broken," he said. "The thought of living the rest of my life without knowing the fate of my baby is now over."

Pasquale will have a hearing next week, according to Francis X. Renninger, the District Attorney in charge of the case. Mr. Renninger said that charges of first degree murder as well as kidnapping would be made against "the crank."

Major Adams said that in the course of his confession Pasquale was asked what he was going to do with the body when he found that the baby had been smothered after he had buttoned his coat over it, and the prisoner replied:

"I was going to put it at Swedeland, where I was working—near the place I was working over there."

Later on in the confession, Pasquale, according to Major Adams, admitted that he had thrown the body into the Schuylkill. Pasquale said the current at the spot where he threw it was not swift enough to carry it away.

When Pasquale was questioned about the murder of the woman in Philadelphia, he told Major Adams that he had lived at 906 North Eighth Street, Philadelphia, for two weeks. He said he gave up his room, but had a key to the house, having secured one from a traveling locksmith. According to his confession he went back "the last part of May or the first of June" and then committed the murder. The confession at this point reads:

"I opened the door, there was nobody in the room. I went in and hid myself in the closet. They were asleep, so I had to force the door open. There was a piece of slate there. As I forced the RIGA, Oct. 12.—The Polish-Russian peace treaty was signed this evening in the Hall of the Black Knights under the painted eyes of Alexander the Great, Catherine and other rulers of the old Czaristic empire.

It was a long and wearisome ceremony, as the whole treaty of nearly thirty articles was read three times—in the Polish, Russian and Ukrainian languages.

The Bolshevist plenipotentiaries took their seats first at a long table with M. Joffe, in appearance and demeanor the perfect type of diplomatist, in the centre. When a minute later the Poles took their places at the other side the Russians rose and bowed their greeting. M. Dombski, the Polish President, and M. Joffe, leaning across the table, shook hands. Then without further formality Joffe began reading the Russian text.

Truce Begins Midnight, Oct. 18.

RIGA, Oct. 12 (Associated Press).—A preliminary peace treaty and armistice was signed by the Polish and Russian Soviet peace delegates here at 7:10 o'clock tonight.

The armistice actually becomes effective at midnight Oct. 18, that is 144 hours from midnight tonight.

The announcement that peace was to be signed brought great crowds to the square surrounding the Black Head House. M. Joffe and the Bolshevist delegation entered the hall first and were followed by M. Domski and the Polish delegation. About 200 persons, including the entire diplomatic body and prominent Lettish officials crowded the small room, many of them standing.

Considerable delay ensued, which was due to the physical work necessary for the completion of the treaties for signature. Tired by more than five days and nights of almost constant work M. Joffe looked extremely pale, but his voice showed no nervousness when he announced without rising that the treaty had been completed, and began reading the Russian text.

After M. Joffe had finished M. Dombski read the Polish text, and M. Manuilski followed with the reading of the document in Ukrainian.

There was a general exchange of felicitations, the heads of the respective delegations thanking the others and the Latvians for the courtesies extended. M. Dombski said he believed that a permanent peace would grow out of the preliminary peace which he expected would be ratified promptly.

M. Joffe then opened the embossed copies of the treaty and armistice which lay on the table before him and inscribed his signature. The Russians signed first, as M. Joffe was Chairman of the day, holding the honor by virtue of an agreement that he and M. Dombski alternate in that position.

The head of the Soviet delegation in a brief address before the signature of the treaty called attention to the many difficulties encountered in arranging the armistice and also to the harmonious manner in which the delegations carried out the negotiations. He also expressed the belief that the foundation had been laid for a permanent peace, as both nations were absolutely tired of war and unwilling to assume responsibility for continuing the strife.

Fear Terms Will Be Unpopular.

Joffe referred to the peace as "a peace without victor and without vanquished." That described the Riga agreement accurately as it appeared to disinterested onlookers. It was a peace of give and take, which those who have followed the course of events fear will not be very popular either with the Bolsheviki or the Poles. But it is undoubtedly a triumph for the two chairmen who made it.

The Bolsheviki insist that the preliminary treaty is much less favorable than the peace offered Poland last February, and the failure of the Poles to have a financial settlement included in the preliminary convention has been generally regarded as a Soviet triumph. Poland, however, obtained much more territory than it seemed likely the conference would grant when it opened, and many Polish observers regard the corridor shutting off Lithuania from Russia as a victory outweighing any concessions made.

While the principals in the negotiations insist the terms eventually will lead to the signature of a permanent treaty which will permit restoration of normal conditions in Central Europe, there is much pessimism among diplomats and observers not participating in the conference. The French are clearly dissatisfied, and apparently desired a continuation of the war. The bottling up of Lithuania in general is regarded as a doubtful experiment.

There is much speculation here as to whether the Bolsheviki will be able immediately to throw large forces from the Polish front against General Wrangel. Bolshevist delegates declare large forces already are opposing him and that no necessity exists for the dispatch of reinforcements to that front.

Fighting Continues Active.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The Bolshevist communique of Tuesday shows that fighting is active on all fronts. Both Poles and Reds are attacking with varying success.

Occupation of villages north and south of Smorgon on a front of fourteen miles in the Molodetchno region is claimed. The statement says:

"In the Minsk region we occupied the village of Keydany and a number of hamlets along a front twenty miles north and south of this village. Enemy attacks west of Slutsk were repulsed.

"Further south we occupied several places. In the direction of Sarny we have driven the enemy back to Ollevik. In the Novogorod-Volhynsk region we have occupied a number of places from ten to twenty miles northward."

LITHUANIANS MASSING TO RECAPTURE VILNA

Kovno Government Appeals to United States—Polish Government Disavows Zeligouski.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—A wholesale levy of citizens who are capable of bearing arms is proceeding at Kovno with the object of a counterattack by the Lithuanians for the recapture of Vilna, held by Poles under General Zeligouski, says a dispatch to The London Times from Kovno. Meanwhile the Polish troops are said to have passed through Vilna on their way to the old demarkation line.

This fact, and the Polish position at Orany (midway between Vilna and Grodno), which cuts off the main body of the Lithuanian Army from the Vilna sector, gives color to the possibility of a Polish advance on Kovno, the dispatch declares. These forces are composed of foot, horse and artillery and are well equipped.

The correspondent says the secret police of Kovno have arrested the ringleaders in the plot, in which the principal Polish landowners are implicated. The plot aimed at the cutting of the railway between Virbalien and Kovno to prevent the transport of supplies from Germany.

Generally speaking, the dispatch adds, Vilna was spared the horrors of street fighting, although there was some shooting and bombing. The invaders proclaimed their Government in a flamboyant declaration signed by Zeligouski and five others. The declaration repudiated the Russo-Lithuanian Treaty and insisted on the right of self-determination.

Appeal to American Government.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The Lithuanian Cabinet, from its temporary seat of government at Kovno, has ordered a general mobilization with a view to the expulsion of the "outlaw" Polish forces now in possession of Vilna, the Lithuanian capital, according to advices received at the Lithuanian Legation today.

M. Vileicias, the Lithuanian representative in Washington, received cable instructions from Foreign Minister Purickis to appeal to the State Department against the alleged violation by Poland of the armistice signed Oct. 7 with the Lithuanian envoys at Suwalki.

"On Oct. 7," says this dispatch, "we signed an agreement with the Poles, with the League of Nations representatives participating. A demarcation line was established. As soon as the commission of the League of Nations envoys left Orany for Suwalki the Poles attacked our troops with overwhelming fores around Rastunai. As the Poles were holding the railroad junction at Orany we were unable to bring up our reserves from Suwalki. After two days we had to retreat and the Poles entered Vilna, where they announced themselves as the central Lithuanian Government.

"The Polish Government says this was done by insurrectionists against their wishes, but the leaders of the Polish armies proclaimed they were carrying out the orders of Warsaw."

League Calls for Details.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—The League of Nations has lost no time in taking action in regard to the seizure of Vilna. President Leon Bourgeois announced today that a note had been sent to the chief of the League commission in Lithuania asking full particulars, especially as concerns responsibility of the Polish Government.

The French press is naturally inclined to support the Polish assertion that Zeligouski imitated d'Annunzio. The Echo de Paris carries an evidently "inspired" paragraph stating that the English were at first disposed to treat the incident very seriously and even demanded the immediate recall of all allied missions from Warsaw.

"However," continues the Echo, "pending further information the powers consider that the responsibility of the Polish Government is not involved in the Vilna incident. The League of Nations is handling the various Polish Lithuanian disputes and has on the spot a control commission which went to Vilna directly it received news of the affair. The case will be left to the League of Nations."

The paragraph adds that the French and British have addressed to the Warsaw Government a rather belated note advising the Poles to moderation with regard to frontiers in general and the Vilna region in particular.

Proclaims a New State.

WARSAW, Oct. 11 (Associated Press.)—The new "Central Lithuanian Government" at Vilna, which is said to consist of two Lithuanians, two White Ruthenians and two Poles, with M. Abramowiecz, a Lithuanian Pole and editor of the Gazette Krajowa, published at Vilna, as President, has proclaimed the creation of a new State, says a Lida dispatch to the Narod today.

A series of proclamations has been issued by the so-called Government. The first proclaims the new State and promises to convoke a Diet in the near future. The second, addressed to the Polish Government, asks for forgiveness for the mutiny of General Zeligouski's troops and gives notice of the creation of the new State, the territory of which, it is set forth, includes the town of Grodno, with the River Niemen as the dividing line from Poland.

The proclamation further asks that the Polish troops occupying Central Lithuania be considered as an army of occupation. The Vilna Government requests that it be allowed to send a commissary to these troops.

SENDS ENVOYS TO LONDON.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, Oct. 13.—The Daily Chronicle's diplomatic correspondent writes:

"The British and French Governments are considering the terms of a fresh joint communication to the Polish Government with regard to the Vilna coup.

"The difficulties of the matter for the Warsaw authorities are fully recognized. General Zeligouski is said to have renounced the Polish service before he made his coup and then, after the manner of d'Annunzio, to have set up a Council for Central Lithuania and to have summoned Warsaw to recognize the accomplished fact as a case of 'self-determination.'

"Despite the reported 'storm of enthusiasm all over Poland,' we are assured that the Polish Government recognizes the true character of the adventure, has given no countenance to it and intends to take action to terminate it.

"A Lithuanian delegation consisting of Dr. Soloys Itchik, Minister for Jewish Affairs; M. Vangaitis, Vice President of the National Assembly; M. Slesewitz, ex-Premier, and Professor Szepinski, has arrived in London to ask the 'good offices of the British Government.'

FRANCE'S POLICY SERVED

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—The League of Nations Commission at Suwalki immediately started for Vilna on receipt of the news of the occupation of that city by General Zeligouski's troops, but it is likely to find that a fait accompli is easier to prevent than to undo. Significant light is thrown on the attitude of the Polish Government by the fact that it now announces its refusal to recognize the agreement between the Soviets and Lithuania by which Vilna and most of the territory now seized by the Poles was recognized as Lithuanian.

The incident may serve to opponents of the League in America as justification for their attitude. In point of fact, its lesson is exactly the reverse, for it shows just how American abstention from the League has wrecked its authority to the extent to such things are possible. For unfortunately it is not Poland alone that is in question. It is a matter of common knowledge that behind her is France, one of the most powerful members of the League of Nations.

Without for a moment implying that the French are responsible for the Polish march on Vilna, the fact remains that it is one of the cardinal points of French foreign policy to prevent and hamper close relations between Soviet Russia and Germany. There has been carried on against Lithuania a campaign of calumny in the French press, mostly from Polish sources, whose leit motif was the danger of unrestricted communication between Soviet Russia and East Russia through Lithuania.

At the beginning of last January a combined Lettish-Lithuanian-Polish offensive was scheduled to begin against the Bolsheviki, who then held Dvinsk. Suddenly the Letts and Poles attacked unexpectedly on both sides of the narrow Lithuanian front, joining hands a few miles ahead of it. The result of this was that at the end of the successful little campaign the Lithuanians were shut off from direct communication with Russia. It was generally understood in Riga that this arrangement was due to advice of the French.

There is more than a shadow of grounds for believing that the mysterious delay in the signing of the armistice between the Reds and Poland was due to fear—again and again emphasized in the semi-official Temps—that the Reds might utilize the respite to crush Wrangel. It is no secret here that preparations are being made for supporting that General if Polish-Russian peace is definitely signed.

The crux of the whole problem is that though a member of the League of Nations France is an interested party when an incident occurs affecting Russia, or Germany, just as Italy was an interested party in the case of Fiume. The French plan of giving the League an army to enforce its decisions would not work because the real source of trouble is that, without America, the League is little more than the old pre-war concert of great powers whose mutual distrusts, anxieties and rivalries vitiate co-operation.

UKRAINIANS DRIVE BOLSHEVIKI FROM KIEV

WARSAW, Oct. 11 (Associated Press).—Ukrainian insurgents have occupied Kiev, the Bolshevist forces that have been holding the city having abandoned it several days ago, according to advices received here. The Ukrainians in Warsaw are planning to open communication with Kiev as soon as possible. Their representatives are already vising passports for Kiev, although no arrangements have as yet been made for trains.

The Russians are concentrating along the southern front for the purpose of attacking the Ukrainians as soon as the armistice with Poland is signed. It is declared in tonight's Polish statement on military affairs.

SEBASTOPOL, Oct. 10 (Associated Press).—General Wrangel, the anti-Bolshevist leader, has launched his expected offensive against the new Sixth Army of the Soviet forces, sheltered behind the Dnieper. General Wrangel is carrying out a pinching movement converging on the town of Kakhovka, northeast of Kherson. Fine weather is favoring the operations.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The Russian Soviet official statement of Monday received here by wireless says:

"Along the sector of Gulaipole and Berdianak (in the Crimean region) our advance is developing successfully. We have occupied Gulaipole."

SEE BOLSHEVISM DOOMED.

Washington Officials Now Considering What May Follow in Russia.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Signs of the approaching collapse of Bolshevism in Russia are seen by State Department officials in the crumbling of Soviet authority on the Polish front and the rapidly augmenting strength of anti-Bolshevist forces in Southeastern Europe under General Wrangel.

Already consideration is being given at the department, it was said today, to what may follow the end of Soviet rule in Russia. The prospect of anarchy and chaos in the event of Soviet dissolution is very real, according to officials, but the belief was expressed that the local Zemstvos have been so well organized as to maintain a semblance of order and some cohesion of economic life until a stable Government capable of obtaining the adherence of the majority of the Russian population shall arise.

The situation in Persia, where for a time Bolshevism threatened to disrupt the country, recently has cleared satisfactorily, according to reports received by the department. The league of Bolshevism with the Turkish Nationalists also is regarded as having been irretrievably weakened with the rout of Mustapha Kemal and his followers.

Most significant of the wane of Soviet influence in Europe, according to officials, was the rejection of Bolshevist overtures by Switzerland, which is situated so as to be able to form an accurate opinion of the character and future of the Soviet regime. It is now also known that somewhat earlier Rumania rejected overtures of the Soviet Government.

The judgment of Socialists upon the Soviet Government is expected to be registered with particular emphasis at the meeting of the German Socialists at Halle, where the Right Wing of the German Socialist Party is expected to withdraw from the convention on the issue of adherence to the Moscow Third Internationale. The Right Wing includes the great majority of Socialists in Germany, and may be considered, in the opinion of officials, as representative of the growing attitude of distrust of Socialists generally in Europe toward Bolshevism.

MRS. WOODROW WILSON REGISTERED AS VOTER

Her Name Placed on List at Princeton So She May Vote with the President.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 12.—The name of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson was placed on the registration list of Princeton this evening by the affidavit of a voter of the district. This was done in order that she may cast her vote with that of the President on Election Day.

The President was enrolled during the house to house canvass at Princeton on Sept. 14. The New Jersey law does not require voters to register in person if they are included in the canvass. President Wilson and his brother-in-law, Dr. Axton, have for years maintained a technical residence at 10 Nassau Street.

At the time of Mrs. Wilson's enrollment the local committee wrote informing Secretary Tumulty of its action and enclosed two absent voter blanks. Should the President and his wife be unable to come to Princeton on Election Day and yet desire to vote here, they may fill out the blank affidavits and just before the election ballots will be sent them which they can mark and return in sealed envelopes.

To Give Both Sides of League Issue.

Two meetings in Cooper Union have been arranged by the Lecture Bureau of the Department of Education at which the League of Nations will be discussed. On Thursday evening Ambassador John W. Davis will speak for the League, and on Friday night James M. Beck will speak in opposition to the League.

RUM 'CURB MARKET' FOR BOOTLEGGERS

worked out their plans so cleverly that, although they conducted their business in the public streets, they left no trail by which they could be connected with the traffic.

When they combined their forces about a month ago through the formation of a "curb market," it was learned, the contraband liquor dealers struck on the use of the telephone to evade detection by Government authorities. The plan was similar to that employed by "hand book" men in recording bets made on horse races.

It was explained that the bootleggers obtained the use of telephones in different parts of this city, Long Island, New Jersey and Connecticut, at which orders for liquor were received by their representatives. These telephones usually were located in restaurants or confectionery stores, and to obliterate the trail of the bootleggers the messages received over them were relayed by men in automobiles to the "curb market" near Police Headquarters.

From the beginning of their "curb" operations, it was said, the bootleggers realized it would not be wise to maintain the "market" permanently on a particular corner, and for that reason they centered their activities on different nights of the week (including Sunday) at Mulberry and Broome Streets, a short block from Police Headquarters; Elizabeth and Hester Streets, about a quarter of a mile from Police Headquarters and the Criminal Court Building; Mott and Prince Streets, three blocks from Police Headquarters, and Grand and Mott Streets, two blocks from the same building.

Scene of Operations Shifted.

On several occasions, it was said, the bootleggers transferred the scene of operations to the yards of tenement houses, usually in the rear of saloons, all of which were wide open and showed no sign of having been affected by the Volstead law. Last night a person who appeared to be familiar with the bootlegging activities said the "curb" traffic had been developed to such an extent that no less than five hundred men were engaged in it.

Most of these men, he said, acted as guards on the vehicles on which the liquor was transported from its hiding places to the establishments of purchasers. A considerable number of them were agents, who received commissions both from the bootleggers and the purchasers.

The sudden prosperity of some of these agents has been the source of considerable comment on the part of the police and residents of this bootlegging zone. All are young men whose homes are in nearby tenements, and yet they have so prospered within the last nine months that they vie with one another in purchasing the most expensive makes of automobiles. These automobiles were purchased at the prevailing manufacturers' prices, the agents judiciously deciding that the nature of their business would make it unwise for them to buy stolen cars from members of the several bands of automobile thieves who make the neighborhood their headquarters.

Origin of the "Curb Market."

It was explained that up to the time the "curb market" was established, certain bands of bootleggers were in possession of brands of liquors for which there was a constant demand by saloonkeepers and proprietors of "speakeasies," while others found it difficult to meet the demands for such liquors. The "curb market" was established, it was said, through the gradual intercourse which sprang up between the various bootlegging bands in converting orders for such liquors to those who had a plentiful supply of them.

It was said certain saloonkeepers and owners of "speakeasies" in the tenement sections demanded the cheaper brand of liquors because their customers would not pay the prices obtained on Broadway. It became necessary, it was declared, for the leaders to establish a centre where orders for the cheapest and the most expensive brands of liquors could be exchanged, and the "curb market" near Police Headquarters was the result.

Before the creation of the bootleggers' "curb market," the police and agents of the local prohibition office on several occasions seized loads of liquor being transported through the district and arrested the drivers of the vehicles, but it was declared last night that, with the inauguration of the "curb," an end was put to such seizures, because most of the liquors concealed in cellars and in tenement apartments in the vicinity were removed to distant points, from which they were conveyed to purchasers.

WHISKY RING AGENT ACCUSES DEPUTY

New Yorker, in Alleged Confession, Says He Paid $30,000 to Chicagoan.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Revelations concerning the operations of a national liquor ring, with headquarters in New York, were made to United States Attorney Clyne today when twelve saloon keepers signed written confessions of their implication in the recent shipment of 1,000 cases, 60,000 gallons, of whisky from Louisville on a forged permit. The whisky was seized on its arrival here.

One alleged confession, that of H. A. Sadler of New York, threw Chicago's liquor circles into consternation tonight. Named in the alleged confession were John "McLaughlin, once a member of the Illinois State Legislature and now a Deputy United States Revenue agent; Glenn Haskell, Chicago manager of the American Distilling Company; J. J. Foster, Chicago saloonkeeper; Charles Janett owner of the roadster Intl. Sixth Street and Western Avenue; Matt Wygdert, suspended Deputy Internal Revenue Collector; R. E. Wathen, President of the Grand-Dad Distillery of Louisville, Ky., and a prominent figure in baseball circles, and E. C. Kennedy, a clerk in the distillery.

Sadler, who was also arrested in Milwaukee, made this alleged confession to the Federal officers:

"I arrived in Chicago during the hot days in August," he said. "I carried letters of introduction from a New York Federal official to certain Chicago friends. While walking around I wanted a drink. I called a taxi driver and asked him to take me to the nearest booze. He took me to the saloon of Ben Collins at 2,275 Cottage Grove Avenue.

"While talking with Collins I told him I'd like to send some real 'hooch' into Chi,' for I had 60,000 gallons of it in bond in a Louisville warehouse. Collins got interested right away.

"'You go see "Boss" McLaughlin,' he told me.

"I did. I told McLaughlin what I wanted to do and he said it would be an easy matter to get the booze into Chicago. He said he'd get me the permit for $30,000. It would let me get the stuff out of bond. I told McLaughlin I did not have that much jack, but could get it in New York. Next day a draft for $30,000 came through the First National Bank for me. I turned it over to McLaughlin and he gave me the permit."

Sadler, according to his story, began operations in illicit whisky last January. He was then a stock broker. He made the acquaintance of a restaurant man of the name of Washer, he said, who told him of the huge profits to be made in whisky.

Sadler continued in the business for some time, he said, but did not make the big profits he expected. Then, hearing of the wider field in Chicago, he came here. Sadler who is now in New York on bond, will come here to testify before the Grand Jury on Friday.

McLaughlin, who lives at 3,521 West Jackson Boulevard, is now employed as a Deputy United States Revenue Agent in the office of Revenue Collector Harry F. Mager. He denies receiving any money from Sadler for enabling the latter to get a permit allowing him to withdraw whisky.

The indictment of at least a score of persons on the charge of conspiracy to violate the prohibition amendment will be asked this week from the Federal Grand Jury. To this Grand Jury, it is stated, will be presented the names of wholesale whisky dealers, numerous Federal employes, go-betweens and politicians.

Sadler, according to the alleged confession, has been the leader in the traffic here, and implicates a number of men in Chicago and in other cities for whom indictments will be asked.

"The confession purporting to have been made by Sadler has not been fully verified," said United States District Attorney Clyne tonight. "The Government is not yet absolutely sure that it can establish its full accuracy. An investigation has been going on for several weeks, and definite action will not be taken until the statements made are verified."

CHICAGO, Oct. 12 (Associated Press).—Information contained in an alleged confession by H. A. Sadler is said to have disclosed that the bootlegging already carried on in Chicago by the whisky ring has been so extensive as to have netted those engaged in its operation close to $1,000,000.

It was revealed, it was said, that those engaged in the traffic had not found it necessary to forge permits for the removal of liquor, but had been able to obtain bona fide ones and also later to remove incriminating records from the offices of the prohibition officials through the corruption of officials entrusted with the task of supressing the sale of liquor.

One woman employed in one of the Government offices in Washington was said to have been used as a pawn in the hands of the whiskey "ring."

The disclosures regarding the Chicago operations of the ring are said to have resulted from the seizure here on Aug. 24 of a shipment of 1,000 cases of whisky of a 1,200 case shipment addressed to H. A. Sadler, in care of the American Distilling Company. The liquor was shipped from Louisville, and its seizure was followed by the arrest of Sadler, who was later released on bonds.

After Sadler's arrest here he is said to have proceeded to New York and given information to the authorities there relative to operations of Eastern distillers. He is said to have declared that outlaw liquor valued at millions of dollars was shipped from New York, Pittsburgh and Louisville into Chicago.

CONBOY DENOUNCES FORD.

Assails Auto Manufacturer for His Attack on the Jews.

Martin Conboy, Director of the Selective Draft in this city during the war, a speaker last night at the Columbus Day celebration under the auspices of the New York Chapter of the Knights of Columbus in Carnegie Hall, denounced Henry Ford's recent attack upon the Jewish people. Mr. Conboy asserted that Mr. Ford's effort to provoke religious intolerance should be placed in the same category as "similar efforts of the so-called order of the Sons and Daughters of Washington."

"Religious intolerance has again raised its head," Mr. Conboy added. "The organization which calls itself the Sons and Daughters of Washington is conducting a campaign of misrepresentation so transparent that any child acquainted with American history can see through it, and detect the fallacy. These people are no sons and daughters of Washington. Providence left Washington childless so that his country might call him father; and every American citizen has this right. I consider it a precious piece of impertinence that any organization should monopolize unto itself the national parenthood of Washington, and I am quite sure that if Washington were here he would repudiate his spurious progeny."

Referring to the ousting of the Socialist Assemblymen, Mr. Conboy said the State should never bend its knee in submission to disloyalty. "No matter how often these men are returned it is the duty of American citizens to continue to reject them," he said.

Alfred J. Talley, Acting District Attorney, reviewed the history of Columbus's discovery of America in its relation to the purpose of the Knights of Columbus. Mgr. Joseph F. Mooney, Vicar General of the New York archdiocese, who represented Archbishop Hayes, also spoke.

CONVICTS SEIZE ARMS, FIGHT WITH GUARDS

Three Prisoners and Three Keepers Hit in Battle in Maryland Penitentiary.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 12.—In a desperate attempt this afternoon to fight their way to freedom, David Bender, a New York gunman, convicted of murder, and James C. Evans, a robber, serving sentences at the Maryland Penitentiary, overpowered and disarmed three guards, barricaded their fellow convicts and engaged in a gun fight during which Evans, Anthony Cugino, one of the Armiger case bandits, and Carlisle Webster, wife slayer, were shot. Their wounds are not serious. Three guards were injured.

Police reserves summoned while the riot was at its height, and led by Marshall Carter and Deputy Marshall Henry, convinced the two desperadoes, who had barricaded themselves on the fourth floor of the institution, that further fighting would mean only their death.

For about half an hour the penitentiary was seething. Guards, finding their colleagues, who had been attacked by Bender and Evans, helpless, began firing steadily at the two desperadoes. In the confusion Cugino received a wound which severed a finger, and Webster, who strangled his bride of a few days, got a bullet in his leg. Bender, who is serving a life sentence for killing Patrolman George Sauer, escaped injury, but Evans, who is doing five years, was hit in the leg.

After Marshal Carter had assured the two prisoners that they would not be attacked, they clambered down the steps, handed over their revolvers and surrendered.

"Losses on mortgages are reduced to a minimum through careful and conservative appraisals by good judges of values and constant oversight and examination, with calls for payment or repairs whenever depreciation is manifest."

"For our guaranteed mortgage we make the same careful examination at the time of acquiring and sometimes thereafter but not to any great extent. Our experience is that the guarantee companies look after this feature in a very thorough manner."

"I never felt that the long time bond was a proper investment for a savings bank, that is, anything longer than a generation."

"It were better to take short maturities and keep in step with any economic change that might occur. Then if interest rates advance, your early maturities will save the situation. If interest rates decline, the interest to depositors can be adjusted to meet the situation."

AS IT WAS IN THE BEGINNING

WHEN Zenas Crane began making writing paper at Dalton, Mass., in 1801, he made all-rag paper because that was the only kind of paper there was. All paper was all-rag.

In the 120 odd years since then many new paper-making materials have been discovered and improved, but nothing has yet been found better than rags.

Crane & Co. have paid no attention to materials which would enable them to make paper more cheaply. They have stuck constantly to all-rag papers, and they have found ways to improve even them.

For instance, CRANE'S Bonds are not made from old rags collected from house to house. They are made from mill cuttings, new white rags, which impart a freshness, whiteness and crispness obtainable in no other way.

HARDING IS WABBLER COX SAYS IN ATTACK

Declares Senator Presents the "Most Pitiable Spectacle" in Our Political History.

SAYS HE CHANGED 11 TIMES

Special to The New York Times.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 12.—Taking as his text the latest statement by Senator Harding in regard to the League of Nations, Governor James M. Cox, in an address here tonight, asserted that the Republican nominee, by his vacillating attitude, "justifies neither the American people, nor the nations of the world in taking him seriously," and that he presented the "most pitiable spectacle in the political history of America."

Governor Cox said that Senator Harding's latest announcement reported his eleventh stand on the League of Nations issue. He held that the voters must be sorely confused to know where the Republican candidate stood or what he intended to do if elected President in the face of the greatest emergency in the history of the world. In fact, Governor Cox said, Senator Harding does not know himself, and admits it.

At least 15,000 persons turned out at Lafayette and gave Governor Cox a remarkable demonstration. His speech was delivered from a platform in the public square. The streets were so densely crowded for blocks that it was all but impossible to break a way through. It was one of the biggest political meetings the city has witnessed.

Sees Revolt Among Voters.

The attack upon Senator Harding tonight—and it was the climax of a series made at a dozen Illinois towns on the way here—is a part of the effort which is being made to split the ranks of the Republican Party on the League issue. Governor Cox declared today that Senator Harding's repudiation of the League had started a "virtual" revolution among the voters, which the Republican candidate now apparently was trying to put down.

"I can understand," said Governor Cox, "why the sentiment of wiggling and wabbling has been emblazoned over the billboards of America with the picture of the Senator. The candidate of the Senatorial oligarchy has a monopoly on that process, and he ought to be privileged to advertise it."

Then, as the crowd cheered, Governor Cox said that he wanted frankly to state his own position and permit the voters to draw a comparison.

"I am with all my heart and soul in favor of the League of Nations of the world," said the Governor, "and I want you to know that my position has not changed since I was nominated. It will be the same on Nov. 2; it will be the same on March 4."

Says Harding Makes 11th Change.

In his address here tonight Governor Cox said:

"I see that the moment Senator Harding returned to his front porch he made another change on the issue of the League of Nations. The threat of Senator Borah, who doubtless spoke for both himself and Senator Johnson, brought the ultimatum at Des Moines, that the Senator was against the League in any form.

"The force of the tempest of resentment which has swept th ecountry since then was felt at Marion. In consequence of this another change was made—the eleventh, by the way, since the League of Nations became an issue. The new declaration is for an association of nations. He is right back to the position assumed at Ironton, when, under the pressure of inquiry, he was compelled to admit, and I use his words literally 'I am frank in the statement that I have not in mind a single constructive idea with reference to a new association of nations.'

"This is an amazing thing to contemplate. A Senator of the United States, who served on the Committee of Foreign Relations, which had the League before it for months, is now a candidate for the Presidency of the United States. In the face of the greatest issue in all the centuries, he comes forward with a nebulous idea, and, in candor, admits that he doesn't know what it is, he does not know how he will go about it, and he has no assurance from the other nations that it will be taken seriously.

Quotes Taft Against Harding Stand.

"Just a few days ago ex-President Taft, who is attempting to keep him steady, said that there was no use in thinking about the new association, that it was not practical, and that the forty-one nations of the world that have already gone into the League would not make an entire change of base. The truth of the matter is that the vacillating attitude of Senator Harding justifies neither the American people nor the nations of the world in taking him seriously.

"It is apparent that he hasn't a single deep-seated conviction upon the subject, and that he wabbles about from one day to the other in the aimless hope that this group or that group of voters can be pleased. It is the most pitiable spectacle in the political history of America."

Then Governor Cox told the people of some of the difficulties which he said he had experienced in getting the truth before the people and fighting misrepresentation and other unfair tactics.

"I have come to the people in this campaign," he said, "I started two months ago to do it because I knew that having arrayed against me the reactionary press and the great forces of big business I would be compelled to carry my case to the people."

Reports which reached Governor Cox's train today were to the effect that the split in the ranks of the Republican voters over the vacillation of Senator Harding had assumed considerable proportions. The action of Herbert Parsons, former Republican National Committeeman from New York, in coming out for Governor Cox has been used here by the Democrats as an indication that the break has started.

Some of the news dispatches concerning Senator Harding's latest statement on the League issued at Marion carried the statement that it was decided upon after a conference with leaders who had come from the East. This was accepted on Governor Cox's train as evidence that Republican leaders who have gathered themselves about Senator Harding are alarmed by the resentment which is being shown and fear that other prominent Republicans may follow Mr. Parsons.

At Watseka, Ill., today Governor Cox received a bouquet of flowers from a mother who had lost her son in the war.

"There is nothing," said Governor Cox, "that makes a stronger appeal to my pride than to have these flowers given to me by a mother of this community. The mother heart of this nation is stirred as it has never been before. The mother heart is awakened because the mothers know the experiences through which they lived in the trying days of war and the mother realizes the importance and the humanity of bringing war to an end in the world. And God has given to the mothers of America this year the opportunity of rendering a voice in behalf of America which will be the ultimate decision and the controlling mandate in the affairs of humanity all over the world."

In an address at Chenoa, Ill., Governor Cox said:

"If we don't go into the League of Nations I look for a constantly increasing trend toward a business recession. But I believe we will be a member of the League within a few months, and I think that within a year, and perchance six months, there won't be a large nation in the world outside the League. I am in favor of every nation going in."

Governor Cox found crowds awaiting him at a dozen little towns in Illinois today as the train was on the way to Lafayette. He made a series of platform speeches, stressing the League of Nations. The Governor is brown as a berry as a result of exposure to the sun. He is a bit tired by his efforts but is standing the strain well.

Tells of Church Backing of League.

PEORIA, Ill., Oct. 12.—Governor Cox, in a speech here today, again gave prominence to religious considerations, saying that universal church indorsement had been given to the League of Nations.

"Nothing is half so important," he said, "as the conservation of our spiritual resources."

An automobile parade here through applauding crowds on the street preceded the Governor's address in a large dancing pavilion. He spoke briefly later before the Optimist Club.

On the way here early this morning, crowds at Green Valley and Pekin routed out the Governor before breakfast for brief talks. At Green Valley he spoke from the rear platform in pajamas, camouflaged in an overcoat.

Motoring to his train, Governor Cox saw a large crowd on the Courthouse grounds. He halted his car, climbed out and made an impromptu address. The delay required that the regular train to which the candidate's car was attached be held forty-five minutes.

HAYS CLAIMS SEVEN STATES.

Republicans from Coast to Coast Are Confident, Says Ex-Congressman

A gain of seven Republican United States Senators in Western States was predicted yesterday by Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, who said he had been in touch with Republican leaders in that territory by telephone, by telegraph or in person during the day.

Mr. Hays said the information he had received convinced him that Republican Senators to displace Democratic incumbents would be elected in California, Colorado, Idaho, South Dakota, Arizona, Nevada and Kentucky, and that the Republican candidates would be elected in Utah, North Dakota and Missouri, where there are stiff contests, but in which the outgoing Senators are Republicans. The information that Senator Reed Smoot of Utah seems likely to be re-elected was cited with pleasure as was the information that Senator Seldon P. Spencer seemed to be leading in Missouri and Governor Peter Norbeck in South Dakota.

Francis B. Loomis, former Assistant Secretary of State, a caller at national headquarters, said that California would give at least 100,000 plurality for Senator Harding and that the State would go Republican for Senator and Governor.

JOIN PRO-LEAGUE BODY.

Mrs. Henry Phipps and Frank Hunter Potter Enroll.

Professor Irving Fisher, head of the Pro-League Independents, the organization made up of Independents and Republicans who will vote the Democratic Presidential ticket on the League of Nations issue, announced yesterday that he had received many letters from men and women voters who were anxious to enroll themselves among the supporters of Governor Cox. One letter came from Mrs. Henry Phipps of 1,063 Fifth Avenue. Mrs. Phipps announced that she had issued a statement to Republican women in which she urged support of the League of Nations.

"The League of Nations is approved by many of our wisest and best citizens," the statement reads, "as well as by the majority of the nations of the world. We women of America know that, had it not been for our President, the greatest advocate for the League, we would not now have the privilege of the franchise. Let us join the pro-League independents who will vote for Cox and Roosevelt notwithstanding that many of them are good Republicans."

In her statement to be distributed among Republican women Mrs. Phipps quotes at length the declaration of ex-President Taft that the issue of the League "far transcends in its importance any domestic issue, and would justify and require one who believes so to ignore party ties and secure this great boon for the world and for this country."

Another recruit to the Pro-League Independents was Frank Hunter Potter, the writer on naval topics.

It was announced that Hamilton Holt, who came out for Governor Cox last Saturday, has distributed petitions addressed to "Republicans and Progressives," asking voters to repudiate the Republican ticket if they are believers in the League of Nations.

HARDING GOES SOUTH ON SPEAKING TOUR

Beeckman Accompanies Him to Chattanooga — Question of New York Address in Doubt.

FRONT-PORCH FINALE SOON

First Voters to Visit Nominee Monday—Barbecue and "Burgoo" Planned.

Special to The New York Times.

ON BOARD THE HARDING SPECIAL TRAIN, EN ROUTE TO CHATTANOOGA, Oct. 12.—Senator Harding left Marion this afternoon for a five days' speaking tour in Tennessee, Kentucky and Indiana and a meeting Saturday night in St. Louis. The Senator said that the question of making a speech in New York City was still in abeyance.

Accompanying Senator and Mrs. Harding on the private car Superb are Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Sawyer of Marion, former Senator George Sutherland of Utah, Richard Washburn Child and Judson C. Welliver, publicity director at Harding headquarters. Messrs. Sutherland and Child have been at Marion for several weeks advising Senator Harding on the campaign.

Just before the Harding special left Marion the private car Newport, occupied by Governor and Mrs. R. Livingston Beeckman of Rhode Island, was attached to the train.

The Harding party is due in Chattanooga early tomorrow morning. After a day's motoring over civil war battlefields in the neighborhood, Senator Harding will speak at a night meeting in that city. The next night, after a day of rear platform speeches in Tennessee and Kentucky, he will speak in Louisville.

Big Porch Meeting Next Monday.

The last big gathering at the Harding front porch will be held next Monday, which will be observed as "America First Day." One of the largest gatherings of the campaign is expected, in honor of the new voters—young men and women who have come to their majority since 1916, and also women who will cast Presidential votes this year for the first time.

New voters in Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Kentucky are interesting themselves to make this the campaign's largest gathering in Marion. College clubs of first voters will come from Ohio State University, Ohio Wesleyan, Capital University, at Columbus, Wittenberg College, at Springfield; Ada College and others, while several score of young men's and young women's Republican clubs have applied for places in the procession.

Many will come by automobile, and Indiana automobile organizations are marking all highways leading to Marion for the guidance of parties. Others will come on bicycles, this division being one of the important ones in the parade arrangements. As many of the visitors will come long distances and will have to stop over night in towns at some distance from Marion, arrangements are being made to accommodate them.

The parade will move at 1:30 A. M., reaching the Harding home for the opening of the meeting at 2:30. There will be one speaker for the young men, another for the young women, and Senator Harding will respond with one of the important addresses of the campaign.

This meeting has been especially encouraged by the Republican National Committee, whose chief officers, together with leading party men and women from all over the country, are expected to attend.

Nominee to Speak at "Burgoo."

A barbecue and burgoo, at which Senator Harding will speak, will be held at Jackson, Ohio, Oct. 20, by the Southern Ohio Harding Club, and is expected to draw from 50,000 to 60,000 people. A barbecue is pretty generally understood, but a burgoo is an institution peculiar to Kentucky and Southern Ohio. First, it is a concoction of meats and vegetables cooked in huge boilers, and second, it is the out-of-doors party at which this concoction is served.

Arrangements are being made on a huge scale for the occasion. There will be hundreds of feet of trenches in which to roast the fifty beeves that will be served along with the burgoo—everything free. It is said that two or three railroad cars will be required to deliver the big camp kettles used in making the burgoo.

Senator Harding will speak in the afternoon. Addresses will also be made by Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, the Hon. Frank B. Willis and Congressman Nicholas Longworth.

It is expected to make this the greatest combination barbecue and burgoo ever given. About seventy-five special trains are to come from Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia, Western Pennsylvania and Southern Indiana. Caravans of automobiles will also come from over a wide territory.

The arrangements include police plans to park 5,000 automobiles. Former service men with experience in managing camps will direct the policing. Twelve bands have been contracted for. One solid Pullman train will come with a single club from Cincinnati.

Many national party leaders have been invited for the occasion. It will be an all-day affair, with a wide variety of entertainment.

PLEASED BY BASEBALL RESULT

ON BOARD SENATOR HARDING'S SPECIAL TRAIN, Oct. 12 (Associated Press).—In the course of a short layover tonight in the Columbus railroad station, Senator Harding climbed down from his private car and chatted with a group of railroad employes about Cleveland's victory in the world's baseball series. He declared that it was "bully" to have the championship pennant remain in Ohio.

"It is certainly a fine testimonial to the honesty of the game and the players that the Cleveland team should have made a clean sweep of the four-game series in their own city and have won the world's championship," said Senator Harding later in commenting on the outcome of the series.

"They knew that they might prolong the series and thus add many dollars to the receipts for the team owners, but the money angle of the game did not influence them in the least. It shows better than anything else the soul of the game, and I am certainly proud tonight to know that an Ohio team did it.

"Of course, I wanted Cleveland to win, for it added another star to the crown of great things that Ohio has done and done so well. I think that Cleveland must especially be proud of Pitcher Coveleskie, who has three times pitched his team to victory."

COX GIVES EXPLANATION AND PALMER WILL HELP

Attorney General, Whom Nominee Criticised, Decides to Make Speeches in Campaign.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Attorney-General Palmer said today that he had decided to make a number of speeches for the Democratic national ticket.

Mr. Palmer had not intended to enter the campaign because of criticisms made against his administration by Governor Cox. It is understood that Governor Cox has made a full explanation of his speech in which he criticised the Attorney General, and therefore Mr. Palmer will make a number of speeches. His assignments have not been given him yet by the National Committee.

In the next few days the speaking campaigns of both parties will be in full swing. All of the Republican speakers of note will be busy from now until Nov. 1 and the Democratic speakers are getting ready to present a solid front in support of the League of Nations. By this time next week all of the Cabinet members will have joined the Democratic speaking force.

CONTRAST HARDING AND COX

The contrast in the replies of Governor James M. Cox and Senator Warren G. Harding to identical queries submitted to them by the engineering societies of the country was used by Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas in a speech last night before the American Association of Engineers in the United Engineering Societies Building, 25 West Thirty-ninth Street, to support his charge that it was impossible to understand the position of the Republican nominee for President on these matters, the League of Nations, or any of the issues of the campaign. Senator Robinson presented the Democratic argument, and Ellen H. Hooker the Republican argument in a presentation of the campaign issues.

The questions asked whether the two Presidential candidates favored the reduction of Governmental expenditures by the elimination of useless bureaus and the establishment of a national Department of Public Works, the appointment of an engineer on the Interstate Commerce Commission, a progressive policy of conservation of natural resources and reclamation of waste lands, and the establishment of a budget system of national appropriations.

"My reply to every one of these questions is unequivocally, yes."

Senator Harding's reply, in part, was as follows:

"It is not an easy matter for me to make a detailed reply to the inquiries conveyed in your letter, and I do not care to enter into a categorical reply to questionnaires, no matter how friendly they may be, and no matter how reputable and high standing is the source from which they come.

"My theory of a campaign is that a man's candidacy ought to be based on his formal and public utterances, though, of course, we are all of us informal enough to discuss informally many of the problems which are in the minds of various groups of our American citizenship."

Senator Harding replied to the question regarding the establishment of a Department of Public Works by saying: "I fear I should be unworthy of public confidence if I ventured to decide so important and far-reaching a question without the very fullest study."

"That is informal formality surpassing understanding," said Senator Robinson. "The replies are characteristic of the mental processes of the two candidates and are in striking contrast."

Senator Robinson quoted from numerous speeches by Senator Harding to bear out his assertion that the latter had "stood on both sides" of the League of Nations issue.

Mr. Hooker attacked the Democratic Administration for incompetency and extravagance during the war. Referring to the League of Nations issue, he said the American people would never consent to surrender to a council of foreign diplomats the power of involving them in war.

"The American people," Mr. Hooker said, "are against the Wilson League, and the sweeping Republican victory in the Maine State election is a true indication of what will happen at the election in November."

HARDING DENIES CHANGE OF VIEWS

Declares Des Moines Speech on League in Harmony with Earlier Address.

STANDS FIRM IN POSITION

Senator Answers Query Sent to Him by Editors of The Weekly Review.

The Weekly Review of 140 Nassau Street in its forthcoming issue will print telegraphic correspondence between the editors of the journal and Senator Harding in which the latter says that his remarks on the League of Nations in his Des Moines speech were in complete harmony with his utterances on the subject on Aug. 28. The article in The Weekly Review will read:

"On Oct. 9 The Weekly Review sent to Senator Harding at Marion the following telegram:

"'Your Des Moines speech is being generally interpreted as an abandonment of the position defined in your speech of Aug. 28. It is regarded as especially repudiating that part of the Aug. 28 speech in which you said that if it shall be found that the existing League 'has been so entwined and interwoven into the peace of Europe that its good must be preserved in order to stabilize the peace of that Continent, then it can be amended, or revised' into a form that would be acceptable to America. We consider it of the utmost importance that the question thus raised be promptly and authoritatively cleared up. An immediate answer to Editors The Weekly Review, 140 Nassau Street, New York, would be deeply appreciated.

"Mr. Harding returned to Marion on Oct. 11, and in the course of that day sent the following telegraphic reply, signed by his secretary:

"'Senator Harding has directed me to say in reply to your telegram of Oct. 9 that his Des Moines speech, if read in full, is in complete harmony with his speech of Aug. 28. There has been and will be no change from position of Aug. 28.'

"The commotion created by the Des Moines speech has been quite natural. The tone of that speech and its emphasis were very different from those of the careful and comprehensive statement of position which constituted the speech of Aug. 28. The Des Moines speech was heartily acclaimed by Senator Johnson and was widely regarded by persons incomparably more impartial than he as contradicting the earlier utterance. No such contradiction is contained in the actual language of the speech; but the impression to that effect was of itself a serious fact and a fact of the first importance.

"It is, therefore, with the keenest satisfaction that The Weekly Review finds, in accordance with its own interpretation of Mr. Harding's words at Des Moines, that these constitute no departure whatever from the position so deliberately and so accurately set forth by the Republican candidate on Aug. 28."

BORAH OFF TO HELP MOSES

But He Still Refuses Assignments from Republican Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Senator Borah left Washington today to make speeches in New Hampshire in behalf of the re-election of Senator Moses, one of the "irreconcilable" group on the League.

While he has not changed his speaking plans and still refuses to take engagements from the Republican National Committee, Mr. Borah announced that he would speak two days in Indiana and two days in Ohio, where he will continue to support candidates for the Senate opposed to the ratification of the League of Nations covenant. Senator Borah is scheduled to speak at Gary, Ind., on Oct. 19, and at Terre Haute the following day. He is to speak in Cleveland on Oct. 21, and in Cincinnati the next day.

Before leaving here he said that he was more convinced than ever that the people were opposed to having the Government become a member of the League of Nations.

door open the woman jumped up from the bed—she sat up in bed. That woke her up, so I went to the bed."

Pasquale said he took "around $300," that he had some in his pocket and could not tell "for sure" the exact amount.

Questioned regarding the identity of the aged woman, Pasquale said her first name was Rose and she was about 60 years of age. He said he had read in the newspapers that the police had arrested a girl for the murder of the woman. When asked whether he had intended killing the woman he said he had not; but he added that he "done it."

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—If August Pasquale, the self-confessed kidnapper of Blakely Coughlin, is telling the truth, his confession that he killed a woman in Philadelphia clears up the mystery surrounding the death of Mrs. Rose Ackerman, 75 years old, who conducted a lodging house at 908 North Eighth Street. The aged woman was found dead in bed with her skull fractured on June 1. Her 12-year-old granddaughter was sleeping in the room when she was killed. The girl could not explain how her grandmother met her death, and she was detained by the police as a material witness. The woman was said to have carried all her money in her clothes, and the police were never able to learn whether robbery was the motive for killing her.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Oct. 12.—Because of the many false clues August Pasquale is said to have given those working on the Coughlin kidnapping case since he confessed the crime, neither the Norristown police nor the Coughlins place much credence in his latest story of having killed the baby.

Magistrate O. H. Lenhart declared today that Pasquale had not yet told the truth, and added:

"I cannot tell all that I know, but the real story will be out within a few days, and it will be found that Blakely Coughlin is alive. I am certain of that and expect to hear of Mrs. Coughlin making a complete identification of her baby before Friday."

HAMMONTON, N. J., Oct. 12.—After the departure of Captain Gearhart of the Pennsylvania State Police, who yesterday searched the premises in the rear of the house purchased by August Pasquale, volunteers continued to search all night for the body of little Blakely Coughlin, whose murder Pasquale has confessed. The searchers looked in a section within several miles of Egg Harbor City, but without success.

PUT TAXES BEFORE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

COUNTRY AT TURNING POINT

Public Opinion About Equally Divided on the Question of Higher Tariff Protection.

More than 2,040 out of 3,073 men of affairs in all of the United States consider that the question of reduced taxation is more important than the League of Nations, while about the same proportion report that a majority of the people, wage earners included, favor the abolition of the excess profits tax and a reduction of the income tax. This is shown in replies which have been received to questionnaires sent out by Harris, Winthrop & Co., bankers. The bankers have put the replies together into a booklet and in explaining the reasons for the investigation say: "America now seems to be at another important turning point in its economic history."

"If the people are wise in choosing the road that they elect to follow," they continue; "if the vagarious theorizing, the ill considered taxation and the extravagance that were perhaps unavoidably incident to the war shall be succeeded by common sense methods and sensible, economy in both our private and public expenditures there is, we think, every reason to expect that the necessary deflation can be effected without distress.

"If, on the other hand, there is any substantial portion of our population that is still disposed to believe that a Utopia can be created by statute, that socialism makes for happiness and prosperity or that wealth can be produced without work then we are indeed in danger.

"In regard to the tariff, which was one of the subjects inquired about, the answers indicate that public opinion is about equally divided between a desire for higher tariff protection and a maintenance of the present duties."

A question as to liberalization of the law in order to permit the sale of light wines and beer, elicited many replies, a majority of which favored the proposed liberalization. In the Northwestern district, comprising Minnesota, Wisconsin and the Dakotas, opinion is equally divided as to the desirability of modifying the law. The verdict elsewhere seemed to indicate that a large portion of the national territory is sentimentally "humid" or "moist" if, indeed, it is not "wet."

Collectively considered, the answers to the questions which have to do with commercial and financial conditions seemed to indicate a qualified optimism.

With regard to the industrial and social conditions seven questions were asked. The bankers say that it is the answers to these questions that give them the most concern and add that, although it is plain that there is comparatively little unemployment and that wages are upon the whole stationary or advancing, there is continued efficiency and a far more widespread effort to promote radicalism and communism than they had been willing to believe.

WARNING BY PALMER OF ELECTION FRAUDS

Federal District Attorney Francis G. Caffey yesterday received from Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer a letter which had been sent to all United States District Attorneys warning them of possible election frauds and urging them to watch their districts carefully, both before and after the election on Nov. 2, with a view to prosecuting all persons who may be guilty of a violation of the Congressional act designed to "prevent corrupt practices in the election of Senators, Representatives or Delegates in Congress."

"Information has come to the department," wrote the Attorney General, "that in many States political organizations have made it a practice to distribute large sums of money at or about election time to individuals 'for the transportation of voters,' 'for the dissemination of information,' 'for getting out the vote,' 'watchers' and for other similar alleged purposes; that in many cases as many persons have been paid for such service in election districts as to indicate plainly the real purpose to be to secure the votes of such persons for or against some particular candidates.

"You should give publicity to the fact that the agents of the Government propose to make diligent inquiry into all expenditures which may have the appearance of having been made for improper purposes under this law, and that conduct of all persons paying or receiving moneys for such purpose will be carefully scrutinized with the view of determining the real intent of the parties.

"You may call upon the Bureau of Investigation for any assistance that you require in this matter, both before and on Election Day, and any violations of this law which are brought to your notice should be promptly investigated and the results obtained by investigators carefully considered with a view to prompt action if the facts warrant."

The Attorney General pointed out that a violation of the act carried a punishment of a fine of not more than $1,000 or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both.

Attends Burial of Daughter's Slayer

In disregard of the request that he be buried in the same grave with his fiancée whom he had murdered, the body of Harry Gleason of 164 Twenty-third Street, Brooklyn, was interred yesterday in Greenwood Cemetery. His fiancée, Elsie Dohl, was buried in Linden Hill Cemetery on Sunday. Asserting that she forgave Gleason for killing her daughter and for his own suicide, Mrs. Hannah Lundman, mother of the girl, attended the funeral and she and her husband sent a wreath with the inscription, "Intended son-in-law."

"The Age of Innocence"

New York Society has had fascinating periods, but none more so than when the original Four Hundred, in dazzling array, were passing their days and nights at the opera and at their balls. Forty-Second Street was then far uptown, and in open victorias, behind their blue ribbon horses, the parents of the social leaders of today drove up Fifth Avenue, past the brown stone front mansions they were just building.

This New York, in its days of innocence, has received perfect delineation by the foremost American woman novelist in a novel that, with "The House of Mirth," forms the outstanding depiction of New York Society.

"The Age of Innocence" is a story of a woman rebellious against the stern social code of the day, and a man, who, though fast bound by inherited social allegiance, yet feels the call of a newer day.

MILLER ANSWERS CAPITALIST CHARGE

Says He Favors Welfare Legislation and Asserts His Corporation's Record Is Good.

TURNS TO NATIONAL ISSUES

Asks If New York Wants to Send Its Boys to Europe to Fight and Assails Taxes.

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, Oct. 12.—Judge Miller went on the defensive tonight replying to Governor Smith's charges that he represented capital and that he was indifferent to any program of social welfare legislation. An answer to this charge featured Judge Miller's talk here tonight and it ran through the nine other addresses he made during the trip northward from Troy, last night's halting place.

Holding to his policy of making national issues the basis of his campaign he incorporated in all his speeches his interpretation of President Wilson's statement in regard to the Spencer controversy.

Tomorrow the party will make an early get-away with speeches in Malone and other northerly points, reaching Watertown in time for a big night meeting.

Judge Miller, who is general counsel to a large Syracuse corporation, denied that he was blind to the need for legislation in the interests of workers and said that if Governor Smith "had taken the trouble to inquire" he would have found that the Syracuse corporation's record for dealing with its employes had been a good one.

"The Governor says 'let us not talk about the great national issues, but please talk about State issues and let us talk about social welfare.' Well, I put the proposition that the social welfare, the welfare of every man and woman in this commonwealth is, first of all, dependent upon retaining in our own hands the decision of the question as to whether American boys shall be sent across the water to fight. I say secondly, that the social welfare, the welfare of all our people, is dependent upon lifting from the shoulders of the taxpayers of this State the burden of $1,400,000,000, which the State now has to contribute to the wasteful administration that we have got in Washington.

"I say that the social welfare of the people of the State is next involved in putting an end to one-man government to the end that the great constructive problems that now for two years have been awaiting decision may be undertaken and be solved in the interest of all of the people.

"I don't want you to get the impression from what I have said that I am not in favor of every legitimate effort that can be made to promote social and industrial justice because the Republican Party stands and always has stood, and I stand, for every legitimate effort that can be made in that direction.

"But I want to tell you that the thing of most importance in that respect is to promote industry to give something to divide, to give an opportunity to the application of the great principle of equality of opportunity, and encouraging and developing American industry to give employment to American labor at the best wages that the industry can afford to pay."

Turning to discussion of the controversy started by Senator Spencer, Judge Miller outlined the basis of the debate and then said:

"You see in the morning's papers a statement which has taken them evidently a week to prepare. They call it a 'version' of what the President said to Serbia and Rumania. It states that underlying the contract the treaty was the expectation on the part of Serbians and Rumanians that if they got into trouble, if these covenants were not regarded and kept, that America would send its army and navy abroad to see that they were enforced. President Wilson substituted the word 'expectations' for 'guarantee.' He said to these people, according to his own version, that they expected we would do that, send the army and navy abroad. He did not tell them that their expectations were unfounded. Did he mean to say that we would disappoint them?"

The Republican nominee declared that the "country has made up its mind to have none of this sorry business."

Talks from the rear of the special train were given at Mechanicsville, Ballston, Saratoga Springs, Fort Edward, Port Henry and Westport. About 500 heard the speech in the Empire Theatre in Glens Falls and about the same number were in the theatre at Ticonderoga.

Because of the number who sought to hear the Judge at the night meeting in Plattsburg it was necessary to hold an overflow meeting in the Court House. At this meeting the Republican candidate amplified his defense against Governor Smith's charge that he represented corporation interests opposed to welfare laws. He also recorded himself as in favor of the eight-hour law and attributed to Republican Legislatures the whole mass of social welfare legislation now on the statute books.

"Does the Governor wish to imply," said Judge Miller, "that it is a dishonorable thing to be counsel of a corporation? If he does, I am willing to leave that to the people of the State to decide. I have to plead guilty to the charge. I am the counsel and a Director and even an executive officer of a large industrial manufacturing corporation which has a number of branch cornorations. The Governor says that because of that fact I am viewing these questions from the corporation's standpoint."

ASKS PRO-LEAGUERS TO DROP HARDING

Cites Letters of Those Who Oppose Separate German Peace and Would Save Covenant.

An appeal to Republicans and Independents who favor the League of Nations to drop Senator Harding and rally to the support of Governor Cox, who is advocating the "only League of Nations that can ever exist," was issued yesterday by Chairman George White of the Democratic National Committee. The Chairman said he would call the attention of the friends of the League in other parties to the enrollment under the Republican banner "of every pro-Kaiserist in America and every disloyal element."

"Senator Harding this morning tried to revive his 'Bush League,' his association of nations which will not associate," said Chairman White. "All sensible people know that the forty nations now composing the major League, the League of Nations, will not abandon it at Mr. Harding's behest, and that if he were to form his separate association after his separate German peace it would have to be composed of Mexico, Bolshevist Russia, Germany, Austria, Turkey and the United States.

"The only definite thing he has ever said was in his Des Moines speech. Therefore no matter how often hereafter he may wiggle and wabble the line will be formed on that declaration. 'I do not want to face these obligations,' he said. 'I want to turn my back on them. I stand for rejection.' That statement made a square issue and rendered it certain that the only hope to secure our adherence to the League of Nations or any modification of it is through the election of Governor Cox. The only reason that can be assigned for Senator Harding's shifting statements since then is that he wants pro-Leaguers to vote for him under a misconception.

"I appeal to all Independents and Republicans who want us to join the existing League of Nations, which is the only League that can ever exist, to vote with us. Their certainty can come only in the election of Governor Cox. He offers them the League which expresses their conviction of international insurance against war, which the struggle of 1914-1918 proved to be absolutely necessary. To those who see imperfections in the covenant he offers any reservations which may tend to emphasize our ideals of world peace and to specify the immutable processes of our Constitution.

"I call the attention of these friends of the League in other parties to the enrollment under the Republican banner of every pro-Kaiserist in America and of every disloyal element. Of course, hundreds of thousands of patriots are enrolled there also, but they are in very bad company. I call the attention of these friends of the League to the triumph of its enemies. 'Poor Taft,' said Hiram Johnson today. 'Let him save his face so long as he doesn't save the League.' I appeal to these friends of the League who oppose a separate peace with Germany and the surrender of all gained by our victory on the battlefields to range themselves with us under these standards: 'No separate peace with Germany. Save the League.'"

Chairman White said he is receiving scores of letters from men and women throughout the country who style themselves "Independents," "Progressives" and "former Republicans," saying that they are going to vote for Cox and Roosevelt because of the fight they are making in behalf of the League of Nations. Typical, he said, of the letters received was one from E. L. Newby of Washington, D. C., which read:

"If it's in order for a lifelong Republican who never voted for a Democrat in his life, but whose Americanism is too strong for his partisanism and will vote for Cox, to make a suggestion as to a party slogan, let me offer 'No hyphenated treaty!'"

URGES WOMEN TO VOTE.

City Club's Bulletin Tells Them to Study Local Candidates.

The Women's City Club, 22 Park Avenue, issued its Quarterly Bulletin yesterday, giving instructions to voters on the election. The bulletin contains a complete list of candidates, national, State and local, to be voted upon in New York City. Its leading editorial article deplores a lack of political interest on the part of women, as shown by the fact that less than half of the qualified women voters are enrolled in a political party, and hence unable to take themselves felt in the selection of candidates. The article says:

"The candidates for all the public offices to be filled in this State are the choices of a party machine. They may be admirable candidates, every one of them. If they are, that is no credit to the seven-eighths of the voters who sat at home and indulged in the favorite American pastime of 'letting George do it.' It is no credit to the seven-eighths of the voters whose absence from the primaries proved their deep-seated indifference to the whole problem of governmental housekeeping."

The bulletin urges women to give attention to the State and local candidates as well as to the Presidential candidates. Articles presenting the issues of the campaign are contributed by Frank L. Cobb for the Democrats, Allan Dawson for the Republicans, Charles W. Ervin for the Socialists, Edward W. Clark for the Prohibition Party and George Soule for the Farmer-Labor Party.

EX-CONVICT SLAIN JUST OFF BROADWAY

that led up to the shooting. Millie's story that he was in the candy store was upheld by the proprietor.

The police got their clearest account of the shooting and chase from a fidgetty ten-year-old boy, the son of the proprietor of the candy store. The boy, William Halpern, was in the street in front of the store and gave chase to the fugitives, running neck and neck with Policeman Nicholas Moore of Traffic Squad B, who left his Broadway post when he heard the shots.

Willie became so nervous when he was asked to go to the police station to tell his story that Captain Walsh and Detective Wood thought it would be wise to tell him that he was merely helping the police and that no suspicion was directed against him.

Willie Fears "a Licking."

"I don't mind seeing a guy shot up and killed or helping a bunch of cops on a case," said the sophisticated Willie, "but my mother told me she'd give me a licking if I didn't hurry home tonight to do my examples because teacher said I wasn't good at arithmetic."

Captain Walsh settled this by giving him a note that would satisfy both mother and teacher, and sent him glowing on his way with the official thanks of the Police Department for his "cooperation." The detectives said Willie had a clear story of the shooting, and saw more than his elders, and he won't have to recite in classes today. But he has a good yarn for his "gang."

Broadway's crowds swept over the incident so quickly that many witnesses were lost by the police, and aside from losing a step or two on traffic while Policeman Moore was in the chase, the street seemed normal again ten minutes after some 2,000 persons had been watching a "thriller" in real life.

WALL ST. BROKER ROBBED.

Says He Was Attacked After Ride in Taxi with Two Strangers.

Two men running west in 100th Street between Second and Third Avenues shortly before midnight attracted the attention of Patrolman John Murray of the East 104th Street Station. The policeman caught up with one of them, who surrendered after a brief struggle. Then Murray led his prisoner back to Second Avenue and in a cellar stairway near the corner he found a man lying in a dazed condition.

At the East 104th Street Station the man found on the stairway recovered sufficiently to tell the police that he was Randolph Rose, a Wall Street broker, living at 62 West 115th Street. He said that earlier in the evening he had met the prisoner and another man in a cafe and that the three had got into a taxicab, which took them to Second Avenue and 100th Street. There, he said, the two strangers attacked him and left him lying on the stairway. In the prisoner's pocket the police found a gold watch and chain which Rose said were his and about $90 in cash. The prisoner said he was John Winkler, a machinist, of 141 West 100th Street. He was held on a charge of robbery. A charge of intoxication was entered against Rose at the police station.

DEMOCRAT TO AID HARDING.

Westchester Man "Matches President" with Check for Republicans.

A. Hennen Morris, of Westchester, a life-long Democrat, sent a check for $500 to the Republican National Committee yesterday and announced that he was going to vote for Senator Harding, Republican nominee for President. In telling his reasons for "matching the President" with a contribution to the opposite party, Mr. Morris said:

"I have been, as you know a life-long Democrat, and still feel myself a member of the true Democratic Party as created by its founders and true leaders. But I am opposed to Wilsonism, which is no longer democracy but one-man power in its most dangerous form. The League of Nations, as proposed by Wilson, is a pure delusion, whilst his dallying with the Socialists, Communists and extreme theorists is a threat to our institutions and an invitation to class government."

EXPECT WILSON MESSAGE.

World Brotherhood Congress Discusses Peace Outlook.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—World peace will come only when the principles of brotherhood as laid down by Christ have been adopted by all nations, the World Brotherhood Congress was told today by the Rev. Samuel Zane Batten of Philadelphia and the Rev. Herbert Dunnico of London. Both speakers declared that the World War resulted from the diplomacy of Europe, which they characterized as "sordid and dirty."

The congress received word that at tomorrow night's session Under Secretary of State Davis would transmit to the delegates a message from President Wilson. William J. Bryan will be one of the speakers at the session.

America's Discovery Celebrated.

Under the auspices of Union Benefica Espanola, a society with about 3,000 members, a dinner and dance was held last night at the Hotel Astor to commemorate the discovery of America. Ernesto C. Perez, Consul General of Argentina, presided. Dr. Rodolfo Garcia Arlos, a lawyer of Argentina; Alejandro Beres, Consul General of Spain; Victor Andres Belaundre, former Peruvian Ambassador and a special envoy of San Marco University in Peru, and Professor Federico Onis of Salamanca University and Columbia University, were the principal speakers.

The True Worth of a Shoe

THE true worth of a shoe is dependent solely upon the goodness of the shoe itself, just as the true worth of anything is determined from its good qualities.

True worth and price should not be confused; the former is permanent, while the latter is not.

In the 50 years that we have been making shoes for the people of America our prices have been based entirely upon the true worth of our shoes, and that worth is honest leathers, honest materials and honest workmanship.

It may be concluded then that from the thousands of men, women and children wearing COWARD shoes, their true worth has been recognized.

SIX MORE MATCH PRESIDENT'S GIFT

Add $3,000 to Democratic Fund to Spread Information About the League.

TOTAL NOW UP TO $59,500

Chairman White Assails Drug Store Presidential Poll as Designed to Aid Republicans.

Three thousand dollars were added yesterday to the "Match the President" fund to be used by the Democratic National Committee for educational propaganda regarding the League of Nations, making the total fund to date $59,500. Six $500 contributions were received from Mattie J. Zimmerman Boorse, Norristown, Pa., Mabel Choate, Stockbridge, Mass., Hubert L. Bolen, Oklahoma City, Okla., W. J. Curtis, New York City, Arthur V. Tedcastle, Boston, Mass., and David L. Lawrence, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Chairman White, of the Democratic National Committee, repudiated yesterday as partial the Presidential poll now being conducted by the United Drug Company through its 8,000 stores in various parts of the country. He said evidence in his possession forced him to the conclusion that the poll had been, if it is not now being, used to create sentiment in favor of the Republican Presidential nominee rather than to ascertain fairly and accurately the relative strength of the opposing candidates.

"On Sept. 15, 1920, about the time the poll was started," said Mr. White, "H. L. Simpson of Boston, sales manager of the United Drug Company, which owns or controls all of the Rexall stores, wrote a letter to one T. F. Shinney, 39 High Street, Everett, Mass., a salesman of the United Drug Company, advising him to 'talk politics to his trade.'

"'If you feel prompted to do your part toward the return of a Republican business administration,' the sales manager write his subordinate, 'I say, boy, go to it.'"

Chairman White told of a marginal note printed on the letter by the Republican Committee, giving the impression that the drug company indorsed its publication. The Simpson letter was disavowed by Louis K. Liggett, President of the company, Mr. White said, but he did not ask the committee to announce his disavowal until Oct. 5, after the letter had been widely circulated.

To talk about a ladder is one thing —to ascend it is quite another.

To get to the top, a man must have decision to start with the first round and courage to keep a-going until he climbs the last round.

Filling your mind with books at the University and not making use of what you learn is like filling bags with wool, of which a cartload is passing this car—of no good until it is woven into yarn and into cloth.

This Store, to be what the public expects, must put to daily use all its resources.

BEAUTIFUL Brocades and Cretonnes—Just from England.

In such rich and gorgeous colors as London has not seen for many years. Deep Royal blue, gold, ruby, green, rose, Burgundy, among the shades in the collection of silk brocades. One brocade in the colors and design of an old Paisley shawl is particularly lovely.

Half inch checks in brilliant color combinations, such as purple, gold and black; green, black and gold; blue, black and gold furnish just the exotic touch in pillow, runner or upholstery for a small, stiff chair. $10 to $20 a yard.

Almost like velvet is one large floral design printed on a warp with the rough warp characteristic of antiques; others divide their allegiance between the shadowy printing which has no right side or wrong side, the richness of tapestry designs and the vivid colors and bold patterns of the exotic moderns. $1 inches wide, $1.65 to $2.25; 50 in. wide, $2.25 to $8.50.

Fourth Gallery, New Building.

EXQUISITE Orenburg Scarfs—only $3.75.

Lacey, filmy scarfs, knitted of shetland wool, made in the most lovely soft colors imaginable, in two shapes—long and narrow, or square.

The designs are as fine as those of old-country laces, as delicate as the traceries on an old Persian shawl.

Many smart women have little breakfast jackets and enchanting negligees made of these lovely scarfs, since they are as becoming as tinted chiffon and as practical as a wool sweater.

Colors—pale smoke shade, cafe au lait, an indescribable soft rose, blue, and all white, as well as in combinations of color and white arranged in stripes that are very lovely.

BABY'S Furniture Selected with a mother's Exquisite taste.

In William and Mary style is an ivory enameled set, daintily ornamented with a few wee garlands, of Dresden inspiration. And in each piece of furniture is a panel through which ribbon may be run.

The set includes a bed, with springs and a drop side, $35—a wardrobe $100—hamper $20—clothes tree $6.95—scales $25.

Another set is constructed of California redwood, ivory enameled. Hand-carved designs of rabbits and other equally interesting beasties are emphasized by a delicate pink background. The set includes bed, blanket chest, high chair, rocker, wee chair, chest of drawers, clothes tree and a screen, 8 pieces.

Each piece will be sold separately.

Warm white blankets, satin bound and with borders of pink or blue, are $5.50, $8.50 and $11.50.

Sheer cotton sheets, hand hemstitched, are $1.95 to $2.50.

Pillow cases are fashioned in the simple hemstitched manner, hand embroidered in the Porto Rican fashion or, most beautiful of all, made by the French needlewomen. These exquisite cases are bordered with Valenciennes lace or scalloped, edged with pin tucks and trimmed with a bit of fine embroidery. $1.95 to $20.

Gaiety of Color in Fine Old Furniture

Au Quatrieme

IN the room where the background of walls and floor are neutral in tone, color may be beautifully supplied by a few rare pieces of antique furniture.

For Instance

For the little breakfast room that is rather pale in tone, and that needs the character and gaiety of vivid color, are a set of old red lacquer Venetian chairs with high, slender backs and with all their edges outlined in gold. These chairs are upholstered with old striped silk and gold and green blue. Price $250 a set of four.

For a large room that needs a note rather high in color, and at the same time very light and charming, is a delightfully squat old commode of pale canary yellow with gold lacquered and scrolled edges. The interior of this commode is painted light blue, so that the effect when the doors are open is altogether charming. Price $400.

A set of six Venetian chairs painted deep cerulean blue and lined with gold are very lovely for a drawing room. Price $1,000 a set.

A fine Venetian secretary desk has the applied figures in dark green and red and brown, so that the general tone is low in key, but the interior of the desk is painted a brilliant lacquer red with gold chinoiserie figures, and the effect of the open desk is one of vivid color. This desk is particularly gay because it has a mirror set in each door in the scroll top. Price $1,200.

JUAREZ A MECCA FOR DRY AMERICANS

ALL ARE AMERICAN OWNED

Mexican Officials Blame Us for Granting Border Permits to the Thirsty.

Special to The New York Times.

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico, Oct. 12.—Tia Juana's famous "road to hell" is duplicated in the city of Juarez. Saloons, gambling houses and other vice joints are wide open. Hundreds of "dry" Americans, both male and female, daily visit the border city in search of liquor and excitement.

In a study of the number of saloons one finds that in a space of 1,000 feet, from the Custom House to a gambling hall where hundreds play the old game of keno, eighteen saloons exist, all owned by Americans. These saloons range from pretentious mahogany-fitted bars to the small, dirty "hole in the wall" hidden under the sidewalks. Only one or two real businesses not connected with liquor can be found in all this stretch of street.

The famous gambling hall now used as a keno home is crowded daily. Society women, mixing with El Paso's most notorious demimonde, rubbing shoulders with drunks, crowd the tables, eager to make wagers.

One of the chief complaints of Juarez is that men not connected with the "booze" industry—crooks, pickpockets, strong-arm men—have taken up residence in the city. Drunks are common sights on the street after dark, and the police are kept busy preventing drunken rows. Fistfights are common.

A number of Juarez officials blame the United States for this condition, as they say that while they have no objection to visitors who can take a drink without abusing it the Government officials in the United States should refuse to give permits for crossing to those who are known to be habitual drunks.

NIXON ANSWERS ATTACK.

Service Commissioner Finds Political Motive in Criticism of Him.

That part of the campaign book issued by the Republican State Committee which attacks the Public Service Commission and unfavorably compares the present single-headed commission with the old five-headed one created by the Republicans was answered yesterday by Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon, who says that the book represents an attempt to manufacture public sentiment in favor of the Republican candidates. While Mr. Nixon does not allude to the matter in his statement, is is the opinion of those especially interested in the commission and its work that the Republican Party is committed to a return to the old form of commission and that if it wins the present commission will be legislated out of office and five Republican commissioners, as of old, will be appointed to fill its place.

Motor of Monarchs and Monarch of Motors

The Principle That Saves Principal

The principle involved in the design of the Willys-Knight Motor is so mechanically perfect that very little principal is involved in its maintenance.

It has no valves to grind, its carbon deposit is negligible, and continuous use simply puts it in finer trim, for it is a feature of the Knight Sleeve-Valve Motor that it actually improves with use.

It is a car of magnificent distances, cumulative power and ascending efficiency, whose assessments for maintenance are lighter than on any car not operated on the sleeve-valve principle.

TEXTILE MILLS

A year or two ago we designed and built two mill buildings for a prominent interest in Scranton, Pa. Shortly after the work was completed the client wrote us expressing his satisfaction. An extract from his letter follows:

"... I can only say that all of the dealings that the writer has had with your firm have been the most cordial, and not only that, but your work has been satisfactory both as to character and the promptness with which it was executed. To sum up the whole matter in its entirety, our relations with your company have been satisfactory in the superlative degree, and it goes without saying that any further work which we may have to do in the future will naturally gravitate toward you."

A relationship like this is significant, and indicates the kind of service we can render. If you contemplate textile mill construction or engineering or construction of the kind listed above we shall be glad to confer with you and tell you what our methods and experience are.

KILLS HIS PRISONER IN BATTLE ON ROOF

MANY WITNESS STRUGGLE.

Bullet in Heart Ends Combat with West Indian, Pursued for Insulting a Woman.

Persons occupying upper floor apartments in the Great Northern Hotel and neighboring apartment houses were held breathless, thrilled and horrified by turns, for twenty minutes yesterday afternoon as they watched a fight for life between a policeman and his prisoner on the roof of 989 Sixth Avenue, at Fifty-sixth Street. Both, they saw, were struggling for possession of the policeman's pistol. The battle twice was carried to the roof's edge, and it seemed inevitable that both should pitch headlong to the yard six floors below.

By a great effort the policeman manoeuvred his opponent back to the centre of the roof, and while the struggle was hidden from view by a chimney, the many witnesses heard a shot. Then the tussle was renewed near the edge, and it seesawed back and forth for fully five minutes. The policeman, handicapped, it was evident, by a heavy raincoat, apparently was getting the worst of it. His assailant gradually pushed him nearer the edge.

Then a man in a sailor's uniform ran across from the roof of 102 West Fifty-sixth Street and by sheer strength dragged both combatants to the centre of the stage. The "sailor" struck the civilian with a wooden club, apparently with no effect. The policeman, his balance recovered and still retaining his pistol, dashed after his antagonist as the latter attempted to flee through the roof door of 987 Sixth Avenue. Here there was another clinch, and when the policeman attempted to club his prisoner with the butt end of his pistol the man grasped the butt, and for a moment had the "drop." But he couldn't grasp the trigger.

Shot Through the Heart.

A quick movement by the policeman brought him into possession of the business end of the weapon. He fired and his man dropped into a basket of newly washed clothes, a bullet through his heart.

The policeman was Martin Gill of the West Forty-seventh Street Station, who served in France as a member of Company A, 165th Infantry. He received the Medaille Militaire and the Croix de Guerre from France and won the Distinguished Service Cross for valiant work at the head of his company during the fighting at Langres St. George.

His prisoner, who was killed instantly, was identified as Rafael Cotin, a West Indian negro of 232 West Fifty-second Street, a dishwasher in a restaurant in Sixth Avenue near Fifty-seventh Street. He came to the United States several months ago.

Gill was standing at Sixth Avenue and West Fifty-sixth Street at 1:10 o'clock when a young white woman approached him and declared she had been insulted by a "Spaniard," who disappeared through the doorway of 989 Sixth Avenue as she approached the policeman. Gill asked the woman how he could identify the man, and the young woman supplied an accurate description, even to the gray soft shirt the man wore. When Gill entered the building he saw Cotin standing on the stairs.

"He had a look of terror in his eyes," Gill said as he told the story when Dr. Charles Norris, the Chief Medical Examiner, arrived at the scene. "He ran up the stairs and I followed him to the roof. I found the door admitting to the roof slammed shut and when I opened it the man now dead dove at me and I fell down the stairs. I guess I had tripped over my raincoat in some way.

"I went up again and pushed the door open, at the same time reaching for my gun—we don't carry nightsticks now until the night tour.

Clinched on the Roof.

"When I pushed the roof door open a second time I ducked quickly to avoid a second rush and we clinched. The man seemed to be possessed of the strength of a maniac. I intended to hit him on the head with the gun for resisting arrest, but when he nearly took the pistol away from me I had to fight to save my own life. We nearly fell off the roof twice."

It was James McQueeney of 102 West Fifty-sixth Street, garbed in a sailor's white duck uniform, who went to the aid of the policeman. McQueeney explained he was a bookkeeper and that he occasionally wore the uniform about the house.

"I was told of the fight on the roof and got there just in time to save both from falling off the slippery roof. Both Gill's legs were hanging off into space and his two overshoes had fallen to the yard," McQueeney said. "He did not want to shoot the man and had attempted to club him with the pistol. Finally he had to shoot to save his own life."

Dr. Norris and Dr. Benjamin Schwars, Assistant Medical Examiner, who examined Cotin's body, said that the man had been shot twice, the first bullet having grazed his chest. Five minutes elapsed, witnesses said, between the first and second shot.

Dr. Norris said that a superficial examination indicated that Cotin was demented. The body remained on the roof of 989 Sixth Avenue for several hours while members of the Homicide Squad took the testimony of witnesses.

The woman who made the complaint to Gill could not be found and up to a late hour last night she had not reported at the West Forty-seventh Street station.

Mrs. Priscilla Collier, a negress, of 326 West Fifty-second Street, identified Cotin's body. Mrs. Collier said that Cotin had taken a room at 326 West Fifty-second Street two weeks ago upon his arrival from Santo Domingo. He could speak no English, she said. Through an employment agency to which she referred him Cotin recently obtained a place as a dishwasher.

Gill was paroled in the custody of the captain of the West Forty-seventh Street station house.

Several weeks ago Gill rescued Mrs. Irene Lawlor Miller, a writer, who attempted to drown herself in Central Park lake after she had torn up her marriage license. Gill at that time had a post in West Fifty-ninth Street. Two weeks ago he rescued Mrs. Elmer Brown, wife of a Danbury, Conn., banker, when she evaded her nurse and jumped off a foot-bridge into Central Park lake.

Gill's war feat was performed on Oct. 15, 1918, when he took command of his company after his lieutenant was shot and killed. Single-handed he captured a number of Germans. He was cited and decorated.

Every one interested in the progress of science, particularly as it applies to improved business methods, should read this good booklet. Write for "The Typewriter Plus"

THE Noiseless Typewriter is as welcome to the stenographer as to the executive.

By eliminating the click-click, it makes the isolation of stenographers unnecessary and permits you to enjoy the full use of the telephone.

Before, your ear was in competition with the neighboring din; or else, speaking very briskly, you commanded quiet.

Now you need not interrupt the labors of your secretary even during a long distance conversation.

The first morning with the Noiseless Typewriter in your office seems blessedly unreal! Such peaceful quiet! Conversation in ordinary modulated tones. Low voiced dictation with other typewriters busily writing nearby. No nerve-racking noise anywhere.

Thinking is a noiseless process and abhors confusion. Insistent distracting clatter impairs the power to think quickly and clearly.

PUTNAM SAYS IRISH PREVENTED LECTURE

Small but Well Organized Group There to Represent Sinn Fein, He Charges.

CALLS POLICE INEFFICIENT

Assertion That He Ever Said American Revolution Was a Mistake "Silly Lie," He Declares.

Major George Haven Putnam, who for alleged British sympathies was howled down when he tried to deliver a lecture in Erasmus High School, Brooklyn, on Monday night, made a statement yesterday to nail "that silly lie" that he had ever said that the American Revolution was a mistake and that he regretted that the two countries had severed parental relations. He charged that he had been hooted by a small, and on the face of it well organized, group of Irish sympathizers and that they had been helped by the inefficiency of the police.

"The antagonism," he said, "did not come from the audience, which was made up of decent and very intelligent people of the neighborhood. It came from an organized gang of hoodlums, men and women. They were there to represent the Sinn Fein and said so. Their talk was about the wrongs of Ireland, which was not my subject. A number of questions were put to me, but they did not give me the opportunity of answering. The antagonism was not based upon anything in my lecture, because the noise prevented me from beginning. It had the effect of concerted action on the part of an Irish group to prevent anything being said that would further friendly relations between America and England.

"The story that I ever said the Revolutionary War was a mistake is a silly lie. It goes back to a speech I made in London on July 4, 1918. That meeting was called by Lord Bryce, who presided and who made the first address. The Government was officially represented by Winston Churchill, Minister of Munitions. My talk was in line with addresses made by Lord Bryce and Mr. Churchill, and with the history of the Revolution by Trevelyan, the Englishman.

Fought Against German King.

"I took the ground with them that America in the Revolution had been fighting against a German King using German troops, who had imposed a Prussianized Government on Great Britain and was trying to do the same with the colonies. I pointed out that English leaders of that day were in sympathy with the colonies, such men as Lord Chatham, Fox, Burke and popular leaders like John Wilkes and Horne Took; that many leading generals forfeited their careers rather than serve against America and that the mass of the English people were with us, realizing that we were fighting for liberal government for English-speaking people.

"I pointed out that the Republic founded by our forefathers had been able to do its part, shoulder to shoulder, with the mother country and France, in saving representative government to the world, overthrowing militarism and making impossible government by divine right. As a result of that meeting was organized the Union of English Speaking People, with Mr. Balfour as President for Great Britain and Mr. Taft as President for the United States. I was appointed First Vice President and given the task of organizing an American division of the union.

"From the beginning I have held that it was only through full harmony of purpose and action on the part of the English speaking people of the world that the League of Nations could be maintained and made effective. I hold that the League is the ideal of the twentieth century and the hope of humanity.

"These young Irishmen said last night that I was no true American because I advocated close fellowship with England, Canada and Australia. I responded, though the noise was too great to be heard by more than a few, that my family had given three Major Generals and a number of other officers to the Revolution and two Colonels and other officers to the army in 1812; that I myself in the four years of civil war fought for the Republic before they had come to the United States and before most of them were born. I claimed my 76 years gave evidence of good citizenship.

Remained on Stage an Hour.

"The superintendent of the building finally sent for the police to restore order. He asked me to have patience and remain. I was not hissed off the stage, as some of the papers stated; I remained there an hour's time. The police were ineffective, doing nothing toward restoring order. When it was evident that I could not continue the superintendent dismissed the meeting and put out the lights. A small group of hoodlums has been permitted to prevent the hall being used for its legitimate purpose.

"The captain of police, in his report to The Brooklyn Eagle, took the ground that I ought not to have been invited to speak. He was not at the meeting and he had no knowledge of what happened. Such a suggestion is in itself an impertinence.

"The Sinn Fein hold meetings here without interruption and they should allow the same liberty to fellow-citizens. They are trying to secure American sympathy for the Irish cause, but actions such as these do not allow us to believe that they have either sufficient wisdom or sense of justice to organize a state.

"I told them, but few could hear, that I had always been in sympathy with home rule and had spoken on the same platform with Gladstone as far back as 1887 in behalf of home rule. The retort that came from one group that could hear my statement was: 'To hell with home rule. We will have nothing less than an independent republic.'"

Major Putnam said that he had intended to give a historical review along the lines that he has given in other halls and without interruption. He would have told them also what was being done to correct text books so that they would conform to history. He was indignant that because of the action of a group, who had evidently come to the hall for the purpose of making a disturbance, it should be stated that he had been hissed off the platform, intimating unjustly that it had been done by his real audience.

CALLS HOOTING "PATRIOTIC."

A. J. Talley Says Putnam Demonstration Was One of Americanism.

Alfred J. Talley, Acting District Attorney, a speaker last night at a Columbus Day celebration of the Knights of Columbus in Carnegie Hall, briefly discussed the Brooklyn demonstration, at which Major George Haven Putnam was hissed.

"When I awoke this morning and read the papers I saw a new way to introduce a speech was to begin by saying, 'a short time back, when I was in a cemetery in England.' A little demonstration of that kind of sterling Americanism, while it may have been hasty, if not intemperate, was an exhibition of the kind of patriotism that makes this country worth living in.

"It was not so much a demonstration against an individual as it was a demonstration against Anglophobia. The pressing need of the hour is not so much the Americanization of the foreigners landing upon our shores as the Americanization of Americans themselves. The expression 'Americanization' has been used in many instances as a cover for the rankest kind of cant and hypocrisy."

JEWISH COUPLE FOUND DEAD

Aged Pair in Mt. Vernon Home Are Overcome by Gas.

Fabeus Siegelstein and his wife Clara, aged 82 and 75 years, respectively, members of a prominent Jewish family in Manhattan, were found dead of asphyxiation yesterday in their room in the Jewish Home for Aged and Infirm at 107 West Fourth Street, Mount Vernon. Coroner Engle of Yonkers, who made an investigation, believed the death of the couple was accidental.

In their room was a combination gas and electric light chandelier, and it is believed husband or wife arose in the night and turned on the gas jet by mistake. The couple had been in the home since Sept. 30 last. They formerly resided with their daughter, Mrs. Mary Neuman of 462 Seventy-ninth Street, Brooklyn.

They leave three sons, one of whom is Dr. Louis Siegelstein, a Coroner of Cleveland, Ohio; another is Dr. Pierce A. Siegelstein of West End Avenue, Manhattan. The other son is Assemblyman Bennett E. Siegelstein. Dr. Pierce Siegelstein is the head of the New York Jewish Home for the Aged and Infirm of which the Mount Vernon home is a branch.

MISS MARBURY IS HONORED.

Receives War Decorations from Paris and Morocco.

Miss Elisabeth Marbury, National Democratic Committeewoman from New York and Chairman of the Democratic Women's State Executive Committee, was officially notified yesterday that the Municipality of Paris had bestowed on her its great silver medal, which is rarely awarded to women.

Miss Marbury has also been informed that General Lyautey, Governor General of Morocco and Northern Africa, has awarded to her the Cross of Knight of the Ouissam Alaoulte, the highest military decoration that is in his power to give and which few women have received. Both medals were awarded to Miss Marbury in recognition of her services to France during the war.

BLAMES HARDING FOR IRISH 'WAR'

W. Bourke Cockran Tells Chicago Questioners Senator Encourages British Attacks.

SAYS HE LIBELED AMERICA

Denounces Comparison of Our Rule in Philippines with England's Tyranny in Ireland.

Declaring that Senator Harding's statement that, if elected, he would not take official cognizance of conditions in Ireland, is responsible for the "renewal of the war of extermination now being waged under the orders of Lloyd George," W. Bourke Cockran, in a telegram received yesterday at Democratic National Committee headquarters, answered a message sent to him by John A. McGarry and eleven other Chicago Irish sympathisers signing themselves as members of the "National Anti-League Association." McGarry's telegram to Mr. Cockran read:

"It is rumored that you are going to speak in this city, Chicago, for Governor Cox and thus support England and the League of Nations as against the interests of the United States. Is such stultification possible? May we have an answer?"

Mr. Cockran's reply was:

"Your telegram has just reached me. Yes, I intend to tell the citizens of Chicago, as I told the Senate Committee, that to avert the most dreadful calamities in its history the whole world must disarm, and that disarmament can be accomplished only by making the fourteen conditions on which the armistice was signed permanent features of international law. This Mr. Cox's election will promote and Mr. Harding's prevent.

"I find it difficult to believe that any man of Irish blood could support for the Presidency a man who, the moment he believed his election was made certain by the result in Maine, hastened to assure the British Government that, no matter what barbarities it might perpetrate in Ireland, no word of official condemnation would be uttered by this government while Mr. Harding administered it.

"The degree to which murder and pillage increased after Mr. Harding's utterance shows that before it was published apprehension of condemnation by this Government had exercised some slight measure of restraint on the blood thirstiness of British officers in Ireland. Mr. Lloyd George, confronted with the alternative of emancipating or exterminating the Irish people, is now emboldened by Mr. Harding's assurance of official indifference to proclaim a policy of extermination.

"Even though, as men of Irish blood, you could find it in your conscience to support the man who has not scrupled to encourage the frightful British campaign of blood and destruction in Ireland, surely, as Americans, you cannot contemplate with composure the election to the Presidency of a man who has shown himself capable of such a foul libel on the fame of this country as to institute a comparison between our administration in the Philippines, the most enlightened and humane in all history, with British rule in Ireland, which is the vilest perversion of government ever known from its natural function of protecting life and property to perpetration of the very crimes and outrages which civilized government is organized to prevent.

"The capital duty of every American, as I see it, is to keep out of the Presidency a man who has shown himself so callously indifferent to the claims alike of humanity and of patriotism. There is but one way to keep Mr. Harding out of the White House and that is to put Mr. Cox in it. This is precisely what I am endeavoring to do."

POPULACE PRESENT AT COUP DE GRACE

THOUSANDS STAND OUTSIDE

If a Man Hasn't a Ticket He Can Wait Without the Gates and Yell, Can't He?

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 12.—Having followed the hounds thus far—no reflection on ballplayers intended—having heard the view halloo and scampered over the meadows while the pack tore at the quarry's flanks, Cleveland decided today to be in at the death. The fans of this city are not cruel. They don't like to see anything wounded writhing about on the turf. They figured this morning that mercy required a speedy coup de grace, and they hustled out to League Park to see it administered. It was duly administered. The blow was so workmanlike and vigorous that the ensuing pang of pain was felt as far away as Borough Hall, in King's County, New York, the Superbas, to the final smash, lying flat on their massive backs and all tangled up in the coils thrown around them by the Polish octopus, Coveleskie.

When you say it was quite a crowd that sat in at the final Cleveland game you've told the exact facts; it was quite a crowd, but not much quieter than its three predecessors. It couldn't be at this particular ballground. The Cleveland park with the special capacity provided by temporary structures, seats in the neighborhood of 27,000 persons. For exact figures yesterday, glance around this page until the eye finds data furnished by somebody whose mind never caves in under mathematical burdens. Whatever the actual number is, there were about that many at today's game—and at yesterday's, too, and at the other ones that came before. There have been as many fans at each encounter as could be accommodated with seats. Under the local regulations, few standees are allowed, except in front of the left field bleachers. The slight attendance variation from day to day is chiefly accounted for by the fact that at times hardy rooters have ridden the rail of the centre field stand and thereby added somewhat to the seating capacity of the place.

The Forest City said good-bye to the great diamond spectacle of 1920 with the gratifying consciousness that whatever could be done to make the affair a success has been as well thoroughly done by Cleveland's populace as by her ball tossers. From start to finish of the quartet of games played here the Indians have been the recipients of such unwavering support as has seldom, if ever, been accorded a team. The press, professional and business men, bankers and newsboys, have felt and manifested for the nonce the welding power of fandom, the great freemasonry of baseball. The outstanding sentiment has been that, since Ohio already held the world's series pennant, which had, however, fallen from the numbed fingers of the Reds, the banner must be saved for the Buckeye State.

Olympian Gods Are Fans.

Once again today the high favor in which the weather gods hold this city was clearly shown. For the fourth afternoon in succession perfect baseball conditions were vouchsafed, and it became perfectly plain that the deities on Mount Olympus are ardent fans. There was not wind enough to ruffle the placid blue expanse of lake Erie, the sky was a cloudless dome, and the temperature was that of a day snatched from late June and bestowed upon early October.

Cleveland in toto firmly believed that this was to be the final day of the great diamond classic. This town had had lots of baseball, but not plenty. It had enjoyed a feast, but was not surfeited. It had witnessed one close, hair-raising battle, another, no one close, but still calculated to bring the scalp a bit, and still a third, one-sided, but containing flashing gems set in platinum. It had watched its pet team come from behind in the series and pass the Dodgers like Man o' War with a featherweight on his back.

Still the city was not satisfied. It had set its heart on seeing the grand wind-up. It wanted to watch General Robinson as he tendered his sword to General Speaker in the shade of the old apple tree. All that was wanted today was all that there is—the winning of the world's championship.

Thus the Sunday migration for League Park began. Any person headed elsewhere after that hour ran the risk of being violently whirled about in the current of the crowd and assured that he was going in the wrong direction. If such a person had no ticket, and no chance to purchase or purloin one, the fact was treated as unfortunate but negligible. He could stand around outside the grounds and join in that final grand cheer of triumph, couldn't he?

Lots of people did that very thing as a matter of fact. Many hundreds of rooters lined the streets and sidewalks adjacent to the grounds and played a purely off-stage but vocal part in the affair. They shouted when shouts arose, intoned a chant of rejoicing when the noise from inside seemed to warrant it, and worked up a very fair semblance of a roar when massive waves of sound dashed against the internal walls of the inclosure.

New Noise Standards Set.

A new standard in noise making has been set by Cleveland fandom. It has seemed at times during those games of the series played here as if the uttermost limits of racket possible to 27,000 throats had been reached, and as if the record were likely to stand until all the lions in Africa meet in convention and quarrel over the nomination. Cheer leaders equipped with megaphones and drilled by the tumultuous Cleveland fan who attracted more attention in Brooklyn than the teams did, have paraded the various sections, and given little lectures before the games, calling for the last ounce the rooters had. The result has been such that the awed listeners from other regions will move back homeward by way of a boiler factory and a foghorn testing plant, in order to become gradually accustomed to normal conditions.

Cleveland is built on substantial earth. This city has never pulled any last days of Pompeii or San Francisco earthquakes on a horrified world. Yet the very foundations of the Forest City seemed to tremble with the final air-shattering outburst which signalized "Welcome to Our City" for a world's baseball championship. And the fans flooded the field and howled their way about in utter bliss. The men handled the athletes who were responsible for their happiness until those harried individuals besought them to desist. Not again, save perhaps within the realms of a paradise, will greater joy be manifested by a multitude.

This evening the sidewalks of Cleveland are thronged with slowly moving masses of people who, while less ebullient than at the park today, still have a churning interior decoration of happiness which it is necessary to work off before going to bed. The favorite remark in Cleveland tonight is "Wow!"

Robinson Says Dodgers Could Not Hit Indians' Pitching.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 12.—"Cleveland has a wonderful ball club and Tris Speaker and his men certainly deserve the splendid support they have received from the city," Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, said tonight after his club had lost the seventh and deciding contest in the world's series to the Cleveland Indians. "It was a well-fought and honestly played series. We did our best, but we couldn't hit Cleveland pitching. That's about all there is to say."

SPEAKER NEVER HAD DOUBTS OF OUTCOME

Tris Confident from Start Indians Would Win World Title —Praises Robinson.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 12.—Tris Speaker was a difficult man to interview after today's game, for he actually drained two fountain pens in autographing score cards and baseballs in his dressing room as he sat receiving the congratulations of his friends.

"From the start I never had any doubt of our being able to win the championship of the world," said Speaker. "The American League campaign was what gave us the trouble, but the fact that we had had to fight it right out to the finish helped us against Brooklyn. We were playing at top speed when the regular season ended and kept going the same gait until we had won the world's title.

"All the boys have felt the same way. They know they are a good ball club and have known it right along. When we lost two in a row in Brooklyn none of us was discouraged, for we knew we had a better ball club than Brooklyn and should win unless all the breaks were against us. We were far from being downhearted when we came home. We felt it in our bones that we should come through. We felt that while Smith and Grimes had held us almost scoreless on their own grounds they could not do it in Cleveland. We had great faith in Coveleskie, Bagby and Mails, and we did not bank on them in vain.

"I presume some thought I was overconfident when I predicted four straight. Nothing of the kind. I knew my boys and they came through just as I expected. I am particularly glad we won it as we did without going back to Brooklyn to play an eighth or possibly a ninth game. We have silenced the knockers. I think I gave the fans and Brooklyn the best I had when I sent Coveleskie in to pitch and had Mails warmed up ready to take his place if necessary.

"We beat a good ball club, one that played cleanly and honestly, a bunch of good sportsmen. They fought us hard all the way but never resorted to rough tactics. They have a wonderful man as manager in Wilbert Robinson. He is a grand fellow. I sure would like to have had the chance to pull for him.

"It has been a long time that Cleveland has waited for its first pennant winner, and I am happy that the honor was reserved for me, and also that I and my members were able to bring a world's championship here. The Cleveland fans have treated me generously since I came here in 1916 and it tickles me to death to be able to repay them in the way they most appreciate."

CUTLER BEATS McANDLESS.

Billiardist Trails Until Near End—Run of 108 Gives Him Match.

Albert Cutler and David McAndless met last night at Maurice Daly's in the second block of their exhibition match. Cutler finally won by a score of 300 to 229. The winner averaged 25 and the loser 19 1-12. Cutler was trailing until next to the last inning when he unleashed a run of 108, his best for the night, and this put him in the lead. He had an unfinished run of 31 in the last inning. The total score for the two nights' play is: Cutler, 300; McAndless, 416.

better clubs in both leagues than the winners of the flags this season. They displayed only orthodox baseball. There were no momentous examples of baseball strategy or inside tactics.

Uncle Robbie looked over his imposing array of pitchers and decided that the only one who had a chance to match the moist flings of Coveleskie was Burleigh Grimes. Grimes did pretty well until the fourth inning, when his own wild throw to second base allowed the first Indian run to cross the plate. From then on he was uncertain and always on the defensive. His club mates played behind him without heart and Grimes couldn't do the job all alone.

Team Acknowledged Defeat.

The Dodgers proved a hopeless ball team when the situation called for aggressiveness and resource. Two days ago they acknowledged defeat among themselves. This afternoon before the game some of the Brooklyn players were saying that they were all ready to leave here tonight for their homes. They lacked the spirit to win and every moment in today's game showed their abject despondency.

Of the five hits the Robins got off Coveleskie, only one was a noteworthy bang. Zach Wheat plastered a terrific drive high against the screen on top of the right field fence in the fourth. He was the first Dodger up in the inning and it was an auspicious start. Zach foolishly gambled with the throwing arm of Elmer Smith and tried to gallop his way to second. Smith picked up the ball when it bounded from the fence and with a rifle-ball peg put down Wheat at second.

A faint chance came to Brooklyn in the seventh when two were down. Konetchy rapped one to Sewell, who failed to gather in the ball. It was recorded as a hit. A good shortstop would have snapped it up easily. Then Kilduff jammed another grounder at Sewell. This time he juggled it badly when he should have made an easy force-out at second base.

Lamar Fails in Pinch.

Uncle Robbie decided to take a chance and sent Bill Lamar up to hit in place of Miller. Here was the opportunity of Lamar's baseball career, but he fell down, and hit a harmless grounder to Wamby and was thrown out at first.

There was only one inning in which the Dodgers were able to group two hits on Coveleskie. That was the second. After Miller fanned, Grimes dropped a Texas leaguer in short centre. Speaker, Jamieson and Sewell all went after it, but it dropped between them. Olson was safe on a bad fumble by Sewell.

It was Sheehan's turn to bat and the baseball sharps figured that Robbie should send in a pinch hitter. But Robbie's hands were tied, for he didn't have another infielder to send to third base. So Sheehan batted. He rolled a grounder between first and second and the ball bounded and hit Olson on the leg as he was running to second. Olson was out and Sheehan was credited with a hit. Tom Griffith might have been expected to do something under the conditions, but he hit a fly to Smith in right field. The efforts of the Brooklyn batsmen in the pinches were exasperating.

The contrast between the Cleveland and the Brooklyn players as they took the field was striking. The Indians after being showered with gifts and applause before the game went into the final fray keyed up to a high pitch.

Shower Players with Gifts.

Cleveland has more local pride over its ball club than any city which has won the world's series in many years. Not only have medals been struck off over night for Manager Tris Speaker and Sunny Jim Dunn, but presents of all kinds have been showered upon the local heroes. Before today's game Elmer Smith was presented with a new automobile for his home run with the bases full. Speaker and Dunn received loving cups from the Chamber of Commerce. The fans of Niles, Ohio, where George Burns comes from, gave him a gold watch. Coveleskie also got a new gold watch. The world's series here has been a great event for the local jewelry shops. They have been working overtime for the last few days.

Little wonder that the Indians were up and doing when they went into the game. They couldn't hit Grimes at the start, and it looked like another one of those tight pitching battles. Wamby made the first hit when he got an infield safety in the third inning. Grimes falling in a commendable effort to retire him at first.

The Indians broke through Grimes's pitching in the fourth. With one gone Gardner got a single between first and second. Kilduff knocked it down, but couldn't recover in time. Johnston trickled to right and Gardner raced to third. Sewell filed to Wheat, both runners holding to their bases. On a signal for a double steal, Johnston tore to second base. Miller made a quick return of the ball to Grimes. Johnston, going to second, stood stock-still several feet from the bag, and forced Grimes to make a quick throw. The Dodger pitcher was plainly disconcerted by Johnston's pause before reaching the base. Burleigh made a quick throw to second, but the ball trickled through Kilduff and Olson and rolled out into centre field. Gardner scored. Johnston did a wise bit of baseball when he forced Grimes to throw the ball.

One More for Indians.

Covey was a victim of a strikeout at the start of the fifth and Jamieson beat out an infield hit and stole second. Wheat gathered in Wamby's high fly and the crowd sent up a howl of delight when Speaker came to the bat. Tris poked a terrific belt to right centre field into the corner of the lot, where the new bleachers connect with the right field fence. The wallop sent Jamieson home and Speaker went along to third to the roaring chorus of jubilant Cleveland.

The crowd again yelled itself hoarse for Steve O'Neill in the seventh when he crashed a double against the fence in front of the left field bleachers. Covey rolled the ball to Grimes and while O'Neill was being run down between second and third in a badly confused foot race, Covey went to second. Jamieson came through with a one-base smash to right and Covey crossed the plate.

When Coveleskie was going at top speed and pitching his best Buster Mails went out to left field and started to warm up. Manager Speaker never dreamed for a moment that he would be forced to call on his left hander but he wanted to rub it in and show the Robins what they might expect if they got gay with Covey.

Mails Grins at Robins.

Duster was overjoyed to go out and warm up, and he grinned his broadest grin as he passed the bench of Brooklyn players. Wasn't pretty Miss Grace Rippe, who soon will become Mrs. Duster Mails, sitting in the stand and didn't Duster want her to see that he was ready to go in and be a hero again as he was yesterday? All that Duster was doing was warming up for the opening game next season.

After Brooklyn was folded up and placed away in camphor for another season, after the last out of the game, the fans rushed for Coveleskie. He modestly avoided his admirers and hurried under the dugout to the clubhouse.

Manager Tris Speaker was caught in the human whirlpool as he rushed off the field and his back is bruised from the slaps he received. His right hand is tired and limp from the handshakes.

Tris Speaker has become a famous person. A baby boy was born today to Mr. and Mrs. K. E. Lisse. His name is Tristram Speaker Lisse.

COVELESKIE WINS PITCHING BATTLE

RECEIVES GREAT OVATION

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 12.—The weather was of almost Summer variety when Grimes went out to warm up for Brooklyn and Coveleskie began to toss them up for Cleveland. With two right handers working, Manager Speaker called on Doc Johnston for first base duty, Jamieson to play left field and Smith for right field. Tommy Griffith was in right field for Brooklyn.

As in the third game at Brooklyn, Hank O'Day was behind the plate, Bill Dinneen at first base, Bill Klem at second base and Tommy Connolly at third. Several presentations were made to Cleveland players before the game started.

First Inning.

BROOKLYN—Coveleskie, whose great pitching had carried the Indians to two victories in the series, was loudly cheered when he walked to the centre of the diamond to start the game. Olson, first batter for the Robins, swung at the first pitched ball and raised an easy pop fly, which Gardner gathered in behind third base while standing close to the foul line. Sheehan, with the count two and two, hoisted to short left field, Jamieson coming in for an easy catch. After taking a strike Griffith bounced to Johnston, who threw to Coveleskie at first base. While Covey was flashing for the bag Griffith raced by and Umpire Dinneen turned palms down to denote that he was safe. Coveleskie was charged with an error for failing to touch the base. After taking one strike Wheat sent up an easy pop fly to Wambsganss. No runs, no hits, one error.

CLEVELAND — Jamieson had one strike called against him when he hit a high bounder to Konetchy, who raced to the bag ahead of the Cleveland left fielder. Wamby swung at the first pitched ball and drove a long fly, which Wheat captured after a few steps backward in left field. Grimes's first two pitches to Speaker were wide. Then there was a called strike and the Cleveland manager followed with a fly which Sheehan caught a few feet behind third base. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Second Inning.

BROOKLYN—Myers missed two hard swings at spitters, let a ball glide by and then hit fast to Sewell, who took the ball on a high bound and retired Hy at first base. Koney had two strikes against him when he hit on a bound to Gardner for another out at first. Against Kilduff Coveleskie got two strikes in succession, as he had done with the two preceding batsmen, and then Pete bounded straight to Sewell for another easy out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

CLEVELAND—Elmer Smith, whose home run off Grimes in the Sunday game started the Indians on their way to an easy victory, was the first batsman to face Burleigh in this inning. The first two pitches were inside, the next was a called strike and Smith then bounded along the infield. Kilduff ran in for a clean pickup, threw wide of the bag and retired the runner. It was a brilliant play. Gardner had a ball and a strike when he bounded to Sheehan, who cut in ahead of Olson for a good stop. His throw to first was fast and the ball rolled to the temporary boxes in front of the stand. Gardner stopped at first base, but, according to a ground rule he was allowed two bases, and he walked along to second. Grimes appeared ready after this break, and he pitched three successive balls to Johnston. A called strike and a missed swing carried the count to three and two and an inside ball sent Johnston on his way to first base. Mitchell was sent to warm up for Brooklyn. The count was two and two on Sewell when the little shortstop connected solidly and lined hard to right field. Griffith ran over toward the line and pulled in the ball, while Gardner hurried back to second base and Johnston to first. O'Neill missed two swings, knocked a few fouls and then hit hard to Kilduff, who had plenty of time for the throw to first base. No run, no hits, one error.

Third Inning.

BROOKLYN—Miller stepped out of the batter's box to argue about a second strike called on him, and Umpire O'Day waved him back. After the count reached two and two Miller was called out on strikes, and he remained near the plate to continue the argument. Grimes raised the first pitched ball into short left field, where it dropped out of the reach of Jamieson, Speaker and Sewell. Sewell, in his hurry to make a play on Olson's bounder, fumbled the ball, and Grimes reached second on the error. Sheehan followed with a drive toward Wambsganss, but the ball hit Olson on the leg. Grimes had run past third, and Sewell threw to Gardner. Grimes was tagged between third and the plate, but the play did not count, as second, stood stock-still several feet from the bag, and forced Grimes to make a quick throw. The Dodger pitcher was plainly disconcerted by Johnston's pause before reaching the base. Burleigh made a quick throw to second, but the ball trickled through Kilduff and Olson and rolled out into centre field. Gardner scored. Johnston did a wise bit of baseball when he forced Grimes to throw the ball.

One More for Indians.

Covey was a victim of a strikeout at the start of the fifth and Jamieson beat out an infield hit and stole second. Wheat gathered in Wamby's high fly and the crowd sent up a howl of delight when Speaker came to the bat. Tris poked a terrific belt to right centre field into the corner of the lot, where the new bleachers connect with the right field fence. The wallop sent Jamieson home and Speaker went along to third to the roaring chorus of jubilant Cleveland.

The crowd again yelled itself hoarse for Steve O'Neill in the seventh when he crashed a double against the fence in front of the left field bleachers. Covey rolled the ball to Grimes and while O'Neill was being run down between second and third in a badly confused foot race, Covey went to second. Jamieson came through with a one-base smash to right and Covey crossed the plate.

When Coveleskie was going at top speed and pitching his best Buster Mails went out to left field and started to warm up. Manager Speaker never dreamed for a moment that he would be forced to call on his left hander but he wanted to rub it in and show the Robins what they might expect if they got gay with Covey.

to centre field, Speaker running in to make the catch. Miller slapped the first ball pitched to him and it looked like a hit until Sewell hurried over beyond second base for a fine stop, his throw to first arriving just ahead of Miller. Grimes almost knocked Coveleskie over with his line drive, the ball bounding away from the Cleveland pitcher. He was on it quick and his throw to Johnston earned a close decision over Grimes. No runs, no hits, no errors.

CLEVELAND—Coveleskie again carried his own bat back to the bench. This time he ran the count down to two balls and two strikes before being called out on strikes. Jamieson got credit for a scratch hit on his slow bounder in front of the plate. Miller fielded the ball and his throw to Konetchy pulled Koney into the air, but the scorers ruled that Jamieson reached the bag as soon as the ball. On the first ball pitched to Speaker Jamieson stole second. Miller's throw was low and the ball rolled to centre field, but Myers backed up the play well and Jamieson could not even get an extra base. Speaker then got his longest drive of the series, a hit to right centre for three bases which sent Jamieson home. Griffith succeeded in getting his glove on the ball as he ran to the corner where the centre field bleachers touch the fence. Smith followed with an extremely long fly to centre, but Myers had plenty of room and he ran back for the catch. One run, two hits, no errors.

Sixth Inning.

BROOKLYN—Olson hit hard to centre, but the ball was almost on a dead line and Speaker had no trouble making the catch. Johnston hit on a high bound to Wamby and was an easy out at first base. Griffith got a hold on the ball and hit hard to centre, Speaker backing up to gather in the drive. No runs, no hits, no errors.

CLEVELAND—Larry Gardner ran the string down to three balls and two strikes before he bounded high to Konetchy, who was able to make the play for a base unassisted. As in the second inning, Dan Johnston drew a pass after working down to a three and two bases. Grimes's first pitch to Sewell was called a strike and he swung at the next one, lifting an easy fly for Myers in right centre. With two strikes against O'Neill, Johnston tried to steal, but Miller made a good throw to Kilduff and the runner was retired. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Seventh Inning.

BROOKLYN—Wheat hit hard and high against the right field wall, but on the wrong side of the foul line, before he finally hit on a line into Elmer Smith's hands. Wamby made a fast play on Myers's grounder and threw Hy out at first. Sewell checked Koney's grounder, but did not get the ball over to first base in time to get the runner. Kilduff bounded to Sewell, who fumbled, and Koney reached second before Joe could recover the ball and get it over to the bag. Lamar batted for Miller. With a ball and a strike against him, the former Yankee hit to Wambsganss, who threw him out at first, ending the inning. No runs, one hit, one error.

CLEVELAND—Ernie Krueger went behind the bat for the Robins. O'Neill hit between Myers and Wheat, the ball rolling all the way to the point where the bleacher fences meet. Wheat made a fast return and O'Neill was held to a double on the hit. Coveleskie bunted straight at Grimes and O'Neill was run down between third and second base, Grimes to Sheehan to Olson to Konetchy, the big first baseman coming over to get into the play. Coveleskie went to second while O'Neill was being retired and he scored when Jamieson hit on a line over Konetchy's head in the right field for a double. Griffith took the rebound well but Jamieson's speed got him to second just before Kilduff took the throw. Wamby ran the count down to three balls and three strikes before sending up a high fly for Myers. Grimes pitched a ball to Speaker, then a strike, and followed with three more balls, sending Speaker to first. Smith also walked on five pitched balls, the third being a called strike. This filled the bases for Larry Gardner. Larry stood still while two wide pitches went by, fouled the next in the stand, and then grounded to Kilduff, who threw to Olson forced Smith at second, ending the inning. One run, two hits, no errors.

Eighth Inning.

BROOKLYN—Schmandt batted for Grimes and was retired at first on Sewell's throw to Johnston. Sewell made a fine stop. Gardner cut in for Olson's slow bounder and got his man at first. Sheehan was an easy out on a short fly to Smith in right field. No runs, no hits, no errors.

CLEVELAND—Mamaux went to the box for Brooklyn. Johnston hoisted a pop foul which Sheehan caught a few yards from third base. Sewell hit a flock of fouls before he gave Myers an easy chance in short centre. O'Neill went out on strikes, swinging hard for his third strike. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Ninth Inning.

BROOKLYN—Griffith was out on a long fly to Jamieson. Wheat drove a ball like a bullet past Wamby for a single. Myers grounded to Sewell, whose throw to Wamby forced Wheat at second. Wamby's throw just failed to get Myers as the fans climbed over the left field bleacher rail thinking a double play had been made. They climbed back and play was resumed. Konetchy rounded first, Sewell whose throw to Wamby forced Myers at second and brought the series to an end. No run, one hit, no errors.

CUBS BATTLE 'VARSITY.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 12.—The victory over Dartmouth meant no letup in practice for Penn State and today Bezdek pitted his 'Varsity against Coach Hermann's Freshman eleven in a long scrimmage. The 190-pound rush line of the youngsters put up a stiff battle, but the 'Varsity line tore huge holes through which the backs dashed for scores.

Coach Bezdek is not making the mistake of under-estimating the strength of North Carolina State, the conquerors of the Navy, and he looks for a hard game here on Saturday. The Southerners are reported to have a powerful, tricky team; and although he is well pleased with the showing of the Penn State eleven against Dartmouth, Bezdek realizes that there is still plenty to do before the team reaches mid-season form.

Dartmouth had the most powerful team that has come to New Beaver Field in many years, and there was no disgrace in their defeat. Playing almost the entire game without the services of their captain, the Green eleven was under a great handicap and their plucky fight won the admiration of both Penn State students and alumni.

SUPERIOR CONTROL FOR CLEVELAND ACE

Analysis of the pitching records in the final world's series game indicates that the superior control of Coveleskie was responsible for the victory yesterday just as it was in the previous two games he won. The Cleveland hurler kept putting the ball over the plate and Brooklyn batters were forced to hit his first offerings.

Coveleskie pitched only ninety times in the nine innings, while Grimes and Mamaux, the Brooklyn twirlers, were forced to throw 135 times. Only twenty-one of Coveleskie's efforts were called balls, twenty-five were strikes, eight foul strikes and three fouls. He retired twelve men on flies and sixteen sent out easy grounders. Five hits were made by Brooklyn. Coveleskie pitched only four times in the fourth inning.

The two Brooklyn pitchers sent over more strikes than Coveleskie but they also threw many more balls. Together in eight innings, they pitched fifty-one balls, thirty-five strikes, fourteen fouled strikes, seven fouls, put out eleven men on flies, ten on rollers and allowed seven hits.

Grimes's record for seven innings was forty-seven balls, thirty-one strikes, twelve fouled strikes, four fouls, nine men out on flies and ten on ground balls, and seven hits. Mamaux threw four balls, four strikes, two foul strikes, three fouls, retired two men on flies, none on grounders, and allowed no hits.

Consider the humble cart wheel.

Without "wheels" we'd have no railways, no electricity, no large manufacturing.

In a way, buttons are like cart wheels—there are so many of them in every day use that we accept them as a matter of course.

Yet the button, too, is an important aid to civilization; an aid all unnoticed till it breaks or comes off to attract attention.

The making of high quality clothes is a matter of close attention to every detail, for no detail is unimportant; and the quality of buttons used in our good clothes is of the highest, and they are put on to stay.

Those buttons probably help our customers to stay—to stay perfectly satisfied with the best of clothes sold at reasonable prices.

NEW TRACK RECORD BY SENNINGS PARK

FEATURE OF JAMAICA CARD

Jockey Ensor Has a Good Day, Riding Three Winners, One Second and One Third.

The record for the Jamaica track was equalled yesterday afternoon for one mile and a sixteenth in the running of the October Handicap which was the feature of the day's program. Sennings Park, owned by Lawrence Waterbury and trained by S. P. Harlan, had the feet on the field of four and finished under a slight drive in 1:45 1-5. Naturalist was largely responsible for the fast going, for he shot out to make the pace and raced along at a merry clip. Naturalist was in the lead at the half in 47 3-5 but the ultimate winner was rating along nicely behind him and in a good position. At this stage War Mask was in third place, pocketed close to the rail, when Audacious began to move up and make a bid for the leadership. Coming out of the backstretch Audacious was in third position on the outside of Naturalist and Sennings Park. Mooney on Sennings Park began to see what the others had as the trio straightened for home and he was in front in short order. He did not need much urging and won fairly comfortably by a length and a half. Naturalist was all in from the early pace and stopped in the home stretch. He was a length and a half back of Audacious. War Mask, owned by the boxer, Johnny Dundee, was about the same distance back in last position.

Buddy Ensor had another one of his good days. He was up on five horses in the card of six races and he brought his mount home first in three and was second and third in the other two. His winners were Conine in the first at 7-10; Pontypridd in the third at 6-5; and Neddam in the sixth at 9-20. He was second on Audacious in the October Handicap and third on Salvestra in the fifth.

Pontypridd showed remarkable improvement over the race she ran Monday with Turner in the saddle. The Sandford filly just tow roped the field. She got away from the barrier very fast and was never in danger. Ensor was easing her up at the finish as she had a margin of half a dozen lengths over the top weight, Tom McTaggart. His poundage of 132 was a bit too much to ask but he ran a nice race in spite of his handicap and finished four lengths in front of St. Allan which got into trouble in the first furlong, but once clear ran a pretty good race. This event was called the Columbus Day Handicap and was for all ages over a distance of six furlongs.

ARUNDEL HANDICAP GOES TO PANOPLY

Whitney's Filly Beats Crank, the Favorite, by a Length in Laurel Feature.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 12.—Harry Payne Whitney's Panoply sprang something of a surprise here today in taking the Arundel Handicap, the chief feature of the card, from Crank, the well-played favorite, by a length. War Marvel was third, half a length back. The race was at six furlongs.

Crank made most of the pace and led into the stretch, having raced War Marvel into subjection. Panoply saved ground at the stretch turn, came through and drew into an easy lead.

The Chevy Chase Steeplechase Handicap brought a field of five to the post. It developed the closest finish of the day, St. Charlcote, the favorite, getting the decision by a neck from Elysian. Flare was third, a length and a half behind.

MAN O' WAR VICTOR OVER SIR BARTON

time to get nervous about it. The decision was a hard blow to Sande, who had looked forward to riding Sir Barton in this great contest. He cried when the news was told to him. Keogh had arrived on Monday, having been sent here with instructions to report to Mr. Orpen. He knew nothing of his mission until he was informed today that he was to have the mount on Sir Barton. He thought he was being sent here to be on hand in case Sande met with an injury or was taken ill.

Hopeless Task, Says Keogh.

As the race was run, the Canadian sportsman might just as well have intrusted the ride to Sande, for there was no opportunity for the rider to aid the horse through jockeyship. When it was over Keogh said that it had been a hopeless task for Sir Barton after the first sixteenth of a mile, and that he realized before he had gone half a mile that he would never catch Man o' War. He said that Sir Barton was doing his best in the back stretch, while Man o' War was galloping two lengths in front. There he made an effort to keep Sir Barton together for a few strides, but found that he had to let him run again at top speed if he was to keep anywhere near the flying three-year-old.

Jockey Kummer, on the other hand, said that Man o' War had plenty of speed in reserve and that he could have finished much faster had he been required to do so.

"I looked back several times to see where Sir Barton was because I did not want to be surprised by a sudden burst of speed," Kummer said, "but when I reached the head of the stretch and saw that Sir Barton was several lengths back and straightened out I did not urge Man o' War. I just let him finish under restraint and had a hard time to hold his head."

The start for the race was made just around the turn which leads into the stretch and because of the crowd which gathered all along the rail the course was cut off from the view of those in the stands, only the heads of the horses showing above the crowd. Starter Harry Morrissey and M. N. MacFarlan, who was appointed as special judge for the race, had instructed both riders that the start was to be made with both horses standing still and that there would be no use in attempting to get a break. Thus it took but fifty-five seconds to get the horses away from the barrier.

Sir Barton at Rail.

Sir Barton had drawn the rail position. As the start was made on a turn this gave him the advantage that made it possible for him to lead his rival for a short distance. Both horses acted well at the post, Man o' War being much less fractious than usual. He did make two lunges at the barrier, but after being pulled down he walked up to the barrier and came to a stand.

Morrissey let the barrier go and Sir Barton outbroke Man o' War by a full length. The Fair Play colt broke almost flatfooted, apparently not accustomed to starting without being in motion. The colors of Commander Ross popped to the front as the horses raced around the turn and came into the full view of those in the stands. Kummer quickly got Man o' War into motion, but was trailing Sir Barton by a length while going on the outside around the turn.

The horses had just been straightened out when Man o' War drew up on Sir Barton in what seemed to be two or three strides and in a twinkling had the lead. In a few more strides he had opened up a gap of two lengths, and as he flashed past the stands there was an outburst of cheering when it was seen that Man o' War was so far in front.

The race was really won less than an eighth of a mile from the start. Half way down the stretch on the first dash past the stands and at the time when Man o' War passed his rival, Keogh gave Sir Barton a cut with the whip to rouse him and in an effort to keep him close to the three-year-old in the early part of the race. But Man o' War bounded away so readily that just before reaching the lower turn Keogh again resorted to the whip, this time with some vigor.

Outcome Is Evident.

Already Sir Barton was defeated, for it was evident that he could not match strides with Man o' War. Going around the lower turn he was doing his best, having responded gamely to the lash, but his best efforts were in vain. Man o' War, with his head up under the restraint exercised by Kummer, widened the gap with almost every stride.

The difference in the power and the speed of the two horses first became clearly evident when they reached the backstretch, from where they could be clearly compared. Man o' War was bounding along with his usual long stride, while Sir Barton appeared to be taking almost two strides for one of his rival. Man o' War was covering several more feet with each stride than was the Ross horse.

Sir Barton made his best effort going through the backstretch, for there is no question that he is a thoroughly game horse. He tried desperately to keep up with Man o' War, and, having been given a free rein to run at his very best, he managed to keep within about three lengths of the Riddle wonder for three furlongs through that part of the straightaway.

The positions of the horses remained practically unchanged until just after the horses had reached the turn out of the backstretch. Then suddenly Man o' War began to move away from Sir Barton so rapidly that the distance between the horses increased from three lengths to five in the space of a hundred yards. There was a cheer which reflected amazement more than it did joy over this sudden change in the running. The crowd looked for Sir Barton to take such a fast pace that it did not seem that one of them could so greatly increase his speed.

Sir Barton No Quitter.

Sir Barton did not quit. He ran it out to the very end and he was running just as fast in the final eighth as he had run in the earlier stages. But Man o' War had so increased his pace that it seemed as though Sir Barton had cracked.

Turning into the stretch for home, Kummer looked over his shoulder to see where Sir Barton was. Finding that he was several lengths back and badly beaten, he did not make a move on Man o' War, but he did not do anything to restrain him until he had passed the furlong pole in the stretch. Man o' War came through the stretch with great bounds, and until Kummer began to take up on him a short distance from the finish, the great colt was increasing his advantage every time he leaped into the air. At the sixteenth pole Kummer knew that there was no need of letting his mount continue to run and began to pull him up. Yet Man o' War fought for his head after that great flash of speed for nearly a mile and a quarter and was tugging at the bit as he flashed over the finish line.

Sir Barton was not whipped in the stretch run, for Keogh would not expose a beaten horse to punishment in such a hopeless task. He allowed Sir Barton to finish under his own courage and the son of Star Shoot ran a creditable race, though he was a tired horse at the end of his long journey in pursuit of the matchless Man o' War.

There was an outburst of cheering which lasted for several minutes when Man o' War was brought back to the stands and led into the small paddock beside the judges' stand, where he was exhibited to the crowd, or to that part of it which could gather around the small inclosure. There were also cheers for the defeated Sir Barton when he was brought back and unsaddled.

Ross Congratulates Riddle.

Commander Ross jumped up from his box and went over to the adjoining one where Mr. Riddle and a party of his friends sat. The Canadian sportsman congratulated the rival owner and expressed the opinion that Man o' War could beat any horse in the world. Mr. Riddle was so quickly surrounded with well-wishing friends who wanted to congratulate him that it was several minutes before he could get down to the Judges' stand to receive the huge gold cup, valued at $5,000, which was presented to him in addition to the purse. Mr. Riddle went up on the stand where the cup had been on display all day, closely guarded by two Pinkerton men, and received the cup from Mr. Orpen. The owner of Man o' War was cheered as he walked down with the cup.

Though it had been predicted that the odds in the mutuel machines would show about 1 to 3 for Man o' War, it was known before post time that the Riddle champion would pay a far shorter price than if he were returned the winner. There was, therefore, little surprise when the figures were posted showing that Man o' War paid $2.10 to holders of $2 tickets, the equivalent odds being 1 to 20.

In spite of the fact that there was a strong sentiment in favor of Sir Barton, owing to the fact that he was Canadian-owned, there was little support for the Ross horse. There was, in fact, less speculating on the big race than had been expected; but the early play indicated that Man o' War would be a very short-priced favorite. At the conclusion it was announced that $132,000 had been waged on Man o' War and $14,000 on Sir Barton.

Turf History Made.

Even though the great match race did not result in as good a contest as many had thought it would, the event made turf history. Kenilworth track, located on a prairie out of sight of any habitation, will long be remembered as the scene of the Man o' War-Sir Barton race when it has been forgotten for every other achievement.

The crowd that gathered today gave to the scene an appearance of circus day in a small town. The crowd began to gather as early as dawn, and when the gates were thrown open at 9 o'clock there were several hundred men waiting to be admitted. It took but a few minutes to get these through the gates, and after that the patrons straggled in until about noon, when the first of the special trains began to bring the bulk of the crowd. Many of those who arrived early came without having had breakfast, apparently having anticipated difficulty in getting vantage points, and the restaurant under the stands did a rushing business for several hours.

The special trains which were run from Detroit and Windsor were crowded like a subway train in the rush hour. These ran at intervals of thirty minutes and by 1 o'clock the course was fairly well filled. Those holding reserved seats did not arrive in many cases until after the racing had begun, but by that time the space in front of the stands had become densely packed and the crowd had begun to swarm into the infield. The attendance reached the peak an hour before the running of the race, and by that time thousands had gone across the track and were lined up along the rail on the infield. At the time that the big race started there was no vantage point that was not occupied. Those who had previously watched the racing from the lawn found higher spots or went to the infield, and it can be safely said that very few of the great crowd failed to see the big feature of the day.

Weather Conditions Ideal.

The weather could not have been more appropriate for such an occasion. A heavy fog in the early morning lifted with the first rays of sun, and by the time the gates were opened the sky was bright and the weather almost uncomfortably warm. It became warmer as the day advanced and those who brought wraps found no use for them at the track. The weather made it possible for the race to be run under the conditions desired so much by all concerned. The track was as fast as it is possible to make the Kenilworth course. The test was a true one that left no excuse for either horse on the ground at the going. The additional fact that the race was run in a manner which prevented any chance of a foul or of either of the horses getting into close quarters added to the satisfaction of the event.

Mr. Orpen, who had the vision to offer the $75,000 purse for the two great horses, undoubtedly made a good profit from his investment. The admissions, with $3 as the minimum, made up for the purse and the cup. There was, in addition, the percentage from the mutuel machines and the share in the motion pictures taken of the race. Arrangements had been made so that every move of the horses during the race and of the crowd in the stands could be "snapped," and for this several batteries of motion picture cameras were located at various points on the infield and near the stands.

The crowd, which was about equally divided between Canadians and Americans, included many prominent visitors who had made the trip from various distant points to see the race. Commander Ross had a large party which had come from Montreal and Toronto. His guests included Mrs. William Whitridge and Mr. and Mrs. Burton Holland of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Leidlaw, W. Kingsmill, Allan McKinzie, Major Hartland MacDougal, J. C. Watson, Miss Hylda Ross, Arnold Mathews and Marshall Todd, all of Montreal, and Mrs. Ross.

Those who occupied the boxes reserved for Mr. Riddle were Mr. Riddle and his wife; Leander W. Riddle, Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Jeffards, Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Barklie and James K. Maddox. Others who occupied boxes were Foxhall Keene, James Oliver Keene, Colonel A. J. Devereaux, Joseph E. Widener, Walter J. Salmon, William Woodward, George T. Bull, William Street and Enrico Caruso.

NEW RECORD MADE FOR 3-YEAR-OLDS

Sister Bertha Trots to New Mark at Lexington—Frisco June Shows Speed.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 12.—Establishment of a new world's mile record of 2:02¾ for three-year-old trotters by Sister Bertha in a race against time, preceding the afternoon program, and a reduction of the record for three-year-old pacing colts twice in the same event, first by Trampsafe to 2:02¾, and then by Frisco June to 2:01¾, were the features of today's Grand Circuit card.

The three-year-old pacing colt record was set in the Tennessee, in which Frisco June scored a victoryr by taking the last two heats in fast time after having finished last in the first mile. She was driven by W. W. Fleming.

Peter Manning, favorite, took the Castleton Cup for 2:07 trotters in straight heats, with Lucille Bingen a close second in all three miles.

The contest developed in the Tennessee was considered by hundreds of horsemen here from all parts of the world to be the best paced by three-year-old pacers. Breaks made Frisco June a loser in the first heat and, had it not been for the fact that the distance was waived, she should have finished behind the flag. Trampsafe went three quarters of this heat in 1:30¾ and was pulled up at the wire. She was considered a sure winner of the next heat, but Frisco June displayed sensational speed and broke Trampsafe's new record.

Millie Irwin and Mightell scored easy victories in the 2:08 trot and second division of the 2:12 trot respectively. The first division of the 2:12 was raced Monday.

The Fleming brothers, W. W., W. R., and Vic, drove the winners in three of the four events.

HOWISON RUNS BIG SCORE.

Leonard Howison, formerly Canada's champion billiardist, played the first of a series of weekly exhibition matches at Lawler Brothers in Brooklyn last night. He met Dr. C. F. Kramer and won by a score of 368 to 44. Howison was only supposed to play 300 points, but he was in the midst of a big run when he counted the 300th point and he continued playing. He made 199 points at 18.2 balkline before missing. Howison will play leading amateurs every Tuesday night at Lawler's.

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 12.—There was at least one picture incidental to the match race here today that the motion-picture cameras failed to get, but which was snapped by a photographer who came all the way from Kentucky, only to find he was barred. After the race Man o' War was taken back to his palatial stall, and Mr. Riddle followed with the gold cup. Near the stable Mr. Riddle filled the cup with water and, placing it on the ground, gave Man o' War a drink from the costly vessel he had just won. The previously disappointed camera man had scaled a fence and followed Man o' War, and he came around a corner just in time to get a picture of the great champion drinking from the prize mug.

REGALO IS WINNER OF COLUMBIA STAKE

Regalo, racing in her best form, moved up with a rush in the last quarter of the mile and an eighth test, and drew clear readily in the stretch. Sterling was taken back repeatedly and finished fast when urged hard. Matinee Idol tired in the stretch.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Oct. 12.—Representatives of gun clubs in Plainfield, Bound Brook, New Brunswick and West Field, at a meeting here last night formed the Central Trap-shooting League, with Ray Stryker of Bound Brook, President, and Dr. William H. Anthony Secretary-Treasurer.

BRUSSELL IS TWICE LOSER AT BILLIARDS

Sidney Brussell, the national Class C balkline billiard champion of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players, lost a doubleheader at the National Recreation Academy last night in the tournament for the interborough championship of his class. He was defeated by Louis A. Servatius, 15 to 140, and later lost to Joseph Johann by a score of 150 to 131.

Brussell started with a rush in both games, but was unable to maintain the fast pace he set for himself. Both Servatius and Johann nosed him out by coming from behind with strong rallies. Brussell defeated Servatius a year ago, when Brussell won the championship of the class, and last night Servatius gained sweet revenge. Servatius averaged 4 19-35 and made high runs of 19 and 18. Brussell averaged an even 4, with runs of 21 and 18.

The match between Brussell and Johann was productive of the best billiards that has been seen in the tournament. Johann made an average of 6 13-23, the best thath as been made in any of the matches thus far, and Brussell averaged 16-23. Both men5 played excellently, but Johann showed great improvement over anything he has previously displayed and finally won out.

Franank Boyd and Joseph Dalton and Charles Steinbugler and J. Lewis, Jr., will play tonight.

SPAETH TENNIS WINNER.

Advances Two Rounds in Tourney of University Heights Club.

A good start was made in the championship tennis tournament of the University Heights Club yesterday, among the winners being Sigmund Spaeth, who advanced two rounds, defeating H. Ronaldson, 6—3, 5—7, 6—1, and W. H. Fuller, 6—2, 6—2. Spaeth will meet Charles Wood, Jr., in the third round. Franklin F. Adams was another winner. He defeated M. Wheeler decisively in the first round and followed with a victory over Charles Schmidt in three sets that came much harder than getting out The Tribune column every morning. They were scored 8—6, 6—4, 6—3.

Paul Martin scored an impressive victory over R. D. Haines, at 7—5, 5—7, 6—3, and Alfred D. Hammett, the chop stroke expert, won from M. B. Robinson by the peculiar scores of 6—0, 1—6, 6—4. Chester Goodall, boys' Indoor champion,

SCOTTIE ARMOUR LIKES CHILL AIR

While a strong wind blew in from the Sound which must have reminded Tommie Armour of the courses around his native Edinburgh where a golfer's teeth begin to chatter just about this time of the year, this young Scottie yesterday reached the semi-final stage of the annual Nassau Country's Club's invitation tournament. Unless something totally unforeseen happens this morning, Armour will compete in the 18-hole final match this afternoon.

A few golfers blamed their performances on the weather, adapted nicely to football, even to hockey. But those careful shotmakers who came bundled in sweaters and woolen scarfs didn't have any good alibi left for their showing and were forced to forego the usual nineteenth hole post-mortems.

Two disappointing announcements were made yesterday, two statements that will not sound well to the ears of Metropolitan friends. J. Simpson Dean, of Princeton fame, is going to heave his clubs into a corner of his room at Tigertown today and let them stay there for many months. Perhaps he did this last night, for he threatened to do so, and there was a suspicion that he wouldn't waste any time about it. Dean has played more competitive golf this year than in any other two seasons and he knows when he has had enough. In the recent Piping Rock and Arcola tournaments his qualifying totals were far below his usual notch. At Nassau on Monday he improved somewhat, shooting a 78 which put him in fourth place. But yesterday, after defeating Clifford A. Dunning in the morning by 3 and 1, Dean followed up by getting soundly trounced by J. Wood Platt, the blonde bantam who holds the Philadelphia championship. The score was 4 and 3, but Dean insisted it should have been even worse.

The Same, Only Different.

The other announcement was similar in substance and differing only slightly in text. Reggie M. Lewis, former Connecticut champion, but dormant to most of his recent fame because of his forty-one hole match at Engineers' last month with Chick Evans, was the individual who paved the way for Armour's entrance into the semi-final. The Scottie was pleasantly surprised yesterday afternoon, for, instead of a tight old tussle with Lewis, it was like a half holiday. Armour won seven holes and Lewis none, the former winning on the twelfth by 7 and 6.

So, when the good fellows gathered in the Nassau clubhouse last evening and hashed and rehashed the proceedings, Reggie Lewis announced that he was through with golf for this year. No, he will not even take advantage of the wondrous opportunity offered next week to compete in the first and only tournament ever held at the Lido Beach Club. He's through until the sunbeams of Spring chase him to the Southland about next March. Incidentally, Lewis is not satisfied with his style and contemplates changing his grip next season, especially his manner of holding his irons. If his round yesterday was any criterion, the movement is one in the right direction. Lewis sliced, pulled, shanked and generally messed up many of his shots. But the fact remains that it wasn't any criterion. He can play better golf and has done so many a time. It was a case of too much being a sufficiency. He has played enough golf of the 1919 brand, and needs a change.

In the lower half of the bracket is the promise of a battle royal for this morning. Gardiner W. White, Metropolitan runner-up this year and champion of Nassau so often that he has positively lost count, is due to battle the persistent Woodie Platt. This is no "set-up" for either man. Platt, it will be recalled, deserves the name of "golf's greatest iconoclast." In the last two national amateur championships he has defeated in turn Francis Ouimet and Davis Herron, and in between those occasions nearly an opponent has known the fury of his wrath.

White Scores Two Wins.

White won his advance by victories yesterday over C. H. Eypper of Upper Montclair in the morning by 4 and 3, and over James R. Hyde of South Shore in the afternoon by 1 up. Platt beat E. M. Barnes 5 and 3 and Dean by 4 and 3.

Armour disproved all the unkind things the other tournament players have been saying about the Nassau course this week. Whereas they found the putting greens like skating rinks or shoot-the-chutes, Armour found delight in sinking his ball yesterday from all angles and from any distance. On the fifth hole he holed a twenty-five-footer for a birdie 4, and then yawned as if bored. On the eighth he sank a putt more than thirty-feet long, and then grinned like a bashful boy at his first dancing class.

The first two holes were gifts, pure and simple, Reggie Lewis taking three putts on each. There came a halved hole, and on the short fourth Lewis missed a tiny putt, which put Armour 2 up. Armour's twenty-five-footer won the fifth, aided by Lewis's flubbed mashie shot, which carried into a trap instead of on the green. They halved the next two holes, and going to the short eighth over the pond Armour was 4 up.

Here he seemed intent upon giving Lewis a hole. Armour kited his tee shot high but short, the ball falling into rough grass. His approach gained the green, but was also short by about thirty feet. Lewis threw away his chances from the tee when, instead of landing on the green nicely, he pitched his shot a wee bit short. The ball struck the far edge of a bunker, hesitated a jiffy, and then fell back into a heel print in the sand. He was on with a fine recovery, but Armour's long putt won the hole.

Armour hooked his drive to the ninth into a trap. His out was weak, and, although it hit the green, it rolled back down the slope to the longer grass on the fairway. His fourth, however, was a stone-dead chip, giving him his 4 easily. Lewis's 5 was accounted for by three putts. They halved the tenth, but Armour became dormie by winning the eleventh as a result of Lewis's visits to sand hazards, and when the twelfth was halved the match was ended.

Their cards:

Out—
Armour	4	6	5	3	4	5	4	3	4—37
Lewis	5	6	5	4	5	5	4	4	5—43
In—
Lewis	7	5	4

Gardiner White ought to have thanked his lucky stars last night for his good fortune. Probably he did. He got off to a bad start against Hyde. Playing the tenth, White was 3 down to his lesser known rival, and going to the fifteenth was still in this uncomfortable position. Standing three down with only four holes to go, White played golf of championship calibre, because he knew he had to. He won the fifteenth, then the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth, barely saving the match by 1 up.

The results of yesterday's matches follow:

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Army gridiron stars took two hours' practice today in the mud. The regular gridiron was too wet, so Coach Daly took his men to the North Field. There was no scrimmage.

All the 'Varsity men were out except French, who is resting. Strohecker, who is making a fight for the pivotal job, also paced the side lines watching the play, but was not in togs. He is nursing a sore shoulder. Today Warren and Dodd were both used in French's position at fullback.

In the kicking session Ebersole and Goodman lifted high spirals for the ends in their down the field drill. The forward passing drill was thorough, with Coaches Tom Hammond and Prichard giving special attention to this feature.

Chick Evans May Not Play Golf Again This Season

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—The recent illness of Chick Evans, national amateur and Western amateur golf champion, has made it necessary for him to give up golf for some time, it became known here today after Evans returned from Duluth. It is probable, it was said, that he would not play again this year. He suffered a collapse at Duluth while on his way back to Chicago after an exhibition in Canada, and was taken to a hospital there, but recovered sufficiently after several days to continue his journey home.

MISS STIRLING SETS NEW COURSE RECORD

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 12.—Miss Alexa Stirling continued today her astounding performances of this season on the links when she broke the women's course record at the Huntingdon Valley Country Club here in the qualifying round for the Berthellyn Cup. The auburn-haired Atlanta girl, who has been champion of the United States since 1916, played the 6,357-yard course in 81 strokes. She was out in 42 and back in 39, all the more remarkable for the fact that it was made in competitive medal play over a difficult course which had been thoroughly soaked by hard rains last night. Her card included three birdies, a pair of sixes and a 7, the sixes being on par 4 holes.

Mrs. Clarence H. Vanderbeck of Philadelphia, the 1915 national champion, and Mrs. Quentin Feltner, the New York metropolitan champion, were tied at 87 in second place. Mrs. W. A. Gavin of New York, twice national runner-up, was fourth with 89. She was the only other player in a field of national stars numbering nearly 100 who was able to break 90 today.

Miss Marion Hollins of New York, who won the qualifying medal last week at Mayfield, was expected to score better, but she found the same difficulties within the course she did in the same tourney last year, when she was beaten early. Today she had a 96.

The big surprise of the day was the failure of Mrs. F. C. Letts, Chicago, the women's Western champion, to qualify in the first flight. She played with Miss Stirling, and took 7, 5, 5 on fifteen, sixteen and seventeen, which suddenly spoiled her chances.

The scores:

	Out.	In.	Tot.
Mrs. Quentin Feltner, New York	42	45	87
Mrs. C. H. Vanderbeck, Philadelphia Cricket	43	44	87
Miss E. Cummings, Ontwensia	45	46	91
Mrs. H. A. Jackson, New York	44	49	93
Mrs. G. H. Stetson, Huntingdon Valley	45	48	93
Mrs. Norman Rood, Wilmington	44	51	95
Mrs. N. H. Barlow, Marion	47	48	95
Mrs. C. E. Fox, Huntingdon Val.	47	48	95
Mrs. R. Slotter, Philmont	49	46	95
Mrs. A. M. Billstein, Bala	46	50	96
Miss M. Hollins, Westbrook	47	49	96

STEVENS IN HARD DRILL.

Engineers' Eleven Will Have to Battle to Beat Swarthmore.

The Stevens Tech football team got down to some intensive training yesterday afternoon in preparation for the game with Swarthmore on Saturday at Swarthmore. In spite of the two victories to the engineers' credit the men on the team realize that they have a hard proposition to tackle in the next contest.

Today the first and second teams scrimmaged on the muddy field until dark. Coach Durborow started things going with the usual backfield and lineup on the first team, then he made many shifts, although no completely new combinations were tried. Ferrari, who was substitute centre last year, has loomed up as a capable end, at which position he was given a long session. Jones and Ferrari are fighting hard to get the first choice for the left wing berth. The first team was placed on the offensive the majority of the time, and given a long drill on the forward pass, the outfit being particularly weak in this form of advancement play.

GARGAN SATISFIED WITH N.Y.U. LINE

Violet Coach Does Not Contemplate Changes—Backfield Not So Certain.

Coach Gargan gave the New York University football team a stiff workout yesterday afternoon on Ohio field preparing them for their meeting this week with the Wesleyan eleven. Saturday's game against Columbia gave Gargan a chance to determine the ability of his men in a hard fought battle. The Violet aggregation had not had a real workout against a strong team previous to the Columbia contest, as the eleven from the battleship Pennsylvania the week before did not give the local athletes much opposition.

Little or no change is probable in the line at the uptown college. Gargan feels that he is using the best set of forwards but that they need seasoning. Caddell, the big tackle, suffered a wrenched knee in Saturday's game and will be out for a few days. In his place, Gargan has been using Bonforte, who substituted for him at South Field. He is not as experienced as Caddell, but he has a good build, is quick to learn, and if he starts Saturday the line will not be weakened.

How the backfield will line up this week is uncertain. Weinheimer, Jackson, Ryan and Bourginon, all of whom were in most of the Columbia match, did well in all but teamplay. Some shift is not unlikely. If there is any change, Sherfy, who was hurt early in the game, showed ability while he was in. He is very fast, and a good broken field runner, and since Captain Weinheimer is the only other broken field runner in the backfield he is likely to find a place.

Gargan has been using Jackson at quarterback a great deal this week. Jackson played this place last year, Bourginon, who piloted the team last week, carried the ball well, especially in running back punts, but Gargan feels that Jackson is the better field general. For this reason, he may go to quarter, when Sherfy will be put in at half.

SCRIMMAGE WITH FRESHMEN

Nothing heavier than a short scrimmage with the freshman eleven was ordered for the Columbia football team when practices were resumed yesterday on South Field in preparation for the Amherst game next Saturday. Before and after the scrimmage Coach O'Neill sent the team through signal practice, rehearsing faithfully the signals and formations that will be used in the third game on the schedule. The 'Varsity took the ball against the yearlings and after one march down the field the squad was sent back to the signal workout. Earlier in the afternoon the second 'Varsity tried its hand against the cubs in a scrimmage, the latter being on the offensive all the time.

Bunk Harris, the 'Varsity's sturdy quarter back, was absent from the practice and will probably not play in the Amherst battle. He left yesterday for Duluth, Minn., where his mother is seriously ill. It is not probable that Harris will return to New York before the beginning of next week. Walder, guard, took a day's rest to nurse a bruised ankle, but will return to uniform this afternoon.

Dunwoodie's Golfers Busy.

R. C. Rose and J. F. Downey tied yesterday in Class A for the annual Columbus Day Cup. Both had gross scores of 81, handicaps of 8 and net totals of 73. A. C. Carpenter won the prize in Class B with 93, 25—68, and J. A. Knoche was second with 98, 23—75.

Lafayette Heavily Backed For Pennsylvania Game

EASTON, Pa., Oct. 12.—Seven hundred Lafayette College students and football followers in the town proper will accompany the Lafayette football team in a special train to Philadelphia Saturday morning for the annual game with the University of Pennsylvania on Franklin Field, according to announcement made tonight by Graduate Manager G. A. Sigman. In addition to those going by special train, there will be many others from here at the game. Fifteen hundred tickets will be placed on sale tomorrow, and, from the applications received, all will be sold. This afternoon Coach Sutherland put the first and second teams through a stiff drill. Because of a school holiday, the practice was one of the longest of the year.

YALE HAS WORKOUT DESPITE THE RAIN

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 12.—Yale's football cohorts practiced in the rain for the first time this season this afternoon. Hitherto when a shower came up the squad was transferred to the military armory, where it worked out all the afternoon on the tanbark, but today it stuck to the gridiron in the bowl during a drizzle which soaked the ball. The coaches felt that the players needed practice on a wet field and in handling a soggy, slippery ball, and they were pleased with the lack of fumbling which marked the drill and especially with the manner in which Malcolm Aldrich booted and handled the wet spheroid.

Aldrich, who made his appearance after a five-day layoff, starred during the matinee, scoring both of the touchdowns which the 'Varsity pushed over the line. One was through centre from the five-yard mark, the other a ten-yard advance around end.

The main theme of the coaching was the perfection of a defense for the forward pass, which bothered the Elis last Saturday in their game with the light-weight North Carolina University eleven. While the second team was unable to score, it proved that the 'Varsity lacks versatility in handling forward heaves.

Few of the 'Varsity passes worked, but a toss from Quarterback Kempton to Frank Kelly, which gained twenty yards, featured the practice and made the second touchdown possible. Kelly, the former Rutgers College captain, was assigned right halfback for a thorough tryout.

TO SHIFT RUTGERS LINE.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 12.—A short scrimmage was held today by the Rutgers football team. The coaches spent considerable time correcting defects in the defensive work of the team which developed in the Lehigh contest. Some shifts in the line are contemplated in an effort to strengthen the forward defenses, and it is also planned to devote more time to perfecting a defense against the forward pass. Captain Gardner and Halfback Duffy were still out due to injuries received in the Lehigh game, Echardt, however, appears to have recovered entirely.

PRINCETON ELEVEN GETS SEVERE JOLT

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 12.—Secret practice went temporarily into the discard this afternoon when Coach Roper opened the gates of University Field and staged a scrimmage between the 'Varsity and the freshmen for the benefit of 500 undergraduates who took advantage of the occasion.

The yearlings occasioned considerable surprise by holding the 'Varsity to a brace of touchdowns. A long signal drill preceded the contest, and Roper took occasion to work his charges at the forward pass formations.

Roper has been greatly dissatisfied with the way in which Princeton's aerial attack has been going for the last week. Howard Opie, the substitute centre who played this position on the 'Varsity in the absence of Captain Callahan today, paved the way for the first score when he intercepted a forward pass on the freshman 25-yard line. Previous to this the 'Varsity had been unable to make any consistent gains through the yearling line.

Cleaves made a first down off right tackle and then skirted left end on the next play for the intervening 15 yards. The freshmen kicked off again, and Waddy McPhee slashed around left end for nearly half the length of the field on the second play. He was downed by the last freshman tackler on the 30-yard mark, but on a criss-cross play carried the ball within four yards of the 1924 goal posts. Cleaves tried a line plunge and hurdled the intervening space in a single play.

The 'Varsity did not seem to have gained much by the drill at passing that preceded scrimmage, for the youngsters wrought havoc with the overhead game of the 'Varsity at all times.

The outstanding feature of the week's practice thus far has been the consistent improvement of Cleaves at halfback and Stinson at end. The latter, who has been shifted from the backfield squad, played a stellar game at the right wing today.

The 'Varsity lineup: Ends, Stinson and Legendre; tackles, Hooper and Halsey; guards, Speers and McCaull; centre, Thomas and Opie; quarterback, Gorman; halfbacks, Cleaves and Scheerer, and fullback, Garrit.

CORNELL WORKING HARD.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 12.—"Union next" is the order of the day for the Cornell football team this week, and the squad today plunged heartily into another protracted practice, with almost every player in fine physical condition and set for another four days of strenuous going. No Cornell football team, in the memory of this undergraduate generation at least, has been worked so long or so hard as this one, yet paradoxically no Cornell team in years has been in such excellent physical shape at this time of the year.

In today's brief lecture before the men went out on the field, Coach Dobie called attention again to weaknesses of form shown in the game last Saturday, and the first half of the practice was devoted to individual work in an effort to overcome the faults. Dobie particularly is emphasizing tackling these days, and the dummy at the east end of the field is receiving a savage mauling.

FORDHAM TEAM KEPT BUSY.

The Fordham University football team engaged in a long practice at Fordham Field yesterday afternoon in an effort to correct the defects which were displayed in the tussle with Boston College last week. It was announced officially yesterday that the Maroon eleven will meet Villanova here next Saturday and Coach Dumoe is determined to have his men on edge for the contest with the Pennsylvanians.

Yesterday's session was confined entirely to signal drills, Coaches Dumoe and Marshall followed every play closely, driving the team relentlessly and correcting individual faults after each advance of the ball.

The injury to Steele in last Saturday's encounter with Boston College has necessitated a shift in the Maroon backfield. Noonan is taking Steele's place at quarterback, Hallosan has moved over to full back and Meyers and Kearns are holding down the halfback positions.

Hydewood Golf Club.

John Hiner, with a card of 81, 13—68, won the flag contest, a special holiday event, yesterday. The leading scores for the President's Cup were: H. E. Blazier, 81, 12—69; George King, 93, 23—70; A. H. Battin, 87, 15—72; John Hiner, 86, 13—73; Vincent Laporte, 90, 19—74.

did not materialize. Carpentier discarded whatever knowledge of ring science he had when he squared off against his rival. Instead, he plunged in wildly in an anxious exchange of blows with his American rival. He outfought Levinsky beyond question, while the bout lasted, but there was no positive direction or infallible accuracy in his blows. Indeed, he missed many well-intended swings for the face and stomach of Levinsky.

The crowd acclaimed Carpentier in a wild outburst of cheering after the bout. The French war hero boxer had made good in his initial American bout and the result was popular. One of the most representative crowds that has ever witnessed a bout here stood cheering wildly until Carpentier left the ring, passing through a pushing, jostling, good-natured crowd eager to slap him familiarly on the back.

Levinsky, morose and dejected in his corner, sat surrounded by seconds and handlers trying to cheer him, as the crowd remained, in little groups, to discuss the result. As he left the ring Levinsky was greeted on all sides with sympathetic expressions, contrasting vividly with the acclaim which greeted the French victor.

Carpentier sought to end the fight with a single blow immediately the bell sent the men on their journey. He made no pretense of boxing. There was no demonstration of lightning-like speed, no phantom-like dancing in or out. He just cut loose in a wild orgy of swinging which surprised the onlookers, and Levinsky particularly.

Second Round.

Early in the second round Carpentier dropped his arms to his side, seeking to induce Levinsky to take the offensive. The Battler was wary, however, and refused to be ensnared. A hot mixup ensued, in which Carpentier landed with right and left to the face. After sparring for a few seconds Carpentier rushed Levinsky to the ropes near the Frenchman's corner, where, stepping back and lunging forward almost with the one movement, he crashed home a triphammer right to the jaw.

Levinsky crumpled to the floor, where he remained on bended knee, a troubled look on his face, while Referee Ertle tolled off eight. Carpentier stood, cool and collected, a few feet off, awaiting the completion of the count. When Levinsky arose Carpentier forced him about the ring, sparring cautiously. In a wild flurry of blows at close quarters near the centre of the ring Carpentier landed with left and right to the jaw, and again Levinsky went down for a count of eight. Carpentier sought to finish the job, but the bell prevented him.

Levinsky Best in Third.

Levinsky did his best work in the third round. He seemed to have recovered from the effects of the previous round's and experience and boxed impressively on the defensive. The veteran battler jabbed with characteristic accuracy with his left, and had Carpentier's head bobbing continually. The blows were delivered as Levinsky retreated, however, and carried little steam. Carpentier covered his face with his gloved hands and came in against the light blows, seeking to land a right. The blow was high and Carpentier was wild.

The Finish.

Carpentier was on top of his rival eagerly, however, and, with a shower of rights and lefts, beat down Levinsky's guard. Like a flash, Carpentier crashed home a wicked right to the jaw and Levinsky collapsed under the impact of the blow. The peculiar position in which he fell added to the confusion in Levinsky's troubled brain, but he tried with that instinctive dogged courage known to the ring to regain an upright position.

Conditions were not ideal for open-air boxing. The rain earlier in the day had left a dark, damp atmosphere, which was uncomfortable. The ground under foot was damp, and a chilly wind blew over the arena, conveying a comparatively cold nip which contrasted with the conditions on the occasion of the last open-air fights. Overcoats, steamer blankets and ulsters were much in evidence among the men spectators while miladay arrived, for the most part, comfortably and snugly clad in seasonable raiment and cheered to the ears in furs.

Until late yesterday afternoon, it was doubtful if the fight would be held as scheduled. The rain of early morning and the overhanging threat through the day terrified officials of the International Sporting Club and the Arena. A conference between William A. Gavin, I. S. C. Managing Director; Tex O'Rourke, club matchmaker; Dan Morgan, manager of Levinsky; Jack Curley, representing Carpentier, and Chairman John S. Smith of the New Jersey State Boxing Commission, was hurriedly called and after a long pow-wow it was decided to go through with the program unless rain forced an interruption. The conference was considering the advisability of postponing the show until Saturday afternoon.

Arrangements for handling the large crowd were typical of what has come to be characteristic of Jersey City. That means the crowd was handled perfectly, or as near so as was possible. Confusion, generally an attendant, though distasteful, feature of important boxing bouts in this vicinity was confined to a minimum. The crowd swarmed over the entrances to the ball park, but was effectively held in check by a detail of well-instructed Jersey City policemen, under command of Chief Dick Batterspee. Entrance to the scene of battle was made in orderly fashion and without objectionable features.

Inside the big ball field presented a scene of the strictest order. Police, under Inspector Thomas Wolfe and Captains Bert Allen, T. J. Cummins, T. J. Murphy, John J. Biggins and James Rooney, were placed advantageously about the arena, keeping aisles clear and seeing that ushers worked with courtesy and dispatch in seating the thoroughly representative crowd which attended the bouts.

A Distinguished Gathering.

The bouts attracted one of the most distinguished crowds that has ever witnessed a boxing match in this country. Men of all walks of life and representing almost every business and profession were included among the vast throng which came wrapped against the elements to witness this important ring attraction. Millionaires crowded the boxes about the ringside and enjoyed the bouts.

Governor Edwards and party, William A. Gavin, representative of the French High Commission, including Ambassador Jusserand; Payne Whitney, Walter C. Teagle, General Coleman du Pont, John McE. Bowman and party, Sherwood Aldrich, William A. Brady, Charles B. Cochran, F. H. Bedford, Colonel J. G. Ewing, R. Thornton Wilson, Bob Hilliard, Henry L. Doherty, L. Gordon Hammersley, Eugene Grace, D. W. Griffiths, Frank Hitchcock, Herbert Pratt, Walter Guinzburg, Herbert Pulitzer, Messmore Kendall, Alderman Kennedy, Frederick Lewisohn, R. T. Vanderbilt, W. Forbes Vanderbilt, John A. Drake, Colonel Jacob Ruppert, Allan Ryan, Jr., Allan Ryan, Jr., F. C. Smith, George M. Sweeney, Charles M. Schwab, Tom Andrews, Otto Floto, E. W. Dickerson, referee, President of the Western League, who refereed the preliminaries to the Dempsey-Miske bout at Benton Harbor.

Commander J. K. L. Ross, Canadian turfman, had engaged a box for the bout but a greater attraction to him precluded his attendance. Commander Ross was in Canada after watching his equinine pet, Sir Barton, lower his colors to the redoubtable Man o' War.

Governor Edwards of New Jersey was introduced before the principals in the main bout entered the ring. The State Executive occupied a ringside box, and responding to voluminous applause stood up in acknowledgment. The band played "How Dry I Am," and Governor Edwards stood with bared head, smiling.

Bantams Fight Evenly.

The clock showed 8:30 when Joe Humphries, veteran announcer, stepped through the ropes to clarion the names of the boxers in the opening muss. Kewpie Coliander of Minneapolis and Babe Asher of Bay City, Mich., a pair of bantamweights, opened the show with a six-round engagement. Asher weighed 118½ pounds, and Coliander 116¾.

The lads went through six fast rounds and at the end there was little to choose between them. Both fought hard and willingly throughout the six rounds, never relenting in their attack. Each alternated in carrying the milling and both accomplished about the same amount of damage with their blows. In the early rounds, Coliander showed to advantage, but Asher evened the score as the bout progressed.

Frankie Burns, Jersey City veteran, and Patsy Johnson, aspiring young featherweight of Trenton, where the principals in the second contest, also scheduled for six rounds. Burns weighed 120 and Johnson was a pound heavier. Burns pasted his young rival to his heart's content from the start to the finish, and when the final bell clanged on the sixth round the Jersey City veteran was a winner by a one-sided margin. The contest was comparatively uninteresting, for Burns so far outclassed his sturdy young rival that the element of competition was conspicuously lacking.

Ted Kid Lewis, British welterweight champion, and Marcel Thomas, France's titleholder, entered the ring at 9:30 for the six-round semi-final. Lewis's weight was announced as 147 pounds and Thomas's as 140½.

Lewis made a chopping block of the Frenchman, who was fortunate to last the six rounds. In the first Lewis started as if to annihilate Thomas. In the first minute of fighting he sent the Frenchman spinning across the ring with a heavy left hand swing to the jaw. In the second a left hook sent Thomas down in a hot mixup, near the Briton's corner, but Thomas quickly regained his feet without taking a count.

Through the remainder of the bout Lewis followed his rival incessantly, seeking to land a knockout. Thomas was rocked from side to side under a shower of jarring rights and lefts to the face and stomach, alternately. He weathered the storm, however, and lasted the limit.

Carpentier First in Ring.

Carpentier entered the ring first. He climbed through the ropes at 10:06 clad in a clinging silk dressing gown of gray with black silk fringe. He was accompanied by Manager Descamps, Joe Jeannette, Gus Wilson and several camp attendants. A sweater and Turkish towel were wrapped about his neck as a precaution against the chill air.

Carpentier was introduced first. The band played the "Marseillaise." Levinsky's introduction followed, while the band played "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Several ring celebrities were introduced then, including Mike O'Dowd, Gene Tunney, Freddie Welsh and Jack Britton. The weights were: Carpentier, 170½; Levinsky, 173. Jack Britton and Manager Dan Morgan attended Levinsky.

200 FIGHT FANS FALL WITH ROOF

Two hundred men and boys who had been unable to obtain entrance to the Carpentier-Levinsky fight were watching the battle last night from the roof of the West Side Scrap Iron Works, 285 West Side Avenue, Jersey City, opposite the ball grounds, when about 10 o'clock, part of the roof collapsed, dropping from forty to fifty of the spectators on to jagged pieces of scrap iron more than twenty feet below.

There were cries of terror and fright as the fight fans struggled to release themselves from the mass of mixed-up humanity into which they had fallen. Three ambulances and four surgeons were rushed from the Jersey City Hospital and fifteen men and boys were taken to the institution.

Several policemen who were stationed in front of the iron works, reinforced by a group of fellow officers from the fight grounds, called for volunteers. The uninjured spectators climbed from the roof and assisted in the work of rescue.

Those who were hurt suffered broken limbs, wrenched spines and bruises. Several men were caught between stanchions supporting the roof. Others were injured by bits of iron and steel on the floor of the shop.

Patrol wagons were pressed into service during the emergency. Houses in the neighborhood were thrown open to the victims of the accident and many availed themselves of the hospitality of nearby residents to wash the grime and blood from their bodies.

Most of those on the roof when it collapsed had expected to obtain entrance on payment of the advertised $5.50 for admission, but after about 200 of those in the enormous crowd waiting to get into the ball park to see the fight had been permitted to enter no more tickets at that price were sold. The admission fee was increased to $5.50, whereupon hundreds turned away, seeking other points of vantage. Of these about a hundred climbed to the roof of the scrap iron shop, more than twenty feet from the street.

The view from the roof was good, as it was high enough above the ball park fence to afford a good view of the proceeding in the inclosure. But the weight of the crowd was too great, and part of the roof sagged and collapsed.

Drs. Philip De Forest Pagliht and Barberito of the City Hospital made hurried examinations of the injured, and bundled those severely hurt into the ambulances and patrol wagons.

THE CITY BUDGET.

The city budget has reached the constitutional limit, as calculated by the Controller. The tax rate is to rise 37 points to $2.85, in order to produce $343,804,049. Even that unprecedented figure leaves a deficit in the educational budget of about half its requisition for $82,026,462. The city grants all that the educational tax of 4.9 mills yields and refers some $40,000,000 to the Legislature whose mandatory laws are responsible for creating the situation in which the Constitution forbids the city to meet its full budget.

Within ten years the city's population has grown 20 per cent. and its budget 430 per cent. As the educational budget is the last straw which makes the budget unvotable in full, it is worth while to notice how its expenses run up. Salaries and buildings account for the greater part and public opinion favors liberality in those respects. But there is nothing mandatory, it may be hoped, about such expenses as salaries for teachers of manicuring, shampooing, garment making and domestic science. Such luxuries were adopted when the city was in easier circumstances and it was harder for workers to earn their living. Therefore it was thought that vocational training was in the public interest. Even then there were those who thought instruction in such matters was diversion of the common-school system from preparation for citizenship to "fads and fancies" in education. There is likely to be a revival of that sentiment.

A SOUL IN PERIL.

Senator SPENCER has need of the instant ministrations of a pious spiritual counselor in order that through repentance and much prayer he may come to salvation. His danger is great, for his sin is great, and sin is no trifling matter. The Westminster Confession declares that, being a transgression of righteous law and contrary thereunto, sin "doth in its nature bring that upon the sinner "whereby he is bound over to the "wrath of God and the curse of the "law and so made subject to death, "with all miseries, spiritual, temporal and eternal." Senator SPENCER sinned against the Ninth Commandment in giving false witness and sins again in "outfacing and overbearing truth." His case is made much more serious by aggravations, which according to the Larger Catechism arise from the persons offending, "if "they be of riper age, greater experience, or grace; eminent for profession, gifts, place, office, guides to "others and whose example is likely "to be followed by others." His example has been followed by others, notably by those who now declare that the publication of the true report of what the President said in the Peace Conference makes the vindication of Senator SPENCER "complete."

Impenitence is an aggravation in itself, but in Senator SPENCER'S case we have worse than that. He piles sin upon sin. In his statement issued after the true transcript of the stenographer's notes had been published the Missouri Senator declares that the President said: "If any covenants of "this settlement are not observed the "United States will send her armies "and navy to see that they are observed." This is treating the Ninth Commandment as Senator HARDING treats the League of Nations. What the President actually said was "and "yet there underlies all of these "transactions the expectation on the "part, for example, of Rumania and "Czechoslovakia and of Serbia, that "if any covenants of this settlement are not observed," and so on. The Senator thus persists in his original offense, and persistence in sinning is an almost insurmountable barrier to salvation. This is quite as bad as the statement made in the Senator's speech which began the controversy, when he represented to his audience that the President had said "that if "any nation invaded their territory he "would send the American armies "and navy across the seas to defend "their boundary lines." This is the expression which the whole Republican pack has caught up as a "pledge" on the part of the President.

Mr. CARLSON'S transcript from his shorthand notes of the President's statement in the eighth plenary session makes the whole matter crystal clear and removes every warrant for the impudent assertion that a "pledge" was given. The President was pointing out to the representatives of Rumania, Czechoslovakia and Serbia that the peace they favored could not last, yet they nevertheless cherished the expectation that if the covenants of this unstable settlement were not observed "the United States "will send her armies and her navies "to see that they are observed." This is what the President said. His words were spoken in English, taken down by the shorthand reporter in English, transcribed from his notes in English; while the report which Senator SPENCER used, and perverted, was a translation into English of a report written in French of a verbal interpretation into French made at the session by Mr. MANTOUX from memory. The flagrancy of the sin Senator SPENCER laid upon his soul is put beyond all extenuation by his persistence in it, for he now sins against light, while prior to this latest offense it might have been pleaded in his behalf that he had been misled. Nothing can save him but repentance, and it must be prompt and complete.

A HARDING GROUP.

Officials of the Citizens' Alliance for Good Government, the "German" organization formed to support Senator HARDING for President, led by VON MACH and VIERECK, and laboring for that end in consociation with the patriots of the Committee of Ninety-Six, have been counting the flock. They report it 800,000 strong at the end of July, and are sure it now numbers 1,000,000 voters, all solid for Mr. HARDING, "not because we favor a "separate peace with Germany, but "because we are positively opposed to "the League of Nations or any other "foreign alliance."

Mr. ROOSEVELT'S friends in the Republican Party must feel uncomfortable at the massing of these old enemies of his. His Americanism was utterly unlike Mr. HARDING'S. The latter is as tender as a mother to the hyphen. His America "does not "want the ill-will of foreign-born who "have come to dwell among us," so she mustn't have a hand in the League of Nations. "Meddling is not only "dangerous to us," he says, "because "it leads us into the entanglements "against which WASHINGTON warned "us, but it also threatens an America "divided in her own household and "tends to drive into groups seeking to "make themselves felt in our political "life men and women whose hearts "are led away from 'America First' "to 'Hyphen First.'"

In consideration of this noble policy, this singular "Americanism," which regards the United States not as a unity, a national entity, but an aggregation of "groups," thinking not as Americans but as permanent foreigners, in terms of their origin and prejudices of their descent, a "German group" is hot for HARDING. Votes are votes, but this "group," if it were wiser, would be content to love Mr. HARDING in silence and not make such a pother about it. They disturb other guests in the Republican Party. They nip the nerves of a good many other Hardingites.

A LEAGUE BEFORE THE LEAGUE.

Governor COX in his St. Louis speech put some precise and searching questions to Mr. TAFT, to which that amiable gentleman would find it difficult to make a direct answer. "Poor TAFT," says HIRAM JOHNSON, contemptuously; "he can save his face so long as he doesn't save his League." But the thing cuts deeper than any single individual. It strikes down to the question of the sincerity of the entire Republican position.

Mr. TAFT had incautiously referred to his own League to Enforce Peace, and said of it that it "had no Article X." Yes, says Governor COX, but didn't it have an Article III.? It did, and the language of that Article III. was more sweeping and binding than the now horrible Article X. of the Covenant. Yet the extreme position taken by the League to Enforce Peace was heartily indorsed not only by Mr. TAFT and President LOWELL, but fervidly by Senator LODGE. Senator JOHNSON might as well exclaim "Poor LODGE" as "Poor TAFT." Very likely he will as soon as what he calls his present "truce" with the Republican leaders is ended.

What was Article III. of the League to Enforce Peace—the League before the League? It reads as follows:

> The signatory Powers shall jointly use forthwith both their economic and military forces against any one of their number that goes to war, or commits acts of hostility, against another of the signatories before any question arising shall be submitted as provided in the foregoing.

This was afterward modified slightly so as to make the use of "economic forces" more distinctly precede the employment of "military forces," but the principle was unchanged. The proposal was to make the use of military force in the circumstances mentioned a "binding obligation" upon all the signatory nations. No talk, then, of first consulting Congress or of the fear of over-riding the Constitution. The doctrine thus enthusiastically supported by eminent Republicans went even further than the frightful Article X. of the Covenant. At a great meeting held in Washington in May, 1916, Senator LODGE impetuously committed himself to this plan of the League to Enforce Peace. It might not succeed, he said, as other nations might not prove so enlightened and unselfish as the United States, but we were bound to try it if only as an example for future generations. And he exhorted his hearers to do their best and let the victors, when the Forts of Folly fall, find their bodies by the wall.

Well, the victors have not found LODGE'S body or TAFT'S body by the wall. They have, rather, discovered those and other Republican leaders manning the guns in defense of the Forts of Folly. It is a sorrowful history of personal inconsistency and bitter partisanship which they are writing. The best that can be hoped for them is that they may live long enough to be ashamed of it.

A FRUIT OF THE INITIATIVE.

Oregon is a shrine where the vestal lamp of reform or change burns forever. Still, one feels, sometimes or oftener, that she's too good for human nature's daily food. On Election Day her voters will have the happiness of voting on an initiative proposal called an anti-compulsory vaccination amendment. This would prohibit "vaccination, inoculation or other form of "medication" as a condition of entrance or attendance at any school, college, educational institution, or of "the employment of any person in "any capacity, or for the exercise of "any right, the performance of any "duty or the enjoyment of any privi-"lege"; and would repeal all provisions, constitutional, statutory, municipal, of charter or ordinance, in conflict with itself.

That is, it would make infection and contagion constitutional, upset all health regulations, protect disease and the communication of disease, encourage and disseminate disease, discourage and prevent health. There are some rare reformers in Oregon, but a queerer specimen of their pernicious activity has seldom been offered to that long-suffering and much-voting State.

THE NATIONAL CREDIT.

The Governors and Chairmen of the twelve Federal Reserve Banks were summoned to consider the national credit situation at Washington tomorrow before the farmers and planters had decided what ought to be done about the loss of over three billions of dollars from market prices within the last three months. The night riders in the cotton and tobacco States have resolved that the grown crop shall not be picked on penalty of personal harm or the burning of gins. The Wheat Growers' Association of the United States issues a proclamation that wheat shall not be sold for less than $2 at the grower's terminal, because that is the association's calculation of the cost of production. Bread eaters, we are told, ought to be willing to make the sacrifice for the sake of the embarrassed growers, because, at the price they seek to fix, the growers receive only 1¼ cents from each loaf. The association is prompted by public spirit in this appeal because gamblers in wheat "hold up the public for hun-"dreds of millions of dollars in tribute "to profiteering wheat dealers," whereby the grain growers "have lost "all our year's wages and part of our "overhead expenses." The first response to this appeal comes from the Department of Justice, which fails to confirm the report that it will prosecute what seems to some like a wheat growers' pool to fix a price by restraint of trade.

The Farmers' National Council appeals to the Federal Reserve Board to use its maximum power to prevent Western banks from sending money to Eastern banks to be lent to speculators. These appeals spring from ignorance of banking theory and practice, or from disregard of facts for reasons of private interest as opposed to public interest. The public interest requires that the crops shall be moved into consumption at prices fixed in a fair and free market, and that they shall not be hoarded by abuse of credit. If any grower has been hindered in marketing his crops the fact is unknown. The appeal that the Treasury or the Federal Reserve Board shall help to hold the primary crops in warehouses is more injurious to consumers than beneficial to producers, and is fitted to produce here the same collapse of credit as has been freshly illustrated in Cuba, where a moratorium is now necessary to assist the banks because of excess credit allowances to sugar growers. It is only a few weeks since there was a crisis in the Japanese silk trade because of excess credit to silk growers and traders. Those are examples of what should be avoided in the interest of all, regardless of any specific interest which seeks privilege.

The fact that everything which came out of the ground could have been sold at a higher price shows that there was no conspiracy against the producers, and their neglect to sell when they could makes them to that extent responsible for their losses. There are overwhelming figures to show that already the agriculturists have had more than their share of banking consideration. Federal Reserve Directors in the South have informed agriculturists in that section that the banks have overloaned to them, and in turn have sought loans to ease their own situation. Also, these member bank Directors, neighbors of the complaining agriculturists, have told them that if they had saved the surpluses of their prosperity they would be independent of the banks, and not holders of last year's crops on credit.

ANOTHER OHIO TRIUMPH.

This is Ohio's year, and we might have expected that the world's baseball championship would be added to the political honors which Ohio won in the early Summer. Those honors were acquired more or less by default, but the baseball championship was won by hard work. If Freedom shrieked when KOSCIUSKO fell, she must have turned a gleeful handspring when STANLEY COVELESKIE was born. No citizen of Cleveland who has seen this formidable Pole turn back the enemy from Brooklyn three times within a week will find it hard to understand why the Bolsheviki lost the battle of Warsaw.

They seem to take these matters seriously in Ohio. Last year the frenzy of Cincinnati was plausibly accounted for by the long record of disaster which had attended that city's participation in big league ball. When at last Cincinnati had a winning team there was evident determination that everybody should realize that it was time to stop kickin' the dog around. Cleveland seems to have a somewhat different viewpoint. Faith in the ball team is part of the municipal dogma. A man who failed to show the proper enthusiasm over the world's series would be capable of believing that Paris, Tahiti or the Garden of Eden might be a more pleasant place of residence than Cleveland; or of doubting that the town would pass Detroit in the 1930 census. Fortunately, cases of such civic treason seem to have been few. Cleveland won, and everybody is happy—except Brooklyn.

Well, the cylindrical Mr. ROBINSON and his followers have at least the consolation of knowing that they lose in good company. If they fall before the conquering heroes of Ohio, they do no more than Dr. BUTLER and Mr. McADOO and other Manhattanites did earlier in the year. The Brooklyn pitchers, of whom so much was expected, did not so well, yet not so badly; the Brooklyn fielders performed with unexpected brilliancy; but Brooklyn at the bat was helpless. No matter how good your fielding, you can't win seven ball games with eight runs. More might be said, but let it be said with flowers.

MECCA.

The revenges of whirligig time are not always bitter. The New Theatre was built by a group of public-spirited citizens as a temple of the drama; it was made beautiful by gifts from the art treasures of WILLIAM K. VANDERBILT and guaranteed to the people of America as "immune from the Sheriff." Today the New Theatre is the Century Theatre—the home of gorgeous spectacle, of music and song, of youth and beauty in choragic revels; yet it is beyond question that plays of the order of "Chu Chin Chow" and "Aphrodite" and "Mecca" have given more pleasure to a larger public than the productions of SHAKESPEARE and SHERIDAN, of PINERO and GALSWORTHY and MAETERLINCK, for which the theatre was erected.

This frustration of high emprise is not blamable upon public taste. When the proposed dimensions of the New Theatre were made known—before any of the competing architects had put pencil to paper—local critics pointed out that the auditorium was far too large for the effective presentation of the kind of play intended, too large for the audience of a repertory theatre. English critics called in consultation said the same, WILLIAM ARCHER predicting in so many words that the logical end of such a house was popular melodrama. Yet the work went on. In the material sense the New Theatre escaped no humiliation, excepting only the Sheriff. Artistically it was not without honor. Years before the similar demonstrations of GRANVILLE BARKER in London and JACQUES COPEAU in Paris, it showed that the full force of the Elizabethan drama cannot be developed except by emulating the beautiful simplicity of SHAKESPEARE'S stage, and by earnestly seeking to reproduce the masterly fluidity and variety of his stagecraft. In the balanced strength of the New Theatre company, the suave and unobtrusive beauty of its productions, the Director set a standard which has not since been equaled. Other years will doubtless see the project revived under conditions that are possible.

Meantime the more popular art has journeyed to its Mecca. For those who belong to the faith it is a true shrine. The play is by OSCAR ASCHE, and is written in the vein of his "Chu Chin Chow." The costumes are by PERCY ANDERSON, who, through his long life, has been the acknowledged master of harmonious beauty in design and of sober splendor in coloring. Certain costumes by the Russian LEON BAKST, creator of a more riotous modern school, are incorporated into an ensemble of unmatched brilliancy. The "dances and choreography" are by another Russian master, MICHEL FOKINE; his Egyptian Bacchanal surpasses anything yet seen in daring originality of design, in the riot of interweaving dance motives and in the tumultuous power of its finale. Color and light and passion—the beauty and the fire of the body—are also materials of art, and when they are used discreetly are not unworthy of a temple.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

While it is not quite safe to deduce from the innumerable photographs taken of the Prince of Wales in the course of his journey around the world that he found the tour personally enjoyable as well as informative, many of the pictures that have been printed showed a young man doing things and seeing things that almost any young man would find pleasing. The chances are, therefore, that really good times, in the course of this thoroughly modernized form of the ancient "progress," outnumbered, or at least more than balanced, what must have been the tedium of hearing over and over again about the same speech of official welcome and of making to it, necessarily, about the same response.

And—perhaps the Prince was not wearied by the speeches—perhaps, as a well-trained heir apparent, with a virtuous appreciation of what he owes in return for his privileges, he accepted the task of listening and talking on these formal occasions as the performance of his allotted and accepted duty, which it certainly was, and found enjoyable the feeling he gained from having done his work in a workmanlike manner.

That satisfaction apparently was well earned wherever the Prince went. So far as has been reported, his tactfulness was continuous, and if anywhere he was guilty even of small indiscretions the fact has been concealed with more success than reasonably could have been expected in a world where critics of the British Government and its representatives abound and are far from taciturn. In a few places, indeed, feeble squeaks of protest against honors paid to this youth have made themselves just audible to attentive ears, but the squeakers have not been rewarded with the advertising in the shape of denunciation for which they yearned. Instead they were ignored, and must have undergone cruel suffering in consequence.

A Sort of Royal Vindication.

Just what benefits accrued to Great Britain from the princely circumnavigation it would be difficult to define in a way to prove that the money spent on the trip was well invested. Yet, more than probably, the return on the investment will be real as well as large.

Of course, nobody ought to be surprised at seeing that a young Prince, destined of doomed one day to sit on a famous throne, can be as simple in his tastes, as affable in his manner, as kindly in his acts and as little inclined to demand servility or obsequiousness from those who meet him as is any other well-bred and courteous man of his age. Yet many doubtless did have a feeling analogous to surprise as they observed the demeanor of this Prince of Wales, and if they only spread amid their own sort a revised opinion of Governments unlike the one with which they are familiar—even that would give the British taxpayer something for his money.

But young EDWARD did much more than that. He won personal liking wherever he went—a personal liking that will be a help not only to himself but also to his country when he comes into his kingdom. He must have learned, too, much not taught in courts or colleges as to the way the world is made and managed—which is highly useful information. Possibly he would have learned more if he could have traveled incognito, but to do that would have been hardly practicable, and, anyway, it would have meant the loss of all or most of the advantages derived from the journey as made.

The informality that marked the Prince's arrival in his capital is notable. Big crowds cheered in the streets through which his carriage passed, but there was next to nothing of the ceremonial in his welcome home.

A Warning Sent to Employers.

In order that there may be no failure to take seriously the State law providing for immediate, and in a way universal, military training, Major J. WESLEY LYON, as Supervising Officer for the New York Zone, has issued a brief but vigorous notification to employers of what they must do with respect to boys between the ages of 16 and 19, inclusive. First he quotes the paragraph of the disciplinary training law that applies to them. They must see to it that every such boy, unless provided with a certificate of exemption from the military authorities, has enrolled for instruction and otherwise is meeting the requirements of the State Military Training Commission. Only when this requirement has been met can a boy either be employed or continued in employment. Full responsibility for the enforcement of the law is placed on the employer, and no leanings toward pacifism should betray him into neglecting his duty. Should they do so he is in for trouble. As nobody can have failed to notice what military training does for both the physique and the mentality of the young men subjected to it, there should be no antagonism to the law and no reluctance to help in its enforcement. The effects of the training are quite as valuable in peace as in war, and, though military, they are not in the slightest degree "militaristic," in the sense given to that word by the pacifists.

Criticism Ably Expressed.

In Manchester, England, the barbers, or the hairdressers, as they call them there, have struck, demanding that they be paid living wages instead of being forced to derive most of their income from tips. This is a motive which, if sincere, is virtuous enough to justify a strike, even in these troubled days, but we have had like strikes here, and though the higher wages sought often have been accorded, it is not recorded that the refusal of tips by barbers has become, anywhere or ever, either the prevailing fashion or an iron rule.

The Manchester Guardian, in discussing this particular "labor trouble," condemns the tipping system as "always profoundly embarrassing to him who gives and often profoundly unjust to him who does not take." Why, it asks, should we tip the man who cuts our hair and not the man who cuts our clothes, why the railway porter and not the engine driver, why the chauffeur and not the motorman and conductor on a trolley car?

It is in another passage of its article, however, that The Guardian rises to true eloquence and indulges in language really noble. "The tip is stupid and unjust," the reader learns, "because it is conditioned, not by services rendered, but by some spatial accident of adjacency." Why "of adjacency" had to be added to "special accident," or "spatial" to "accident of adjacency" is not quite clear at a distance from Manchester, but The Guardian must be right—it always is and admits it frankly.

FROM MR. HUGHES.

Amendments Not Made "in an Adequate or Satisfactory Manner."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am surprised to read the following statement in your editorial this morning: "It bears the impress of their minds; and the covenant provisions that have been so violently attacked are now shown to have been those proposed and approved by Mr. Taft, Mr. Hughes and Mr. Root."

You are evidently under a serious misapprehension, as this statement, so far as I am concerned, is without foundation.

The crux of the controversy with respect to the covenant is Article X. This article was neither proposed nor approved by me. On the contrary, I said at the outset that Article X. should be eliminated. For reasons which I stated in my speech at the Union League Club in March, 1919, I have always regarded Article X. as a vicious provision, having no place in a covenant designed to promote the peace of the world. I proposed an amendment eliminating Article X., and it was not accepted.

I may add with respect to certain amendments suggested by me which you state were adopted and incorporated in the covenant, that several of these were not adopted as I proposed them and were not made in an adequate or satisfactory manner. But the more important point is that the vital amendment relating to the elimination of Article X. was not adopted and the covenant provision that is the main subject of attack, and properly so in my judgment, was not proposed or approved by me.

CHARLES E. HUGHES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The average voter is being frightened by theoretical evils conjured up by legal experts. He dares not use his own common sense in reading Article X. The supposed menace in it is that we shall be in honor bound to send our boys beyond seas to quell outbreaks near or far away, and, of course, the same obligation applies to all other members. It should be remembered that Article X. concerns only those outbreaks which involve territorial aggression; that is, conquest. Also that troops would be sent only as an extreme measure after preventive measures and the boycott had failed.

In view of lamentable confusion of ideas about the matter, will any opponent of Article X. answer the following questions?

Is there any word in covenant or treaty which would under any circumstances compel France in honor to send troops to put down aggression of Paraguay in Uruguay? Need Japanese troops ever be sent to coerce Egypt, or we compelled to send our boys to the Balkans? Is there any word in covenant or treaty that would prevent our honorable share in "preserving, as against external aggression, the territorial integrity and existing political independence" of any nation by entering into regional arrangements as to the kind of support to be given? Is there anything to prevent the Council agreeing that military force shall be provided by the nearest nations to the aggressor, thus saving enormous waste and delay in calling on those more remote, and that the remote nations shall pay for the cost of the whole undertaking? Is not all that is involved in Article X., the provision that the thing shall be accomplished by the members and that the methods be left to the judgment of the Council and to the framers of new international law? This law governing details of procedure will gradually develop.

Have any other nations on whom Article X. is binding raised the objections which Senator Borah, Hon. David J. Hill and others are raising? If over forty nations have no fear of the consequences of being thus bound, why in the name of common sense should we?

A $5 Club for the League.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The President has started what might be called a $500 club in order to pay the legitimate expenses of the National Democratic Committee. Why not start $5 clubs, $3 clubs and $1 clubs? I have sent to the National Democratic Committee a $5 check for my membership in a $5 club, and there ought to be 10,000 contributors to similar clubs.

We want in our League of Nations to extend the Brotherhood of Man principles to the now rival and semi-antagonistic nations, so that ultimately we may have a real brotherhood of nations. Then the world will not only have continued peace, but its material wealth will be many times multiplied and a thousand times better distributed.

OLD TIMES READER.
New York, Oct. 9, 1920.

Dr. Parkhurst for Hartman.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Gustave Hartman is candidate for the position of Justice of the City Court. I wish that he might win out. His career has been most honorable. He is a product of the lower east side, was born in poverty, but has successfully contended with the adverse conditions of early life, and has gained the respect and confidence of all with whom he has been thrown into association in the various positions of responsibility which he has occupied.

I have known him intimately for several years, and feel that it is to the advantage of the general public that the claims of such men should be recognized.

THE COMING SILENCE.

Hark how the crickets
Are chanting unbidden
The passing of Summer!
By clouds overridden
The sky arches sadly
A landscape forsaken
Of color and glamour—
Few fruits hang unshaken.

Just hear how the crickets
They drown in the garden
The stray bee's deep humming.
They shrill through the night air
A chorus unceasing,
And win from the silence
A vigor increasing.

An onslaught of rainstorms
May hush their thin voices;
When sun-warmth returns
Each cricket rejoices,
And chants to the passing
Of year's-noon, bright Summer—
Chants bravely of Summer
To hearten us mortals.

Oh, hear those wee crickets!
Their monotone lingers
When Habit has deafened
Our ears with her fingers.
But who is complaining?—
A day is fast coming
So icebound, so silent,
We'll long for their strumming!

BEQUEST FOR LITERATURE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Provision for the establishment of a fund for the advancement of literature is made in the will of the late William Heinemann, publisher. Subject to two bequests of £500 each and the life interest of his mother and two sisters, half of his estate is left as a gift to the Royal Society of Literature for the establishment of a foundation or scholarship fund to be called the Heinemann Foundation for Literature.

The purpose of this foundation is to help in the production of literary work of real value. The prizes are to be deemed rewards for actual achievements. Works in any branch of literature may be submitted for the verdict of the Royal Society of Literature, and this verdict is to be final and without appeal. Works of fiction are not excluded from the competitions, but the judges are requested to bear in mind that the testator's intention is primarily to reward authors in those classes of literature which are least remunerative, namely, poetry, criticism, biography and history.

FRENCH ADOPT FOG CABLE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—The French Ministry of Marine has decided to lay down as soon as possible in all French ports and across the Channel, in collaboration with the British Admiralty, electric cables which will enable ships to steer safely into port in the densest fog.

The invention which is to be used is that of a French engineer, M. Loth, and appears, from an account given at the Academy of Sciences by Admiral Fournier, to resemble in general principles the one recently experimented with in America. The electric cable along which the current of alternative frequency is passed is submerged in the fairway. The secondary currents which such cable induces at a distance are picked up by ships' instruments, and, according to distance and sound, a pilot can judge whether he is in the middle or the outskirts of the fairway.

An airplane fitted with receiving instruments can follow the submerged cable. The proposal is made that the cable should have overland connection to aerodromes.

PLANS TO AID WORLD TRADE

PARIS, Oct. 12.—The Board of Directors of the International Chamber of Commerce adjourned today its two-day session after approving the holding of the second convention of the full membership in London in June next, the exact date not being determined upon. The Directors approved plans for expansion and expressed pleasure at the sympathetic attitude of the Chambers of Commerce of the nations belonging to the League of Nations.

The Directors said it was expected that most of the other League members would be represented at the next convention. The sessions of the board were attended by A. C. Bedford, Vice President; Judge Walter Berry, President of the American Chamber of Commerce of Paris, and H. L. Sheets for the United States, and representatives of France, Belgium, Great Britain and Italy. The next session of the board will be held in Paris Jan. 17 next.

Mr. Bedford said today that he was satisfied with the progress made by the International Chamber of Commerce.

"A big international organization necessarily moves slowly, but ultimately there will be splendid results," he declared. "The Chamber will, I believe, serve a useful purpose in connection with the Chambers of Commerce of the various nations, as the Chamber of Commerce of the United States now does for American commercial organization."

CHILDREN VISIT EX-KAISER.

He Is Still "Emperor and King" on Wedding Invitations.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Oct. 12.—The ex-Kaiser received today about forty German war widows and children at his house at Doorn, shaking hands and talking with each child. He appeared to enjoy himself as much as the children, who sang "Long Live the Kaiser." The children, who are staying at a pension near by, come every morning to the ex-Kaiser's gate.

The ex-Kaiserin, whose health had improved lately, is again suffering from heart trouble.

AMERICANS GAVE AIR SHOW.

Brought R-32 to London for Prince of Wales Celebration.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Much mystery surrounded the appearance over the city yesterday of the great dirigible R-32 during the celebration attending the arrival in London of the Prince of Wales. The presence of this air leviathan was not a part of the official program.

The Manchester Guardian today explains the matter thus:

"The R-32 is being used as a training ship for the American crew which will take the dirigible R-38 across the Atlantic to America. The Yankees were determined to see the Prince, and, in order to take no chances, they journeyed in the airship all the way from Howden, in Yorkshire. Incidentally, the R-32 was one of the features of the celebration, as she was a magnificent spectacle with her silver sides glistening in the sunshine."

A dispatch from London late in August said the dirigible R-32 had flown over London in the commencement of a twenty-four hour instructional flight carrying the American crew training in England to take over the dirigible R-38, under construction at Bedford for the United States Navy.

KING ALEXANDER VERY LOW.

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 12 (Associated Press).—Only the strong constitution of King Alexander of Greece is relied upon by his physicians to bring him through the crisis of his illness resulting from the bite of a monkey a short time ago. It was admitted at the palace today that the King had entered into the critical phase of his illness.

The Government, alarmed at the serious turn in the King's condition, today discussed the question of a regency and decided that the Council of Ministers would take up the task of administering the country in the event of the King's condition becoming worse.

Yesterday it was said at the palace that there had been little change in the condition of Alexander over that of Sunday. His physicians at that time refrained from giving any concise statement, although there was no attempt to conceal the fact that the illness of the monarch was grave.

FARM STRIKE URGED TO MAINTAIN PRICES

THEY DEMAND $3 WHEAT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Fiery threats of a general agricultural strike unless the Federal Reserve Board is more generous in allowing extension of credits to farmers were made here this afternoon at a meeting of farmers from Southern and Western States. The farmers were vigorous in expressing indignation over the board's present policy.

A note will be sent asking a personal interview with President Wilson, but Secretary Tumulty says that this is impossible because of the President's state of health. Tomorrow morning the farmers will present a set of resolutions and recommendations to the Federal Reserve Board and the members of the Cabinet, at a conference to begin at 10 o'clock.

"Let's say to the Federal Reserve Board that 40 cent cotton and $3 wheat are our prices, and if we don't get them we will try to get those in office who will loosen up, and failing that, we, ourselves, will not loosen up on a bushel of wheat, a pound of cotton or a pound of beef until you change your policy."

Shouts of "That's it!" and "Yes, yes," were heard from various parts of the room.

"If forty-cent cotton and three-dollar wheat are speculative, who says so?" demanded Senator Smith. "Who, I ask—the man who sweats in the field or the man who sits down at home and manipulates them? Who in America has been given the right to fix the price of anything? I'm tired of running around and asking appointed creatures to interpret the Federal Reserve law for me.

Would Defy Government on Prices.

"All the law needs is to be administered. The board has no right to differentiate between who shall have credit and who shall not. It costs 37½ cents to raise cotton, and the other 2½ cents is only a fair profit. If we want to hold cotton for $5 it is not the business of the board. All the board has to do is to discount our paper. And that's all I want the board to do. All I demand is that they pass on the paper's eligibility, and pay no regard to prices.

"So far as some people coming here and saying 'the Government will frown on that'—for God's sake! haven't we got a Government and isn't that Government the democracy of the people themselves? Let's say to the board, so far as 40 cent cotton and $3 wheat is concerned, you have nothing to do with the price."

The Federal Reserve Board was hammered right and left. Alfred Tumulin of Cave Springs, Ga., said it was "an octopus," and was "robbing the people."

"My God!" he exclaimed, "night riders in Georgia and day riders in Washington!"

Usurpation of authority by Government officials was discussed by Marion Butler, former Senator from North Carolina.

"There is a panic here right now, and it was made by the Federal Reserve Board," he said. "It was made by the power put into the hands of the Federal Reserve Board to prevent a panic."

B. C. Marsh, who is usually termed a radical in his views, opposed the sentiments of both Senator Smith and former Senator Butler.

"Let's not be Bolsheviki," he pleaded. Everybody here knows there's no panic, and there's too much common sense in America for a panic. I am astonished when Senator Smith advocated a farmers' strike. I voted for the bill making a labor strike a felony.

"It's true that the interests which control the country's finances are convinced that the farmer could not get his cost of production and a reasonable profit. But don't talk of 40-cent cotton, for that will make every workingman's wife see red, and say 'I know whom I'm going to vote for in November.'

For Inflation in Everything Else.

"The farmers are entitled to cost of production and a reasonable profit. But don't say that farmers will stop producing because you know they won't. Every man in this room wants deflation of everything except what he himself sells.

"Let's keep our heads," concluded Mr. Marsh.

Wheat production costs $21.50 an acre, and for tenants $2.77, so a board of State Secretaries of Agriculture determined, according to John Trumbull of Kansas.

"At a conference some of the farmers wished $3.33 a bushel and some $5.33," he asserted. "I don't think we should ask for more than $3, for that will pay for labor and expense of raising the crop. But remember, wheat is now selling for $1.50 and $1.65. We have got to do something to get a little profit for the consumer or the world will go hungry. You know what's happening now. The farmers are leaving the farms and going to the cities. Every time that happens, there is one less producer and one more consumer."

Dr. W. J. Spillman, former Chief of the Bureau of Farm Management under the Department of Agriculture, said there was a "drive" by the Federal Reserve Board to force wheat from $2.55 to $1.60.

Those in the Government are using their authority to manipulate the market," he said. "Is there no law to bring officers of the Government to justice and try them for malfeasance in office? If the Secretary of the Treasury and the Federal Re

ARCHDEACON STUCK DIES AT FORT YUKON

LONG LABORED IN ALASKA

Author Was Honored by Royal Geographic Society for His Achievements as Explorer.

The Rev. Hudson Stuck, Archdeacon of the Yukon, and the first white man to ascend the summit of Mount McKinley, died at Fort Yukon, Alaska, on Sunday. Word of his death was received yesterday by Dr. John Wood, Executive Secretary of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

The Archdeacon was born in England in 1863 and came to the United States in 1885. He was graduated from the theological department of the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn. Before he went to Alaska he was Dean of St. Matthew's Cathedral in Dallas.

In 1905 Archdeacon Stuck resigned his post in Dallas after ten years' service and went to Alaska. He was associated with Bishop Rowe of Alaska, and wrote much about the Bishop and the land in which he was working. As Archdeacon of the Yukon he traveled thousands of miles by dogs and on foot and he helped build up a great church work in that country.

Word that he has succeeded in reaching the top of Mount McKinley came in a dispatch from Fairbanks, Alaska, on June 21, 1913. With a guide, Harry P. Karstens, Walter Harper and R. G. Tatium, a mission helper, the Archdeacon successfully accomplished the perilous trip, a trip that Dr. Cook claimed to have made and which others had tried and failed.

The Royal Geographical Society in March of last year awarded to Archdeacon Stuck the Back Grant in recognition of his travels in Alaska and his ascent of Mount McKinley. He was the author of "Ascent of Denali (Mt. McKinley) and "Ten Thousand Miles with a Dog Sled."

YIELD TO FIFTH AV. TAILORS.

Employers Grant Demands After Strike, but Predict Price Rise.

A strike of men's tailors in the fashionable Fifth Avenue shops began yesterday morning, but with the granting of the union's demands by the Fifth Avenue Men's Tailors Association, last night, union officials believe the strike will be of short duration. They say that thirteen independent tailors settled with the strikers during the day and that a settlement by the association will be made either today or tomorrow.

The contract which the merchant tailors refused to renew called for the payment of time and a half for overtime and granting of four holidays during the year with full pay. The employers wished to allow the men only one holiday and to pay them only regular time for overtime. The number of men affected by the action of the tailors' association was said to be 600.

Joseph Immerman, President of the employers' association, said last night that the minimum wage was $40 for a 44-hour week, although many of the men received as much as $60 a week. The campaign to reduce the price of clothing, he said, caused many of the tailors to cut their prices, thereby sustaining a loss. They could have continued selling at this reduction, he said, if the employes had not insisted upon the restoration of the old contract, but because of this, prices would again have to go up, he predicted. They would not go down until the Fall of next year, Mr. Immerman declared, when the price of cloth will probably be reduced.

FACE INDEFINITE STAY

The Holland-American liner Nieuw Amsterdam, which arrived yesterday morning from Rotterdam via Boulogne and Plymouth with 621 cabin and 1,673 steerage passengers, was detained in Quarantine by the Health Officer of the Port because a boy in the steerage from Czechoslovakia had developed smallpox on the voyage.

After the first and second class passengers had been vaccinated they were landed last night with their baggage at the company's pier in Hoboken from steam barges. Among those in the first cabin who were vaccinated on the ship were Fritz Kreisler, the violinist, who has come on a concert tour with Mrs. Kreisler.

The Nieuw Amsterdam will be detained at Quarantine indefinitely with the 1,673 steerage passengers on board. There is no room, Dr. Leland Cofer, the health officer, said, at Hoffman Island, where aliens are usually sent for observation. The cost of feeding the passengers and the detention of the liner will be borne by the Holland-American Line. Both Swinburne and Hoffman Islands are crowded with immigrants from the Noordam, which had a case of typhus on board, and the Roma, which had a case of smallpox.

Dr. Cofer said yesterday that he anticipated this congestion several days ago and applied to the War Department for the use of a transport while the rush of immigrants lasted and the obsolete transport Lancaster was designated for this purpose, but she will not be ready to receive the immigrants for another two weeks.

Dr. Cofer added that he had fumigated 200 ships that have arrived in this port during the last month as a safeguard against bubonic plague. He said that he would take no chances of European diseases being carried to this country by steamship passengers.

IRISH TOWN RUINED BY FIRE.

When the Sinn Feiners burned the barracks of British soldiers stationed in Mallow, killing a sergeant, the military retaliated by burning the town. The ruin wrought will be reproduced next Sunday in photographs in The New York Times Rotogravure-Picture Section.—Adv.

Holland and New York

HOLLAND'S old time picturesque milkmaids delivering the small amount of milk they could carry in two earthen jars could hardly keep pace with the growth and progress of 1920.

Supposing today, you, as one of of 6,000,000 people in a great city like New York, had to depend upon such a supply of milk! How different it is here! Trains, auto trucks, hundreds of men, all work to get your milk to your door each morning. It comes to you fresh and pure, sealed in sanitary bottles.

Borden's Milk

Even in Holland, 1 quart of milk is equal to ¼ of a pound of beefsteak in energy food value—but how much easier it is to get here. Beefsteak now sells at 48c. and 60c. per lb.

FIRE PREVENTION DAY

Startling facts showing

Where America lags behind!

(1) Fire is actually sapping the financial strength of the United States at the rate of a million dollars a day.
(2) Our per capita loss by fire is greater than any other nation on earth.
(3) Every minute of every day in the year some one's building burns down.
(5) Conservation and preservation of our wood is an urgent national necessity. We use approximately 200 cubic feet of lumber per capita annually; Germany 36; France 25; England and Italy 14.
(6) We have undoubtedly the finest fire-fighting forces in the world, yet our great public institutions, colleges, hospitals, churches, schools, libraries, art galleries, museums, burn fiercely—take the million dollar fire at Johns Hopkins University last Thanksgiving Day, for instance.
(7) We have reduced in less than a century our forests from 850,000,000 acres to 150,000,000.
(8) Losses by fire plus the terrible criminal waste of lumber in the past makes it a solemn and urgent duty to fireproof wood.
(9) Over fifteen thousand men, women and children were sacrificed to fires last year in America.

"Therefore,—I, Woodrow Wilson, do urge"—

"Whereas the need of the civilized world for American products to replace the ravages of the great war is especially great at this time, and
"Whereas the present serious shortage of home and business structures makes the daily destruction of buildings by fire an especially serious matter, and
"Whereas a large percentage of the fires causing the annual American fire waste may be easily prevented by increased care and vigilance on the part of citizens,
"Therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States, do urge upon the Governors of the various States to designate and set apart Saturday, October 9, 1920, as Fire Prevention Day, and to request the citizens of their States to plan for that day such instructive and educational exercises as shall bring before the people the serious and unhappy effects of the present unnecessary fire waste, and the need of their individual and collective efforts in conserving the natural and created resources of America."

You CAN make wood so it WILL NOT BURN!

It is good to have a fine fire-fighting force—all praise to those brave men who have saved millions in money and untold thousands of lives—it is good to have sprinkler systems and fire extinguishers, but it is BETTER to have wood and a building that will not, indeed cannot, burn. It can be done!

You cannot burn wood treated with "Oxylene"!

You cannot burn wood or even any cellulose material that has been treated with "Oxylene." Try it and see. Treat a chunk of wood with it, and then attempt to light the fire. You can nail it, paint it, polish it, and work it how you like, but the whole output of a match factory won't make it burn, however intense the heat. Moreover, the treatment preserves the wood and prolongs its life.

What the "conservative" British Admiralty found by tests.

It has to be something of unusual merit supported by incontrovertible evidence to get the British Admiralty to submit an invention or a process to exhaustive tests over a long period. It subjected "Oxylene" to most severe tests, and when it adopted the process, gave larger orders than the makers could fill.

Amongst other tests the British Admiralty took pieces of teak 20 feet long by 6 inches square, split them down the centre and held small pieces in the naked flame of a smith's forge and a Bunsen burner. The flame of an electric arc also was played on the interior of the wood, and an oxy-acetylene lamp of 6,000° centigrade was tried. In no single instance did the wood catch fire. It was slightly charred at the point of contact with the heat applied, but the charring instantly ceased on the removal of the heat, a great point when one considers it is wood and wood alone which first gives fire a permanent foothold.

In the War—Fireproof Ships and Crews.

During the war, besides the woodwork of big ships, hundreds of destroyers, submarines, and motor-boats, etc., of the British Navy were lined with fireproof wood, and, in going into action, the sailors wore canvas masks similarly protected by the "Oxylene" process.

The British Board of Trade makes its use compulsory.

All the woodwork of the cars of the Metropolitan District and London "Tube" railways are treated by the "Oxylene" process, and the British Board of Trade makes it compulsory for "Tube" railway cars to be fireproofed. Several British Railway companies apply the system to their rolling stock, and it is being extensively utilised by the London County Council, many Municipal Corporations and a variety of commercial firms.

Buildings in Great Britain are in a large degree more solidly constructed than in the United States. Their component parts are for the most part brick, stone, and concrete. A wooden house is a rarity in England. Yet there is a large "Oxylene" fireproofing works in England, and it is only now that steps are being taken to install a similar plant near New York.

"The REAL Combustibles were Copper, Iron, and Brass."

In conclusion, see the striking statement of the British Board of Trade in its report on a fire on the Metropolitan District Railway:—

"We may here remark that all the woodwork on the Company's cars in proximity to electric conductors has been rendered non-inflammable. This and other occurrences of a similar kind have proved that the wood will char under the effect of intense heat from electric flashing, but will not catch fire. The real combustibles in this fire, if we may use the word, were copper, iron, and brass."

Proprietor of the Process.

The "Oxylene" process is the sole property of the Timber Fireproofing Co., Ltd., of Market Bosworth, Leicestershire, England, by whom it has been registered in every country in the world.

FORECAST MEASURES TO PUNISH IRELAND

SINN FEINERS GET THREATS

Major Smyth, Brother of Officer Assassinated in Cork, Is Among the Victims.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Leaders of the Sinn Fein movement in Ireland regard the speech made at Carnarvon, Wales, on Saturday by Premier Lloyd George as almost a "declaration of war on Ireland," says the Dublin correspondent of The London Times.

"There are many signs," adds the correspondent, "that the executive department in Dublin intends to bring matters to a head as quickly as possible by a concentrated campaign against disorder which, by inflicting general hardships on the country, may make crime and lawlessness 'truly unpopular.'"

Projected measures are said to include complete stoppage of the Irish railways and drastic reduction of the postal service until all railway workers agree to return to duty and until there is a cessation of raids on the mails.

DUBLIN, Oct. 12.—A statement issued from the Chief Secretary's department tonight warns the public that if attacks on Post Offices and mails are not discontinued the postal service anw be curtailed or even withdrawn altogether in the districts affected.

Threaten Death to Sinn Feiners.

CORK, Oct. 12.—The Cork Echo received today an anonymous letter purporting to emanate from "the Supreme Council, Cork Circle of the Anti-Sinn Fein Society," threatening death to Sinn Feiners if the killing of members of the crown forces continues.

The society is unknown to the Sinn Feiners, but the letter is accepted as authentic. It threatens the death of two Sinn Feiners for every member of the crown forces killed, and in the event that a Sinn Feiner is not available three sympathizers will be killed and the reprisals will apply equally to the laity and clergy of all denominations. It also threatens the death of a Sinn Feiner for any member of the crown forces wounded.

Copies of the letter have been addressed to other Cork newspapers and to the parish priest of Bandon, Canon Cohalan, brother of the Bishop of Cork.

The military in Cork last night were unusually active. There were raids and searches of private houses. Parties in lorries visited the schools of the Christian Brothers and made a minute inspection of the premises, including the desks of pupils.

An attack on a military lorry in the Mallow district of Cork yesterday morning resulted in the death of the driver and the wounding of three soldiers. It developed into another fight between soldiers hurried to the scene and the attacking party, which, according to a military headquarters report, numbered 150 men. It is said they were armed with machine guns, rifles and bombs.

Unlike Saturday's engagement at Newcestown, today's conflict was a long range affair, and it is believed there were no casualties which are not already reported. The scene of the ambush was near the town of Kanturk, the residents of which later closed their houses and shops and fled to the country, fearing reprisals.

Two Officers Killed in Dublin.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Oct. 12.—Two officers were killed and a non-commissioned officer was dangerously wounded while raiding a house in the Drumcondra district of Dublin this morning. About 1 o'clock the party of military visited the residence of Professor Carolan, who is attached to St. Patrick's Training College House, formerly occupied by Richard Mulcahy, M. P., and when Professor Carolan opened the door he was informed that the soldiers were in search of Mulcahy.

The professor explained that Mulcahy did not live there, but the party proceeded to investigate. As they were going upstairs shots rang out from the back of the house, apparently, and then developed into a fusillade of revolver and rifle fire. Mrs. Carolan, wife of the professor, who was in an upper room with her children during the affair, underwent a terrifying experience.

When the firing died down she heard her husband feebly calling for help from a landing, and found him shot through the neck. He could only moan "I am dying." The professor's wound was bandaged and he was taken to a hospital.

There is considerable mystery as to where the fatal shooting of the military actually occurred. It is circumstantially reported that there were two young men in the house whom the soldiers were seeking, and when the latter approached the apartment occupied by these men they were fired at. The men then retreated to a smaller room, adjoining the drawing room and conservatory, where a fierce engagement occurred. The glass door of the conservatory was punctured with bullet holes, and the conservatory itself practically wrecked, while the floor was extensively stained with blood. In the confusion the assailants succeeded in escaping.

One of the officers was shot dead, the other succumbing to his wounds within an hour.

DUBLIN, Oct. 12 (Associated Press)—Major George Smyth, brother of Commissioner Smyth of the Royal Irish Constabulary, who was assassinated in a club house in Cork where he was sitting with friends last Summer, was killed last night during military raids in Drumcondra, County Meath. The killing occurred while the military was raiding the home of Professor Carrolan of All-Hallowes College. The family of Major Smyth was notified of his death this evening.

Major Smith long had been in the British Army and had been decorated with the Distinguished Service Order and the Military Cross. At the time of the assassination of his brother he was serving in Egypt, but shortly afterward returned to Ireland and had been stationed in Dublin for a short time.

BELFAST, Oct. 12.—The report that a brother of the late Commissioner Smyth of the Royal Irish Constabulary had been killed near Dublin, as the Commissioner was in Cork last Summer, has caused a sensation here.

It is feared there will be a renewal of the disorders in Ulster.

Two Constables Killed.

BALLINDERRY, Oct. 12.—Constables Kenny and Crawford were shot dead and a Sergeant and two other Constables were badly wounded when a police motor car running between Roscommon and Ballaghadereen, County of Mayo, was fired upon this morning.

Burleson Loses His Appeal To Keep The Call Out of Mails

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Justice Hitz in the District of Columbia Supreme Court reaffirmed today his order directing Postmaster General Burleson to restore the mailing privilege to The New York Call, a Socialist newspaper published in New York.

The court overruled a motion for rehearing of the case and held that the Post Office Department had no authority to refuse the mailing privilege to future issues of the paper because in former issues there had appeared alleged seditious matter.

'Fighting Irish' Regiment Attends Service at Which Terence MacSwiney Is Eulogized.

Five hundred men in the uniform of the United States Army attended a high mass yesterday morning for "the spiritual and temporal welfare" of Terence MacSwiney, Lord Mayor of Cork, Ireland, on the sixtieth day of his hunger strike in Brixton Prison, London. It was the annual mass of the Veteran Guard of the 69th Regiment, known as "The Fighting Irish," in the Church of St. Francis de Sales, 135 East Ninety-sixth Street. Former Lieut. Col. Charles Healy of the 69th arranged the service.

The celebrant of the mass and the preacher was the Rev. James A. Dunnigan of St. Francis de Sales, who is Chaplain of the Veteran Guard. He preached on the text "Greater love than this no man hath than he that lays his life down for his friends." Father Dunnigan served as Chaplain in the late war in three divisions of the service—aviation, transport and ordnance. He lost a brother, who was fighting with the 69th, which became the 165th Infantry, A. E. F.

The mass was celebrated with the full pomp and splendor of a wartime field service. Bugle notes and the muffled roll of a drum were heard with the church chimes. A color guard stood at attention in front of the chancel, holding two staffs, one of which was the Stars and Stripes and the other the flag of the "Irish Republic." The church was filled with the Old Guard and members of Irish societies.

Father Dunnigan declared that, "Just so surely as the death of martyrs was the seed of the Catholic Church, just so surely would the death of Terence MacSwiney and his fellow heroes be the seeds of the Irish Republic." The chaplain described the Mayor of Cork as a man of courage, of character and of God.

GRAPE JUICE FOR MACSWINEY?

London Paper Says He Gets Fruit Juices and Alcohol.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Lord Mayor MacSwiney of Cork passed a very good night at Brixton Prison, and this morning was in the same rested and peaceful condition that was reported yesterday, said a bulletin issued by the Irish Self-Determination League this forenoon. This is the sixty-first day of his hunger strike.

The Evening News today says it "understands" that Lord Mayor MacSwiney's "remarkably fit condition" is due to his partaking of grape juice and the juices of other fruits, and frequently of spirits and wine.

In the opinion of the prison doctor, the newspaper asserts, MacSwiney may easily last another month.

ARREST SECOND IRISH PRIEST.

He Is Accused of Connection with Sinn Fein Raids.

BELFAST, Oct. 12.—The Rev. O. W. Mehan, senior Catholic curate of Castlebar Parish, County Mayo, was arrested this morning in the presbytery of his church for alleged connection with extensive raids in that district.

This is the second arrest of a priest reported within a week. The other was said to have been the first priest taken into custody for many years.

ARREST SPEAKERS AT STREET RALLY

Rev. J. H. Holmes, Rose Schneidermann and Norman Thomas Held in Mount Vernon.

Three members of the American Civil Liberties Union of Manhattan, who attempted last night to read the Constitution of the United States and also to speak about their union on a public street in Mount Vernon, were arrested by the police there after they chased the automobile occupied by the speakers three times around a block.

The speakers finally alighted near the corner of North Fourth Avenue and Prospect Avenue, and attempted to hold a meeting which the police in charge of Police Commissioner Wynne and Lieutenant Silverstein broke up. Those arrested were the Rev. John Haynes Holmes, who said he was Pastor of the Community Church in New York, Miss Rose Schneidermann, candidate for Senator and organiser of the Women's Trades Union League, and Norman Thomas, editor of the World Tomorrow. Bail of $200 each was furnished by Gerson Robbieson, a wealthy New York business man, who lives at St. Helier, a country estate near Mt. Vernon.

The speakers were charged with violating a city ordinance which prohibits public speaking, where crowds gather, without a permit from the Mayor. The speakers were asked if they had a permit from Mayor Kincaid, who had declined to grant permits to Socialists, and said they had not. While the police were arresting the speakers, there were cries from the crowd of "drive them out of town."

The automobile containing the three speakers arrived in Mount Vernon at 8:30, decorated with an American flag, and stopped in front of Proctor's Theatre, where there was a big crowd entering the building. A squad of police ordered the autoists away, but they alighted near the City Hall and dashed up and down the street, followed by the police and 2,000 men and women, including many American Legion members.

The Rev. Mr. Holmes started to read the Constitution and Lieutenant Silverstein asked him if he had a permit. He replied in the negative, but said "I'm here as representative of the American Civil Liberties Union." He was told he could not speak and said "I insist on speaking." He was taken to the police station and the three were soon arrested as soon as they tried to speak.

The prisoners gave out a statement which said:

"We came to Mount Vernon to find out whether the Mayor of any American city could actually prevent peaceful citizens from exercising their constitutional right of free speech. We asked for a permit but were refused. We are convinced that any ordinance which purports to give the Mayor any such authority power is unconstitutional and void and violates any constitutional principle since the time of Thomas Jefferson. The fight will go on until true Americanism prevails."

FRENCH REALIZE FINANCIAL PERIL

HUGE BURDEN OF PENSIONS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—France is being bled white, financially speaking, by the terrific drain of reparations and pensions, which amount to more than 20,000,000,000 francs ($4,000,000,000 at normal exchange) per annum. The Treaty of Versailles stipulates that this money shall be paid by Germany. England signed it; Germany signed it; other nations signed it; but Germany does not pay, and France does. America signed it, too, and though she did not ratify it, the French have yet to learn that this clause at least has aroused any objection in the United States.

In the next few weeks the reparations question must be thrashed out between Germany and her former enemies. Already the preliminary diplomatic battle is raging fiercely. But America stands aloof from the whole business, which is of vital concern not only to France and Germany, but to the future of Europe and the world.

Educated Frenchmen are closely following the electoral struggle in America and make allowances for America's temporary absorption in it, but it is no exaggeration to say that all classes here are filled with bitter and growing disappointment at the wholly negative attitude of the United States. "Was it then entirely from selfish interests," they ask, "from fear that if Germany won it would be America's turn next, that your soldiers crossed the sea and fought and died on French soil beside ours? Are all the expressions of friendship and good will uttered by leading Americans here just so much lip service, or at best the formal politeness of visitors? We cannot believe it. And yet, now, when the blood of France's peacetime life—money—is running out just as rapidly as the real blood of her soldiers when Ludendorff was battering our last line of defense, America makes no sign, gives no word of encouragement or support."

Peril Only Recently Realized.

Not the least unfortunate part of the French situation is that the general public in America and other countries probably does not for a moment dream that matters are a tenth part so critical as they are. Even upon the French themselves the full realization of their danger has burst but recently. No one is more to blame for this than the French Finance Minister, Frédéric François Marsal, who seems to have labored under the delusion that by underlining the good points and ignoring the bad ones he could turn black into white.

No member of the French Cabnet has been so prodigal of newspaper interviews in which the genuine increase of French production and the genuine balancing of the ordinary budget by taxation have been emphasized to the complete exclusion of reference to the fatal twenty billions France is annually spending, far beyond her income for reparations and pensions. That he dismissed with the cheerful hope that Germany would pay. But Germany does not and France must.

The Finance Minister would doubtless excuse his optimism by his desire to bolster French credit in view of the repayment this month of $250,000,000 to American bankers and to improve the value of the franc. In both cases the results have perhaps now taught him that in money matters facts and figures speak more loudly than words. The loan "repayment" was actually made by the reborrowing of two-fifths of the total amount at exceedingly high interest by the sale of French-held securities in America, representing about half of the total, and by the shipment of gold from France to make up the balance.

Thanks to the optimism of the Finance Ministry, and in particular to highly colored assertions that the repayment of the loan above-mentioned had been arranged satisfactorily, the value of the franc did improve during the Summer months from seventeen to the dollar to eleven. The chief effect of this recovery was to cause very serious embarrassment to big French importers who had bought abroad at high rates and were unable to sell here at low. For inevitably, when the real facts about the loan leaked out, the franc began to creep down again, and now stands at fifteen to the dollar, with prospects of a further decrease.

A week or so ago the French press published an inspired statement from the Ministry of Finance to the effect that part of the proceeds of the forthcoming national loan would be used to reduce currency inflation by withdrawing 5,000,000,000 or 6,000,000,000 francs of paper money from circulating. What are the facts? On Friday there appeared a modest note obscurely tucked away in the corner of the news sheets stating that the circulation of banknotes was to be increased from 40,000,000,000 to 41,000,000,000.

More Currency Inflation.

Earlier in the year the Government had been empowered to raise it from forty to forty-three. During the "optimism drive" of the Summer much stress was laid on the fact that despite the power to add these six billions to the floating paper, the Government had not found it necessary to do so, and the figure remained at thirty-seven. Now the public learns that it has already been raised to forty, to which another billion has just been added.

I have already referred to the attempt made by the Finance Ministry to make payments for work done in the devasted area in 100-franc—and upward—shares of the coming national loan. This was vigorously resisted by the parties interested, and the Ministry explained that one of its circulars had been misinterpreted. Just the same, the French public is now being informed by the majority of the newspapers that shares of the new loan are issued at 500 francs notes without any formality for their transferrence from A to B, which, of course, is simply disguised inflation.

These are the facts of the French case, which explain why the great and genuine improvement of France's commercial balance is not improving the country's credit. That improvement is just a drop in the bucket compared with the appalling drain of the reparations billions.

2,000 Vienna Bank Clerks Strike.

VIENNA, Oct. 11.—Two thousand men, making up the entire clerical staff of the Post Office Savings Bank, struck today, demanding more rapid promotion and better working conditions. The daily turnover of this bank approximates 1,000,000,000 crowns, and the strike is strongly resented by the public, which attempted to storm the building today.

Federal Prosecution for Night Riders If They Break Any National Statutes

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12. — Federal prosecution of "night riders" and others responsible for the burning of cotton and cotton gins in the Southern States will be ordered if an investigation ordered today discloses violation of any Federal laws.

Department of Justice agents have been instructed to investigate and report immediately instances where Federal laws appear to have been violated. In most cases, officials believe, the outrages have constituted crimes only under State laws, but the investigation was ordered when it was indicated that there might have been interference with shipments in interstate commerce.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 12.—The shooting to death yesterday of a negro guard at a cotton gin in Arkansas, numerous fires of undetermined origin in which cotton has been destroyed, and widespread threats of night riders to burn gins whose owners ignore warnings to discontinue operations until the staple reaches a price of forty cents a pound, have resulted in the issuance of proclamations by Governors Brough, of Arkansas, and Kilby, of Alabama, and statements of their position by Governors Dorsey, of Georgia, and Cooper, of South Carolina.

Governor Brough, upon being advised last night of the shooting of Nora Canada, in Lonoke County, issued a proclamation, citing the killing and "lawlessness in some of our counties growing out of the prevailing low price of cotton." The Governor called upon the State Adjutant General and sheriffs of counties "where there are likely to be disturbances," to use all power at their command to "suppress these night riding outrages." Posts of the American Legion also were urged to cooperate with the authorities.

The killing of Canada until late last night had been regarded by the authorities as a possible outgrowth of night riding activities, as the owner of the gin at which the negro was killed, is said to have received a warning to close it. Two negroes have been arrested and charged with the killing, however, and one of them is said to have confessed that the motive was robbery, refuting the theory that the shooting was an act of night riders.

In a proclamation citing the burning of gins and gin houses in Alabama, Governor Kilby has offered a reward of $250 for the arrest and conviction of any person guilty of the destruction of property.

Governor Cooper, in a communication to L. W. Harris, Solicitor of the Tenth Judicial Circuit of South Carolina, deplored the acts of "fanatics" and gave assurance that should any situation develop which would require extra effort on the part of the State he would not hesitate to order it.

APPEALS AGAINST TREATY PROVISION

WAR PREVENTED PAYMENT

He Fought and Lost His Business, and Now Considers That the Claim Is Unjust.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—For the first time in Paris courts an appeal is to be heard against a clause of the Peace Treaty, and the judges will be called on to make an interpretation in which justice, though not law, has every appearance of being on the side of the appellant.

The clause in question is Annex 22 to Article 296, which states that interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum shall be paid on debts between individuals of the belligerent countries, such interest to run from the date of the commencement of hostilities.

The appellant against this clause of the treaty is a Paris business man, Monsieur Dufour. Before the war he traded with several German houses and when hostilities began he had a bill for 10,000 francs against him in Germany due on Aug. 10, 1914. When the bill fell due Dufour had been mobilized into the French army and the state of war between the two countries made it quite impossible for him to pay the bill. In the war the merchant was once wounded and later he was made a prisoner. When he returned home after the armistice he found that his business had been closed and all his commerce was at an end. Patiently he set to work to build up again, and after a severe struggle is beginning to recover his lost four years.

He had not forgotten about his bill with his German customers, which he lumped in with other liabilities when he again began business. Now he has had an unpleasant reminder of it in the form of a notification from the Minister of War that in virtue of the article of the Peace Treaty mentioned above he must pay his 10,000 francs, plus 5 per cent. per annum since Aug. 10, 1914, when the bill fell due.

He has refused to pay the interest on the ground that the war was no fault of his and that had the bill been presented on the date of expiry it would have been paid. Had he tried to pay it during hostilities he would have been liable to be shot for trading with the enemy. To add to the injustice of the case, while Dufour was fighting and being ruined for his country, the German firm to whom he owed the money was getting wealthier and wealthier out of war business. It wasn't their fault that they couldn't present the bill on the day it fell due, and it wasn't Dufour's fault that he couldn't settle. In these circumstances he refuses to acknowledge the right of the Peace Conference or anyone else to compel him to pay interest on the money, and he is awaiting a summons to appear in court and state his case.

200 SARDINIANS BURY ANCIENT BLOOD FEUD

MILAN, Oct. 11.—Scenes have been witnessed in the last week in the Island of Sardinia that takes one's thoughts back to primitive patriarchal times. The practice of taking private vengeance for wrongs, real or imaginary, still lingers in the esteem of the inhabitants as a religious duty. Six prominent families at Agrius, in Sassari Province, have kept up a blood feud for generations. In thirty-five years no fewer than seventy-five of their kinsfolk have perished in this private warfare.

At length the joint endeavors of the ecclesiastical and civil authorities have been crowned with success in bringing about a memorable reconciliation. A great gathering of the clans took place at Templo Pausania, whither over 200 male representatives of the victims' families flocked from all parts of the island. The womenfolk were kept indoors under lock and key. The Bishop of the diocese celebrated high mass in the barrack square and delivered a moving oration on the grandeur of the Christian law of forgiveness. The inveterate enemies of yesterday then came forward in pairs before the improvised altar, fell weeping upon one another's necks and gave the ritual kiss of peace amid the joyous applause of the assembly.

Nearly all the chief actors in the scene were natives whose hands in their time had been stained with blood. Conspicuous in the group was their tribal patriarch, Paolo Leperi, a hoary old sinner, keen-eyed and cherry-cheeked, who, though long past fourscore and ten, yet carries his giant figure proudly upright.

Appropriate addresses were also delivered by the King's Procurator and the Prefect and Mayor of Sassari, after which the Bishop, crowned with his mitre and with his crozier in his hand and surrounded by his cathedral canons and richly robed seminarists, solemnly administered the reconciled enemies the oath of a new covenant of mutual respect and lifelong brotherly love.

EXPECTS AMERICA TO ASSURE LEAGUE

Wallace Declares Western Spirit May Have to Save World from "Barbarous Proletariat.'

PARIS, Oct. 12.—Columbus Day furnished the occasion for a Pan-American demonstration at the Allied Club, where Dr. Gaston de Cunha, Brazilian Ambassador to France, gave a dinner in honor of the American Ambassador, Hugh C. Wallace, and the diplomatic representatives of the South American republics. M. de Peralta, the Costa Rican Minister and Dean of the Diplomatic Corps, and the Minister from Paraguay, Dr. Baez, were unable to be present.

In welcoming the guests Dr. Cunha said:

"The moment has come for the Americas, the culminating moment that arrives for each nation in the evolution of history. Today, after the great war in which was consumed the old social organization, and at a time when a new order of things is being laboriously framed, the Americas appear to the peoples tried by so many sufferings as the land of promise, the land of the future.

"We Americans are grateful to European civilization from which we sprang and are seeking to strengthen more and more the ties by which we desire to be attached to Europe when we signalize our definite participation in the councils of the world. We repeat with legitimate pride that in the whole expanse of the American continent, extending from one pole to the other, flanked by two great oceans and fraternally opened to the enjoyment of all peoples of the universe, our countries are in the New World the capitalization of European civilisation."

The Ambassador referred feelingly to the absence of the Ministers of Costa Rica and Paraguay and recalled the struggle between Brazil and Paraguay.

"It is today most agreeable to us, he continued, "to give to Paraguay public assurance of our unclouded friendship and unreserved esteem."

Turning to Ambassador Wallace he said:

"I salute our great sister of the North, creator of our political institutions—the country of federalism with Hamilton, the country of the rights of peoples with Wilson; the leading nation, which, by an action of moral grandure without equal in history, came forward to offer all the resources of its opulence to the cause of humanity; the honored and disinterested champion of the highest ideals of Christianity, whose solidarity in the war decided the victory and still can in peace, we hope and expect, assure for the benefit of the world the existence of the League of Nations, consolidated by mutual respect and the friendly collaboration of all peoples, without distinction between victors and vanquished."

Replying for the United States, Ambassador Wallace said:

"It should not be forgotten that it was the spirit and force of the New World which decided the issue of the great war in favor of justice and right. That should admonish us that the Western Hemisphere should be knit together in friendship and faith against in that unity may come the opportunity to decide the fate of the world. It saved it from despotism, it may be called upon to save it from a barbarous proletariat."

Among those present was Nilo Peçanha, former President of Brazil.

He, together with the Argentine Minister, Señor de Alvear, the Cuban Minister, Dr. Martinez y Ortiz, and the Peruvian Minister, Dr. Mariano Cornejo, responded to toasts.

At the same time in another dining room the Interallied Club of Naval and Military Attachés of the United States and Brazil gave a dinner to the naval and military attachés of the Central and South American Republics.

SOCIALISTS DEFY LENIN.

Italian Moderates Accept Challenge of the Maximalists.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Oct. 12.—Lenin, quite unintentionally, rendered Italy a great service when he hurled his edict of excommunication against several members of the Italian Socialist Party. This action on the part of the Russian dictator, coupled with the report of the Italian Socialist commission which went to Russia, opened the Socialists' eyes to the danger their country was being led into by the Maximalists with all sorts of impossible promises, which seemed attainable to the workmen after their victory in the metallurgical controversy.

The Socialists had allowed themselves to be supinely carried along on this wave of anarchy, but attacked, both at home and abroad, those who consider themselves pioneers of Socialism rebelled, reaffirmed their right to act independently and defied their Communist enemies.

The Socialist meeting at Reggio Emilia was a tangible sign of this emancipation from the influence of the revolutionary elements. The disagreement between the Maximalists and the Socialists is only in form. Their aim is the same, namely, to take over the reins of Government, the former by violent measures, the latter gradually and pacifically. Both, however, agree on one point, and that is no collaboration with the bourgeoisie.

REGGIO EMILIA, Italy, Oct. 11.—Internal and foreign conditions affecting Italy were painted in darkest colors by Deputy Modigliani, Socialist, in addressing the Congress of Moderate Socialists here today. He insisted upon the necessity of settling the question whether the Socialists would participate in the Government, and said the months of February and March would probably bring a disastrous food situation. He declared a Socialist administration would be better able to face such an emergency than a bourgeois government, because the "Socialists have greater authority over the masses and can ask them to make sacrifices which will lead to great conquests."

FLETCHER DECLARES LEAGUE IS AT WORK

Florida Senator Says It Is Fulfilling Its Mission Without Our Aid.

SEES OUR PRESTIGE WANING

He Blames Republican Leaders for This and Woes of Continuing World Disorder.

By WILLIAM H. CRAWFORD.

Senator Duncan U. Fletcher brings out in an interview evidence that the League of Nations is already functioning; that it is functioning without the United States; that America has no say in the settling of world affairs; that this country is not occupying the place at the council board of the world that its size, power and importance entitle it to fill. The Senator blames the failure of America to take her proper position to the playing of politics on the Republican Party.

"The League of Nations is functioning," Senator Fletcher says, "notwithstanding the declaration by the Republican candidate and in the Republican platform, in substance, that the League of Nations is a failure.

"The facts are that the Council has held up to this time ten sessions, and has practically settled the differences between Finland and Sweden regarding the Aland dispute, both countries having agreed to abide by the decision of the Council, to which the question has been referred. Likewise, the actual conflict between Poland and Lithuania has engaged the attention of the Council, and hostilities have ceased pending the action of the Council in reference to that matter.

"The American Government accepted the invitation to participate in the League's International Financial Congress at Brussels, although we had to be represented unofficially by a delegate from the Treasury and take a subordinate part in the conference because we are not a member of the League.

"America was represented likewise in an unofficial capacity on the commission selected by the Council in pursuance of Article XIV. of the Covenant of the League of Nations, which formulated the plan for the League's permanent court of International Justice. Mr. Root was a conspicuous member of that commission of jurists which concluded this work recently at The Hague.

American Interests Being Sacrificed.

"It was quite important for us to be a member on the League's International Health Commission, but, not being a member of the League, that was impossible. The best we could do was to get the National Red Cross to appoint an American physician as its representative on this Health Commission.

"There are some fifty American soldiers imprisoned in Moscow, and the American Government has to appeal to the League of Nations to get them out.

"We observe that the League is already in operation and dealing with matters directly affecting our interests, and we are excluded by our own choice. We are missing some very important, far-reaching matters. For instance:

"The League has formed a permanent disarmament commission which is collecting information regarding the traffic in munitions in non-progressive countries, and beginning the work of disarmament.

"The League has a Treaty Registration Section with which twenty International treaties already filed. We have always advocated open diplomacy, and here we are on the outside, depriving ourselves of any participation in these matters.

"Great Britain and Japan have submitted their treaties to the League, and we are not in position to make effective our Far Eastern policy as we would be if a member of the League.

"Large parts of the colonial world, including the former German colonies, is under the supervision of the League, and the United States is having no voice in the settlement of details concerning mandative territory, soon to be submitted to the Council for approval, although we have always contended for an equal opportunity in the colonial world.

"We are responsible in large measure for delays and inaction, whereas if we had promptly ratified the treaty with or without such reservations as did not materially change it, as we should have done, a great deal of the trouble in the world today would have been avoided.

"Other nations looked to us as the champions of the proposal for a League of Nations to continue our leadership, and they waited and hoped in vain. The unsettled condition of things continued and grew worse, for which our wrangling and differences and failure to act must be held responsible.

Republican Party Yet in Doubt.

"The Republican candidate leaves the matter still in doubt. At one time he says he is wholly against Part I. of the treaty, providing for the League of Nations, and then again he says portions thereof may be accepted and tacked on to the Hague Tribunal or some other organization, and be made worth while.

"Mr. Taft very well says:

Mr. Harding says he has no expectation of finding it necessary or desirable to negotiate a separate treaty with Germany. Then he must look to the Treaty of Versailles for those rights and privileges, and he can only secure them by becoming a party to it.

"As far as Senator Harding's society or association, which he suggests may be hereafter established is concerned, Mr. Taft is equally contemptuous, saying:

No one can suppose that the principal Allied Powers will consent to a new association or league when the old one is part of the Treaty of Versailles, and it would be foolish for Mr. Harding to thatat on this when only through a ratification of the treaty can he make secure our rights and privileges against Germany.

"Senator Harding's suggestion about utilising the Hague Tribunal and putting teeth in it, is also absurd, and is also equally clearly denounced by Mr. Taft when he says:

Mr. Harding prefers The Hague Tribunal as the proper court, but the Root-Phillimore court is far better adapted to the purpose which Mr. Harding has in mind than The Hague Tribunal.

"The court referred to is, of course, the one provided by Article XIV. of the Covenant of the League of Nations, heretofore mentioned, which have no existence except as a part of the machinery of the League for maintaining international law and minimizing the costs of war.

"Mr. Taft well says:

"So the substitute proposed is not only hazy and uncertain and doubtful in character, but, so far as an expression of what is meant is concerned, it would be futile and worthless.

Source of Opposition.

"There is no question but the real opposition to the League, which simmers down practically to an attack on Article X., is inspired and based on opposition to the great record of the Democratic Administration, the achievement of President Wilson, and the leadership which the opposition would like to discredit.

"Outside of these bitter partisans, who are the other opponents? They have not hesitated to declare themselves. They are people who think more of other countries than they do of America; people in some instances who are prompted by hatred of England. Some alleged friends of Ireland are doing Ireland the greatest possible injury by opposing the League of Nations. The real opportunity for Ireland arises under the provisions of this League of Nations, by the active participation therein of her friends.

"Other opponents are those who have never been in full sympathy with the United States in the conflict with Germany. An organization known as the 'German-American Alliance' whose charter was canceled by Congress because of its disloyalty to the Government, is broken up into numerous other organizations having the same sentiments and the same feelings and purposes. They have indorsed the Republican candidate. In the name of Americanism they are supporting the Republican candidates in their efforts to destroy Americanism. The situation is analogous to the Bolsheviki, who employ dynamite and violence in the name of freedom, which their very actions will crush. George Sylvester Viereck, editor of the late Fatherland, and now of the American Monthly, says:

'The Democratic candidate is impossible. He is the candidate of Woodrow Wilson and the League of Damnations.'

"He advises his followers to 'vote for the Republican candidate.'

"The German-American vote, so called, being the anti-American, pro-German vote, is for Senator Harding because of his declarations against the League of Nations and in favor of a separate peace with Germany.

"Senator Harding has declared: 'I can only say that our entire foreign policy will be completely changed if the Republicans come into power.' He has declared for a separate peace with Germany. He is opposed to going into the League of Nations. The New York Sun boasts that 'not one prominent German daily stands behind Governor Cox in his drive for the Presidency.'

"Do the spirits of our boys want the people who shot them from the front and stabbed them in the back put in control of this Government?

"There is another reason which no doubt actuates many of these gentlemen who are supporting the Republican ticket in spite of Americanism, and that is Article CCCCXXXIX. of the Treaty, which provides:

'Without prejudice to the provisions of the present treaty, Germany undertakes not to put forward directly or indirectly against any Allied or associated power, signatory of the present treaty, including those which, without having declared war, have broken off diplomatic relations with the German Empire, any counter claim based on events which occurred at any time before the coming into force of the present treaty.

"Then again, Article CCCCXXXX.:

Germany accepts and recognises as valid and binding all decrees and orders concerning German ships and goods and all orders relating to the payments of costs made by any prize courts of any of the allied or associated powers, and undertakes not to put forward any claim arising out of such decrees or orders on behalf of any German nationals.

"Thus under the treaty the terms of settlement with Germany are agreed upon. There is to be no claim against the United States by reason of the more than one billion dollars' worth of ships which we seized during the war. There is to be no demand by Germany or German nationals, alien enemies, by reason of the more than one billion dollars' worth of property taken over under the Alien Enemy Property Custodian act.

"By ratifying the treaty we reach definite conclusions with Germany. By rejecting it all these matters are thrown wide open.

"Is that not reason enough for so-called German-Americans to want this treaty rejected? Is that any reason why any true, loyal citizen of the United States should refuse to ratify the treaty?

Consequences of Adverse Action.

"It stands today rejected, because, after eight months of discussion, by reason of the opposition in the Senate led by the Foreign Relations Committee, which had been framed for that purpose, it could not receive a two-thirds vote of those present.

"The consequences to the world have been lamentable. The rejection of the treaty denies us participation in all those matters which would tend to prevent a recurrence of another calamity such as we have just experienced, causes the United States to forfeit moral leadership in the world and lose its power and influence, which it could exert for the good of humanity; places us in a selfish attitude, caring only for what we conceive to be our own little world, 'careless of mankind.'

"There is no hope for any other plan or process than that embodied in Article I. of the Peace Treaty, and carried through that instrument. If America is determined to reject this, then there is nothing to do but to enlarge our military establishment, increase our armament, lay burdens upon the shoulders of our people and prepare for the next war, which, when it comes, may eliminate the race.

"Our companions along that route thus far will be Russia and Mexico, besides Turkey, Austria and Germany. Even the 1st enemies are applying to become members of this League, and doubtless will so become.

"We can yet retrieve our position, take our proper place among the enlightened powers of the world, and in the forefront of civilization, if we act wisely and promptly."

CONDEMNS ANTI-FRENCH CAMPAIGN IN GERMANY

CASSEL, Germany, Oct. 12.—At the Socialist Congress in session here Herr Cohen, a member of the majority Socialist Party, today criticised what he termed the campaign of systematic agitation against France, which he charged was led by Vorwärts of Berlin. Herr Cohen declared in favor of loyal acceptance of the Versailles Treaty and pointed out the necessity for Germany to reach a friendly understanding with France.

All the other orators, one of whom was Philipp Scheidemann, former Secretary for Foreign Affairs, protested against the utterances of Herr Cohen.

BERLIN, Oct. 11 (German Wireless Service).—The Majority Socialistic Party at its meeting at Cassel yesterday elected ex-Chancellors Hermann Mueller and Philipp Scheidemann Presidents. A hearty welcome was accorded the Danish, Swedish and Dutch representatives, who expressed their sympathy with the German Republic and urged the continuation of the fight against capitalism and imperialism. Representatives of the Danzig and Saarre districts were thanked for showing their allegiance to their Fatherland.

Mary Young, that prime favorite of the old Castle Square in Boston over whose earlier regulishness so many successful Harvard classes chuckled and applauded delightedly, made another attempt to conquer New York last evening and this time, to judge from that small portion of the greater city assembled in the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre, may be said to have succeeded. She gives a resourceful, amusing and always interesting performance in this play "The Outrageous Mrs. Palmer," which so captivated her own Boston when she experimented with it there last Winter. It is an entertaining, brightly written and distinctive comedy which would seem much more so if it had been less garishly mounted and less crudely directed.

Like "Enter Madame," which it resembles in more than one particular, this new piece by Harry Wagstaff Gribble is a comedy of temperament—a study of the temper, tantrums, wit, philandering sentiment of a famous actress. The lobby between the acts last evening was all abuzz with speculation as to the identity of the woman who had served as the model and inspiration of "The Outrageous Mrs. Palmer." Despite a very considerable process of idealization, it would require no profound familiarity with the personnel of the English-speaking theatre to name her, and even the most detached and remote of theatregoers could tell from the very nature of the portrait as painted in the play that it was, indeed, a portrait and no mere invention.

It would take a rare genius to invent Mrs. Palmer out of whole cloth, and the rest of the material in the play suggests that Mr. Gribble is hardly that.

Mrs. Palmer is a star of the American stage, the spoiled darling of her own little world, fond of her lovers, but fonder still of her son. Like the rampageous Lisa of the Varesi play at the Fulton, she is a conceited, middle-aged woman," but one full of charm and devilry, a grandmother who holds grimly on to her youthful beauty, and is an amusing trial to all who know her.

A proud woman is Mrs. Palmer on the nights of her stage triumphs in New York; but a far prouder woman when that son of hers goes off to war—though still she seems younger than he as she makes some preposterous mittens for him and gets ready for the day of his departure under a vague impression that he will ride off from under her window mounted on a milk-white palfrey. The scandal sheets are ever full of the doings of Mrs. Palmer, past and present, but they never have any record of the day when she finds her son blind and mutilated in an army hospital, never know how she gives blood from her body to save his, and gives will from her spirit to bring him back to life.

It may be guessed from this much that "The Outrageous Mrs. Palmer" grows deadly serious as the evening wears on, and it must be recorded that at about the same time it takes a turn for the worse. It is a little less amusing in terms of entertainment and a little less true in terms of life to have the bizarre lady lose in the hours of her trial quite all the spunk and sparkle, quite all the devilry and sarcasm which have made her worth known in the first place.

It is the more regrettable that this collapse of personality should occur in a play which is as dependent on the one personality as "Lightnin'" is or Ever-while Susan was. You sit through the final act, too genuinely interested to wander from the theatre and yet restless with your desire for some gleam of the old Mrs. Palmer who had never been downed before. She is full then of maternal heroics, of majestic tenderness. Surely it might all be salted by a slight suggestion that every once in a while she was amused at herself in such a role.

It is a spirited, competent and highly engaging performance which Miss Young gives as Mrs. Palmer. The surrounding company is a peculiar one. Its roster suggests an old home week of the American stage. When you have Henry E. Dixey, Eugenie Blair and Minna Gale Haynes all in one cast you have the old playgoers supplied with enough reminiscence to last all the way home. They are all equal to their several occasions and a really capital performance is given by Raymond Hackett, who will be remembered as the private Lincoln pardoned in the fifth scene of the Drinkwater play during its New York engagement.

Of some of the other members of the company it is difficult to speak with like enthusiasm, and at least two parts are distressingly cast. The play suffers cruelly from tasteless, hammer-and-tongs direction. Of the kind of sophisticated finesse it needs and deserves the production is utterly innocent.

COHAN SHINES IN NEW ROLE.

THE MEANEST MAN IN THE WORLD. A comedy in three acts by Augustin MacHugh, based upon a one-act play by Everett Ruskay. At the Hudson Theatre.

It was undeniably Mr. Cohan's evening at the Hudson last night. The world's nimblest theatrical manager, having been about to produce a simple and rural comedy whose leading rôle called for a player of personality, had stepped into the cast himself at one of the out-of-town performances less than a week ago. Last night, although no formal announcement of the Cohan presence had been forthcoming, the hosts which are Broadway filled the theatre—and stood half a dozen deep to behold their favorite player.

"The Meanest Man in the World" is a typical Cohan comedy, despite the fact that the name of another playwright is affixed to it. It was originally a vaudeville sketch by the late Everett Ruskay, and as such it saw service for several seasons in the two-a-day houses. Augustin MacHugh, whose "Officer 666," some years ago, went through something of the experience of the present work, then wrote the full-length play, and despite the modesty of Mr. Cohan's curtain speech last night it is an open secret that the piece was later rewritten extensively by George M. It bears the Cohan stamp in a hundred places.

The new play is a refreshingly unambitious comedy of a conventional but never-fail school—a pleasantly moral little play of the kind generally called wholesome, carrying a ne'er-do-well out of the city to vanquish the machinations of a one-horse village, to turn the village into a town by directing the destiny of an oil boom and to drop the curtain on a quiet and prosperous note after a "Wallingford" last act which reveals all hands as potential millionaires. There is neither illusion nor pretense—it aims to be merely a good show, and is.

The single requirement of a play of this kind is that it shall be funny, and Mr. Cohan has seen well to this. The piece, of course, is immeasurably enriched by the presence of Mr. Cohan in the cast, for he is a facile and sure-footed player of this kind of thing, able to express a hundred nuances of meaning in a glance, a pose, an inflection. It is all there—the old Cohan walk and the Cohan crooked smile, the habit of running his hands through his hair and the trick of talking loudly without seeming to raise his voice.

He is an impecunious and sentimental lawyer in the first act—impecunious because sentimental. It is an act crowded with the minutiae of his impecuniousness—the disconnected telephone, the office luncheon, the dollarless and dolorous office assistants, the hundred and one unpaid bills. Into this set comes a successful friend to whom he must be hard and mean if he would get on in the world, and to dispatch him to Hudsonville to collect a claim of $850 against a tottering storekeeper. It is just a bit the best act of the play—filled with easy humor and George M. Cohan.

The second act, laid in the country store, reveals the soft-hearted lawyer doing his best to seem hard-hearted, and, of course, succeeding not at all in the venture. When he discovers that the storekeeper has a girl he borrows the money with which to pay her debt—followed by the rush of the real estate deal and the impending oil discovery, thoroughly conventional but bright and entertaining.

Mr. Cohan's supporting cast is composed largely of types and is put to no very difficult tests. Ralph Sipperly, remembered as the brash youth of "A Prince There Was," does good work as the office assistant, and Ruth Donnelly, from the same play, is also characteristically cast. Marion Coakley is the rather colorless heroine—Mr. Cohan's heroines are never very sturdy—and others who assist include Norval Keedwell, Leo Donnelly and Hugh Cameron.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

A. E. W. Mason, author of "At the Villa Rose," arrived yesterday from England. He will remain until after the production of his play, which Otis Skinner is to act here.

Grace George will again be seen in "The Ruined Lady" this season. She will begin a tour at the Riviera Theatre next week.

"Alias," with Aiya Delysia, will open in Hartford on Nov. 1, and will come to New York a week later.

"Three Live Ghosts" will remain three more weeks at the Greenwich Village Theatre, and will then be moved uptown.

MUSIC

Miss Mary Blue, Pianist.

Miss Mary Blue, who made her first appearance as a pianist in New York at Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon, has something of the equipment, musical and technical, that can rightfully be demanded of an artist appearing in public in this city. It may even be said that she has more of it than a good many who bespeak attention in that capacity. Her training, gained in this country, has been excellent, evidently; and there is a musical intelligence and disposition back of it which has made it worth while.

She has still artistic maturity and independence to acquire, but her performance yesterday gave reason to hope that they lie within her reach. She has abundant vigor and an intelligent application of it; her touch is sympathetic, her tone full and well modulated; she has feeling for pianistic effect, and well developed technique.

These things were shown in her playing of Busino's "Chaconne," erected upon the foundations and from the more or less scattered fragments of Bach's piece of the same name for violin; four numbers of Brahms's Op. 118, and Chopin's B-minor sonata. She played also four pieces by Rudolph Ganz, one of her teachers, Liszt's "Harmonies du Soir" and two pieces by Moszkowski.

SCARSDALE STAGES MASQUE.

A feature of the Community celebration of Columbus Day at Scarsdale last night was the presentation of a masque, "The Trees of the Blazed Trail," by Faith Van Valkenburgh Villas of Scarsdale. It was a pageant of Americanization, revealing the history and spirit of Americanism from 1492 to 1920.

The masque was given under a big tent, in the presence of more than 2,000 spectators. When the front of the tent was rolled up there was revealed a natural stage with the grass for a carpet and a background of trees, flowers and shrubbery.

Burr McIntosh took the principal part, that of the Forest Primeval. The Spirit of Scarsdale was represented by Mrs. Hugh Adair. Others in the cast were Josephine Carter Waddel as the Firefly and Franklin Henshaw as Columbus. The sword carried by Henshaw was found in the ruins of a cathedral at Santo Domingo, where the body of Columbus was buried. It was presented to its owner, Pliny W. Williamson, by an officer in the Marines, who helped save some of the church relics during an earthquake.

The celebration was held to dedicate the Scarsdale Park and Playground. The masque followed an address by the Rev. George H. Smyth of Hitchcock Memorial Church, Greenacres.

It never fails to happen

The theatre is dark—the audience is hushed and still—the atmosphere is tense, surcharged with pent-up emotion. And then—as the tremendous thing takes place, as the peak of the drama unfolds upon the screen—some one cries out in the darkened theatre, and the audience lets go, with a roar. It is the relief from emotion which can be repressed no longer—and it never fails to happen at

FOUNDATION WIDENS FIGHT ON DISEASE

CO-OPERATIVE PLAN GROWS

Its Program in 1919 Carried Out in Association with Governmental Agencies.

Plans for carrying the war on hookworm disease and yellow fever into many new parts of South America and China are outlined in the annual report of the International Health Board of the Rockefeller Foundation, which was issued yesterday. Work of the board since its establishment in 1914, and particularly in 1919, is reviewed.

"The regular co-operative plan of the board was enlarged during 1919," says the report. "The board has been more and more frequently called upon to participate in public health and related matters and to furnish information bearing on these topics. Cities, towns, States and countries, as well as public or semi-public organizations and officials, are availing themselves of the facilities which the board has to offer.

"All of the work during 1919 was conducted in close association with governmental agencies. These activities were the chief features of the program: 'Demonstrations in malaria control through anti-mosquito measures were continued in ten towns in Arkansas. A program was developed, surveys were made, and a staff was recruited for extending the Arkansas type of demonstrations in malaria control (through anti-mosquito measures) to nine additional Southern States. Further research into the problem of malaria control through anti-mosquito measures at scattered farm homes was conducted in Hinds County, Miss. Special studies were made of the top minnow as a means of preventing mosquito breeding. Investigation of the feasibility of controlling malaria through the treatment of carriers was continued, under slightly varying conditions, in Sunflower County, Miss.

"Systematic efforts to eradicate yellow fever from Guayaquil, Equador, proved successful. Outbreaks of yellow fever infection in Nicaragua, Honduras and Salvador were suppressed. The etiology of yellow fever was subjected to further scientific study. Plans were matured for a comprehensive attack on yellow fever in its remaining endemic centres.

"The campaign against tuberculosis in France was extended.

"Measures were continued for the control of hookworm disease in twelve Southern States and in sixteen foreign States or countries. Anti-hookworm measures were begun in four new fields. The State of West Virginia, the Island of Jamaica and the States of Minas Geraes and Parana in Brazil.

"Operations under a new public health program were begun in Australia.

"During 1919 the first steps were taken looking toward a comprehensive study of public health administration. Preliminary studies were made, dealing with the public health work done by the Children's Bureau, by the Bureau of the Census, and by the Bureau of Education of the Federal Government; a general study of public health administration in Massachusetts was undertaken with the assistance of the State Department of Health; a collection was made of the public health bills which have been presented to Congress, and of the reports of committee hearings and legislative debates on these bills; information on the organization of State, County, city and town health administration, and on the relationship between State and local health authorities, was gathered from the laws and regulations of the various States; data on expenditures for public health purposes by States, cities and countries were brought together; a special report on hospitals and dispensaries was prepared and published, and a report on infant welfare work in New York City was revised."

KILLS TWO INFANT GIRLS.

Michigan Father Confesses After Sinking Bodies in River.

LANSING, Mich., Oct. 12.—Earl Roop, a farmer living near here, today confessed, according to Sheriff Silsbee, that late yesterday he chloroformed his two daughters, aged 2 and 3 years, and buried their bodies in the bed of the Red Cedar River, a short distance from his home.

The two girls the Sheriff said, had been in the fields with Roop. In the evening the farmer returned to his home and assured his wife, who was in bed with her six-day-old son, that the girls were safe and would be home soon. A few hours later he started for the Sheriff's office at Mason, where he surrendered and made the confession.

Sheriff's officers went to the river, led by Roop, and found the bodies. Despondency, according to the confession, was the motive for the crime. Roop is held on a charge of murder.

Some Progressive Concern Needs This Man!

HIS qualifications have been successfully demonstrated as a Salesman, Merchandiser, Executive, Organizer and Administrator. Twenty-five years' experience has made him thoroughly familiar with all branches of the textile trade. His wide acquaintance includes foremost jobbers, cutters-up, exporters and retailers. He knows market conditions both at home and abroad, having made twenty-four trips to the markets of Europe.

He has initiative—which helped his present concern to develop in four years from a business of $2,500,000 to over $10,000,000 yearly.

He has vision—which enabled him to open up a new field for the distribution of his concern's merchandise, thereby securing over $2,500,000 in sales from this source alone.

He seeks a position where service of highest quality will mean something more than salary. Future possibilities interest him more than present compensation. He is now employed, but his connection does not provide sufficient opportunity for development. Otherwise he would not seek a new association.

Executives or principals of concerns interested in a man of this calibre may arrange for appointments by addressing

BUSINESS WORLD

Employes' Buying Counts Up.

The charge that the importance of buying by employes is not properly recognized in the average retail dry goods establishment probably would not hold if all of them had the success along that line which is enjoyed by one of the prominent stores here. Reports covering a recent month show that, despite the very liberal discount given to the workers and the fact that many of them were on vacations at the time, sales to employes ran well over the $10,000 mark.

Separate Coats Appear.

The fashion of wearing a suit coat or a sport coat with a novelty skirt seems to have made a popular appeal to women in this country just as it has in Paris. Besides the economy of the style, which enables a woman to get a combination of outargarments through the purchase of a skirt, the effect is quite pleasing. One of the most frequently seen combinations is that of a jersey coat with a plaid skirt. This mode is expected to help the sale of skirts and, very likely, the demand for separate coats for women.

Lowering the Selling Cost.

While the holding of sensational discount sales was criticised in many quarters, it is said that quite a number of merchants who were really forced to make price cuts against their wishes learned some valuable lessons concerning selling costs. In one instance related, a large store was able to reduce its operating expense just one-third by reason of the greater turn-over gained during the sale period. Costs, it is pointed out, have risen to very high levels since the stores seemed more anxious to sell one article at a high price than three or four at smaller margins. From now on, it is thought that intensive selling will supplant the method of trying to get "all the profit the traffic will bear."

Should Shop Early for Cutlery.

Early buying by consumers of pocket knives, carving and manicure sets, and other cutlery meant for Christmas gifts is advised by the American Cutlery Bureau of Information of this city. In making this suggestion, the bureau points out that, as a result of the war and the diversion to the manufacture of war materials of much of the world's cutlery-making machinery, at least a full year's production of the articles in the holiday gift category has been lost. The output of European gift cutlery was curtailed especially sharply, with the result that not only have imports of this merchandise been non-normal, but there has been a steadily growing demand for American-made articles abroad.

Interested in Bleached Goods.

With the current "protection period" on standard lines of bleached cottons due to end on Friday of this week, considerable interest is evinced in the local dry goods trade as to just what the new mill figures will show. Leading jobbing concerns have for about a month been selling one of the best-known brands of bleached muslins at 5 to 6 cents a yard less than the nominal mill price, so the reductions of the manufacturers have been discounted to a certain extent. Sharp reductions have taken place both in finished cottons and gray goods since the last mill prices were put on the bleached fabrics which, naturally, are expected to be low in the new quotations. Particular interest is added to the repricing of a leading line by the recent change in the ownership of the mills making the goods and the selling agency which distributes them.

Clothing Revisions Expected.

While many changes have occurred in clothing prices since the Fall opening was held, there still remain quite a few manufacturers, and they are established houses, who have not yet revised their quotations. Besides these who have remained steadfast on their prices, there are other concerns which have made only slight concessions. Next week, however, may see some action taken by these houses on prices. Even in the case of well and favorably known trade-marked lines, it is said that returns have been heavy and cancellations rather severe, although, of course, there are exceptions to that rule. Last month, buyers feel that many of the large houses will have clothing in the hands of dealers at more favorable prices. This may be accomplished by bringing forward the date of the usual wholesale end of the season discount sales.

Look for Woolen Reorders.

Unless a fair amount of reordering of woolens for Spring is done later on selling agents for some of the combed yarn lightweights this season will be the smallest in years. Prospects for these future orders, however, are considered in an optimistic light by reason of the ample distribution obtained. In the aggregate the orders placed for Spring goods have not been large, but at the same time many piece goods buyers have been satisfied to sample the various lines. Prices are gradually being adjusted to lower and more attractive basis, and, consequently, it is thought that reorders may help to keep mills running that would otherwise have to close down. One of the principal unsettling influences in the market at present is the possibility of further radical price cuts designed to move out the surplus of heavyweight materials.

FORM NEW BUREAU TO HANDLE ALIENS

TOO MANY COME TO CITIES

Officials Hope to Induce More Newcomers to Settle in Farming Districts.

A more systematic attempt to distribute immigration over the United States and to tell incoming aliens more of the advantages of farm and country life is to be made at the immigration station on Ellis Island by the establishment of a new bureau there, with economic and linguistic experts. The idea is to counteract the general tendency of immigrants to settle in large cities because they know nothing of other sections of the country.

Immigration Commissioner Frederick A. Wallis said P. A. Donohue, an expert from the Department of Labor, would be Director of the Division of Immigrant Distribution. Mr. Donohue has been a member of several boards of inquiry at Ellis Island, and the officials believe he gained a wide knowledge of the labor needs of all the States through his war work for the Federal Employment Bureau.

Commissioner Wallis said the new division would co-operate with authorities in every State to establish better distribution of aliens, so that both the country and the immigrants might benefit. He pointed out that it had been charged frequently that many evils arose from the congestion of immigrants in the cities, and that immigration officials seemed to care little for the immigrant's future beyond ushering him through the gates of Ellis Island.

"The most important lesson of our national census," said Commissioner Wallis, "is to be found in the trend of population from the farms to the cities. Immigration has played its part in this undesirable segregation, this building up of cities at the expense of the agricultural and other producing industries.

"Detroit has changed within ten years from the ninth to the fourth city in the United States. Akron, Ohio, has shown an increase of population something like 300 per cent. Delegations of business men have come from these two cities within the last week to Ellis Island to inquire if something cannot be done to divert immigration from their municipalities to the farm lands of Northern Michigan and Ohio.

"There is a firm demand for labor from the mining districts, too, and it is with a general purpose of changing this trend of immigration from the areas of production that we have established the Bureau of Immigrant Distribution. We have legal difficulties in the way, due to the limitations of the statutes, but under Section 30 of the General Immigration law we can do a great deal to accomplish a better allocation of the millions who are now clamoring to come to America."

Distribution of Immigrants.

Commissioner Wallis gave out yesterday some figures on immigration, which had been prepared for the annual report of the Commissioner General of Immigration, showing that during the fiscal year ended June 30 last, 41,594 alien immigrants entering the country at all ports gave Massachusetts as their future home State, 62,502 settled in California, 28,227 in Michigan, 13,212 in Connecticut, 5,606 in Minnesota, 4,324 in Florida, and 569 in Georgia. Only 178 immigrants named Arkansas as their desination, although that State needs immigrants.

The figures in advance of the annual Immigration report disprove the assertion that more dependent women and children are coming into the United States since the war than men and boys. Of the 430,001 immigrants who arrived during the fiscal year 247,625 were males and 132,376 were females. There was not a single month when the males failed to exceed the number of females arriving.

Counted by occupations, there were 662 actors, 252 architects, 1,100 electricians, 1,049 professional engineers, 161 lawyers, 146 editors, 1,154 clergymen, 2,122 teachers, 627 musicians, 230 sculptors and artists and 450 physicians. Of the skilled laborers, 5,742 were carpenters, 12,681 clerks and accountants, 3,631 dressmakers, 1,515 iron and steel workers, 3,278 machinists, 7,557 mariners, 1,009 barbers, 2,235 masons, 3,061 skilled miners, 1,013 blacksmiths, and four brewers.

FRENCH GOVERNMENT ATTACKS HIGH PRICES

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—The French Cabinet held a long meeting this morning to discuss a plan for bringing down the cost of food and at the same time preventing further depletion in the herds of live stock in the country. The measures approved were the suppression of the sale of veal, larger importation of frozen and chilled meat, improvement in the fishing industry and means of the transport of fish, prohibition of the export of fish, milk, butter, cheese and potatoes.

All attempts at restricting consumption by means of meat tickets or meatless days have been abandoned, but warnings and appeals to the public to control their appetites are to be issued.

The Government further offers collaboration with Consumers' Councils to be set up in every department for the purpose of preventing further increases in price.

While this Cabinet meeting was going on the Paris markets were recording further price increases on practically all foodstuffs. Mutton and beef went mounting and the Cabinet decision not again to inflict meatless days on the country was largely influenced by the fact that all vegetables, eggs and other substitutes have reached a price at which many people can no longer afford to buy.

WANT BIGGER TRADE FUND.

Commerce Bureau Plans Wider Commercial Attache Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Appropriations approximating $1,500,000 will be asked of Congress at the next session for the expansion of foreign trade, according to estimates under consideration today by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. The bureau's appropriation for the present year was $900,000.

Officials said that increased funds were needed because of the changing conditions of American commerce. Orders to exporters are falling off, it was pointed out, and instead of buyers coming to this country as they did in war times, it will be necessary for American merchants to sell their goods in the markets in competition with the foreign manufacturers.

Expansion of the commercial attaché service of the bureau is planned, officials said, in order that America may be fully informed regarding world market conditions.

May Mean "Easier Money."

One result of lower merchandise and commodities prices may be the bringing about of "easier money" in the near future, according to the financial man of a prominent wholesale concern here. With prices lower, he contends, less money will be required to buy a given quantity of merchandise. This will result in smaller borrowings from the banks by merchants, both individually and collectively, and both wholesale and retail. The decrease in loans, he says, will range from 25 to 33 1-3 per cent., as there is little desire on the part of business houses at the present time to borrow money for purely expansion purposes. With the supply of available money increasing and the call for it by merchants decreasing, the man referred to predicts a drop in the "best name" commercial paper from the 8 per cent. rate (on six months' loans) which has prevailed in the metropolitan district for a long time.

The Price Won't "Stay Put."

Local sellers of cotton goods, both first and second hands, are now going through the throes that marked the silk trade for so long, and which are due to the inability to make the price of the raw material "stay put." Attempts to enforce "pegging" of the staple at 40 cents a pound by the activities of night riders in the South are not expected to help any, and the job of following in the footsteps of the Japanese reelers, who, with Government aid, are valorizing raw silk, is far too big for the cotton growers without similar financial aid. That such aid will not be forthcoming is a foregone conclusion. Consequently, the price of cotton is slipping and, without a firm base on which to compute production costs, neither sellers nor buyers are anxious to trade beyond goods needed for immediate shipment and use. More than one seller would give a good deal to know just how long this situation will prevail.

Think Reductions Fictitious.

The idea is prevalent in retail circles that many of the wholesale reductions are fictitious and not designed to take care of merchandise values for any length of time. Merchants feel that, if the mills and manufacturing plants were permitted to get a fair amount of orders, they would use them to boost prices again. In support of this view attention is drawn to idle machinery, closed down, as some retailers believe, in order to prevent a surplus that would actually mean permanently lower prices. Along with this opinion of the situation there also goes the belief that accumulations of goods in wholesale hands are not so very large. In contrast to the retail view described is the experience of manufacturers who tell of the greatest difficulty in getting prices low enough to attract sales.

Finds 200-Year-Old Coin in Fish.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Oct. 12.—Frank W. Hughes of Cape May Point, three miles west of this city, while fishing in the Delaware Bay caught a weakfish that weighed nine pounds, and when he cleaned the fish he found a Spanish coin of the date of 1709. It is supposed this coin came from one of the Spanish ships of that time which was wrecked off the Delaware Cape. Hughes has been offered $25 for the coin, but refused to sell.

SPEER NOT A PROSECUTOR

But Official Will Help Local Authorities—Public Utility Inquiry by City Likely.

The investigation by Federal officials into the high prices charged for bituminous coal which resulted in the indictment of the Brooklyn Edison Company, one of its officials, an ex-official and two coal companies, leads also, it is said, into the offices of several other concerns suspected of profiteering in coal. When William McMurtrie Speer, the Special Attorney General, directing the inquiry, was asked if he intended to proceed criminally against other alleged profiteers, he displayed impatience.

"I am not a prosecuting official, but a coal investigator. No action would have been taken against the Brooklyn Edison Company but for the fact that the wrongdoing charged against the company and the other defendants stood out so prominently that I could not let it pass without feeling that I had been remiss in my duty as a sworn official of the Government."

Mr. Speer stated that if the local authorities felt disposed to look for illegal actions on the part of any individual or corporation he would be glad to assist them. Asked if he had any information indicating irregularities on the part of big consumers of soft coal, or on the part of dealers, operators or railroads, he replied that he had been hard at work delving into the situation since early last June, and that his information covered every phase of the coal business.

Contracts between the electric companies supplying electric current and big users of it provide that the price of coal above a certain amount, said to be $4 a ton, shall be divided pro rata among the consumers. This fact, it was pointed out, explains the remark of one of those indicted in connection with the Brooklyn Edison Company that the money alleged to have been wasted by the company did not come out of the company's treasury.

Information in possession of the Federal Government indicates that the high price of soft coal is mainly due to these causes:

Grafting on the part of railroad employes in charge of the distribution of coal cars, lack of any system on the part of the Government to keep track of how much coal is obtained on permits issued for priority shipments, forged permits, the surrender of coal arriving in this and other harbors to persons not entitled to it, thus depriving the rightful owners of coal already paid for; fake strikes of miners, caused so that higher prices may be demanded; the abuse of privileged consumers, who buy more coal than they need and turn it over to others who use it for speculative transactions; the privilege of big coal buyers to load tracks with cars filled with coal until the exorbitant prices demanded by them are offered.

Mayor Hylan's offer to aid Federal District Attorney Caffey in ferreting out wrongdoing in the soft coal trade may result, it was said, in an inquiry by the city into all of the public utilities. If such an inquiry comes, the information gathered by the Government in its coal inquiry will be offered to the city. It is known that the Government possesses facts indicating strange manoeuvring by some of the public utilities and dealers who have been using the coal trade to obtain rapidly a great deal of money.

CLASH OVER CONTROL OF INTRASTATE RATES

Counsel for State Commission Says That Continuance of Their Functions Is Involved.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Conflicting opinions as to the authority of the Interstate Commerce Commission to prescribe railroad rates within a State were presented to the commission today by representatives of the railroads and State commissions at the hearings on application of the roads of New York and Illinois for an order increasing intrastate fares to the level of the 20 per cent. advance granted for interstate traffic.

Spokesmen for the railroads contended that the Transportation act made the whole rate structure of the country a matter for the consideration of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and that the Federal authority no longer was confined solely to the regulation of interstate traffic. State Commissioners, however, argued that the commission was without authority to make blanket increases in the traffic charges within the boundaries of a State and that Congress did not broaden the power of the commission over intrastate regulation.

The Transportation act represents a national view of transportation problems and the power of the commission is not confined to interstate rates, Alfred P. Thom, general counsel for the Association of Railway Executives, declared in the closing argument for the roads. New provisions are contained in the law, he asserted, allowing the carriers to complain to the commission regarding State rates and to invoke its jurisdiction. New language, he said, permits the commission to remove any discrimination against the whole body of interstate commerce.

John E. Benton, general solicitor of the Association of Railway and Utilities Commissions, told the commission that the Commissioners of forty States opposed the railroads' claim "because of the momentous issue" involved.

Whether State commissions are to continue to function under State laws as they have in the past is the question to be decided, he declared. The Supreme Court has clearly established, Mr. Benton contended, that prior to the passage of the Transportation act, Congress did not intend to interfere with State-wide authority nor to establish any unified authority over State and interstate rates.

FIRST TRUST AND SAVINGS BANK, CHICAGO, TRUSTEE

The proceeds of these notes will be entirely applied to the reduction of bank loans.

Plants and Business: The Liquid Carbonic Company, organized in 1888, in Illinois, is the largest concern of its kind in the world, its business being the manufacture and sale of soda fountains, carbonic acid gas, bottling machinery, syrups, crushed fruits, extracts and flavors, ice cream freezers, automatic drink dispensing devices, etc. The main plant of the company is at Chicago, with additional plants located in the principal cities throughout the United States. It is estimated that there are in the United States over 10,000 bottling establishments and 150,000 soda fountains. A very large number of these are regular customers every month in the year and nearly all appear on the company's books from time to time. Taking into consideration the effect of national prohibition on the soft drink industry, a great impetus to the company's business is assured.

Assets and Equity: After completion of this financing the net tangible assets, as reported by certified accountants, amount to in excess of $10,300,000, or approximately 344 per cent., and the net current assets to approximately $6,800,000, or slightly over 225 per cent. of the present note issue.

Earnings: Net earnings for the past ten years (two months of the current year are estimated in this calculation) after all deductions, including depreciation and Federal taxes, have averaged about $665,000, or over two and three-fourths times the maximum interest requirements of the notes. For the past five years such average amounts to about $993,000, or over four times such interest requirements, and for the past two years about $1,525,000, or over six and one-third times the interest requirements. It is estimated the current year will show earnings of $2,250,000 before Federal taxes, which indicates that the slowing down of general industry has, in the case of The Liquid Carbonic Company, been offset by the stimulating effect afforded its business by prohibition.

Covenants: No mortgage shall be allowed to exist on the property of the company except purchase money mortgages for the acquisition of additional property. The company will at all times maintain net current assets equal to at least 200 per cent. of whatever amount of these notes is outstanding, and will also maintain current assets equal to at least 125 per cent. of all direct and contingent liabilities, including these notes. The company will create and maintain a sinking fund which will retire $250,000 of this issue per annum, beginning October 1st, 1921, either by purchase in the open market or by call. This enables the retirement of about three-fourths of the entire issue before maturity.

All legal matters connected with this issue will be subject to the approval of Messrs. Winston, Strawn & Shaw, and Messrs. Fisher, Boyden, Kales & Bell, both of Chicago. The accounts are audited regularly by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co.

We offer the above notes when, as and if issued and received by us, and subject to the approval of counsel.

Rates

FOR a quarter of a century we have specialized in the matter of rates for electricity, gas and water.

Rates, in the first place, must yield a fair return upon the value of the property; otherwise credit is impaired, extensions are impossible, and service inadequate.

The book records of public utility companies seldom show their cost or fair value, especially is this true of the older companies. Valuations made for one purpose or another, even five years ago fail to meet present day requirements in securing recognition of all lawful elements of value.

We desire to again call the attention of public utility managers and of bankers interested in the securities of public utility companies to the facilities of our Valuation and Report Department. Its personnel and its methods are adequate to the proper study and development of any electric power, light or railway, gas or water company, rate or valuation question.

PROSECUTOR QUITS WESTERN COAL CASE

TRIAL IS SET FOR NOV. 8

Attorney General Said to Have Directed That Certain Evidence Should Not Be Used.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 12.—The resignation of Dan W. Simms, Special Assistant Attorney General in the Department of Justice and in charge of the prosecution of 125 coal operators and miners indicted on March 11 for alleged violation of the Lever act, made public today, was the result of a disagreement with officials at Washington over the conduct of the case.

It is understood that Attorney General Palmer directed Mr. Simms not to use in the coming trial certain evidence the latter had planned to submit. Mr. Simms sent in his resignation almost immediately after the letter from Attorney General Palmer reached him, it is said. The larger part of the evidence submitted to the Grand Jury, now being prepared for use at the trial, which is set for Monday, Nov. 8, is documentary and was obtained from the official records and reports of the Mine Operators' Association and the United Mine Workers of America.

It was understood that this evidence was regarded by Mr. Simms as sufficient for successful prosecution of the case, regardless of what testimony might be given by witnesses. Agents of the Bureau of Investigation have been at work during the summer tabulating this documentary evidence. Mr. Simms and L. Ert Slack, former United States District Attorney, have spent much of the Summer in St. Louis, Chicago and Cleveland in an effort to obtain orders for the removal of defendant operators from Missouri, Illinois and Ohio to Indiana for the trial.

It recently was reported by Mr. Simms that little headway had been made in the removal proceedings and doubt was indicated as to whether, on that account, the case would be ready for trial Nov. 8. Recently rumors were current that officials of the Department of Justice had advised that the present case against the operators and miners be dismissed so that other steps might be taken against them. Frederick Yannuys, District Attorney, said he had received official notice of such action.

Mr. Simms was appointed to take charge of the case last December. Mr. Slack, after his resignation as United States District Attorney, also was appointed an assistant to the District Attorney to aid Mr. Simms. Mr. Simms admitted at his home at Lafayette that he had resigned, but refused any further information.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Attorney General Palmer said tonight that the resignation of Dan W. Simms had been received, but that no action had been taken. He refused to discuss the resignation and would neither affirm nor deny that differences existed as to the prosecution of the indicted coal men.

WARNS OF FALSE $20 NOTE.

The Federal Reserve Bank in this district has issued a warning against a new $20 Federal Reserve note which has been put out by counterfeiters. It is described by the Secret Service Division of the Treasury Department as follows:

"On the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, Mass., Series 1914, check letter "C"; face plate No. 32; no serial numbers; John Burke, Treasurer of the United States; Carter Glass, Secretary of the Treasury; portrait of Cleveland. The note is very poorly printed from zinc etched plates, on one piece of paper, no attempt being made to imitate the silk thread of the genuine. The workmanship on both face and back of this note is so poor that further description is unnecessary."

Two of the boys are being sent to the Engineering School of the University of Missouri, two to the Kansas State Agricultural College Engineering School and the other to the School of Commerce and Finance, Pennsylvania State College.

MORATORIUM CARRIED OUT.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 12.—All the banks in Havana paid only 10 per cent. on current deposits today, in keeping with the Presidential decree establishing a 50-day moratorium. The institutions which yesterday paid 100 per cent., fell into line today and paid only what the Presidential decree allows.

It was obvious that although the panic had subsided the seriousness of the situation was felt on all sides. Particularly important was the question of paying off labor. Some business men said that labor would not strike against an empty pocket, but others felt that the labor situation was the most serious because, as things stand now in Cuba, anything is likely to take a political aspect.

If many laborers are laid off there is likely to be trouble and the sober thinking employers in the city and the whole island know it. The railroads are reducing schedules today. Two regular freight trains on the United Railroads were cut off on Saturday last week. There was an embargo because the railroad could not handle the shipments.

J. Benitez Rodrigues, Special Commissioner of Cuba to study trade conditions here and in Europe, said yesterday that according to his advices from the Cuban Government it was expected that the situation would soon be normalized. The crisis, he said, was related to the measures adopted in this country to lower the cost of living.

"The wealth of Cuba," said Señor Benitez, "is today as great and solid as ever. Without going further, the next crop of sugar, calculated at 4,000,000 tons, or 28,000,000 sacks, represents at 10 cents a pound $896,000,000, and, given the normal figures for imports from Cuba, it is certain that the balance will be at least $250,000,000 in her favor."

HYLAN URGES PARING DOWN

Calls on Board of Education to Minimize Budget Requests.

Following up his request presented in a resolution laid before the Board of Estimate on Monday that all department heads reduce their budget requests for next year, as much as possible, Mayor Hylan sent a letter yesterday to Anning S. Prall, President of the Board of Education, urging him to "abolish all positions that are not filled, eliminate from the budget all new positions and new activities and to curtail requests for supplies and materials and equipment for 1921, according to the actual experience of 1920."

The Mayor declared in his letter that the city's taxpayers had been burdened with millions of dollars because of mandatory legislation at Albany over his protest and over which the Board of Estimate had no control. "Cheap, petty politicians," he asserted, "who are catering for people's votes by voting away the people's money and involving the city in financial difficulties are the first to charge everybody else with dishonest motives."

The Mayor added that statements that the teaching staff would not receive their salaries were untrue and "the cheapest kind of political bunk."

Mayor Hylan also wrote to Corporation Counsel John P. O'Brien, calling his attention to the delay in trying to bring to trial in the Supreme Court the ejectment suit of the city against the New York Central Railroad to recover "some eight miles of land belonging to the city along the Hudson River waterfront which the New York Central has used without compensation to the city for nearly seventy years and valued at over $100,000,000."

"I would ask," said the Mayor, "that you take this up with the proper authorities and request that a Justice be assigned who has no connection with the New York Central and press the case for immediate trial."

DANIELS COMMENDS FLEETS

Praises Atlantic and Pacific Personnel for Progress and Efficiency.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Secretary Daniels today wrote Admiral Wilson and Admiral Rodman, commanding officers of the Atlantic and Pacific fleets, respectively, commending them on the "marked progress in efficiency" of both fleets, as shown by an analysis of gunnery and engineering exercises in the last fiscal year.

Despite the high percentage of recruit personnel, the Secretary wrote, improvement in gunnery practice by the Atlantic fleet had produced a "high state of battle efficiency." The Pacific fleet, he said, showed "progressive improvement" in gunnery and engineering performance.

The Secretary also commended Rear Admiral Eberle, commanding Battleship Division 5 of the Atlantic fleet, which attained the best record in division gunnery exercises of either fleet. The division is composed of the superdreadnoughts Utah, Florida, Delaware and North Dakota.

PRESIDENT REOPENS ANTHRACITE AWARD

PRAISES THEIR COMPLIANCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—President Wilson today notified the anthracite miners that he would request a joint meeting of operators and miners to be held at Scranton, Pa., Oct. 18, for the purpose of adjusting any inequalities in the recent wage award.

The President, in his message, congratulated the miners for their promptness in complying with the award of the anthracite commission. The telegram, addressed to John Collins, Scranton; Thomas Kennedy, Hableton, Pa.; C. J. Golden, Shamokin, Pa., and Phillip Murray, International Vice President of the United Mine Workers, Indianapolis, said:

"I am in receipt of your telegram advising me that the anthracite miners have returned to work in accordance with the terms of their agreement, and asking that I call the representatives of the anthracite operators and miners into joint conference for the purpose of adjusting inequalities in the present agreement.

"I congratulate you and the miners you represent upon the prompt manner in which you have complied with the award of the anthracite coal commission. I am convinced that the future of collective bargaining depends upon the fidelity with which each side adheres to the terms of their contracts. If any inequalities exist in an agreement I can see no objections to their being corrected if both sides can agree upon a remedy.

"In compliance with your request, therefore, I will request the representatives of the anthracite operators and miners, and do hereby request them, to meet in joint conference in the city of Scranton, Pa., on Monday, Oct. 18, at 11 A. M., for the purpose of adjusting any inequalities in their present agreement as they may mutually agree should be adjusted. I am sending a copy of this telegram to the Secretary of the Joint Scale Committee of the anthracite coal field with a request that it be communicated to both operators and miners."

HAZLETON, Pa., Oct. 12.—Mine workers' leaders expressed satisfaction today with the action of President Wilson to have the recent wage agreement reopened at the request of the union men. Thomas Kennedy, President of District 7 and Chairman of the Miners' Policy Committee, said he did not expect the meeting would do much until after the regular convention of District 9, which meets next week.

The Anthracite Board of Conciliation will meet in Philadelphia on Saturday to take up questions of adjusting the hours and pay of engineers and pump runners, many of whom work twelve hours a day. It was said if matters are satisfactorily adjusted at this meeting, the convention which was tentatively called to meet in Pottsville, Pa., Oct. 25, will not be held.

SCRANTON, Pa., Oct. 12.—The General Grievance Committee of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Coal Company miners, representing 20,000 men, demanded today a return to the former rates for coal charged employes and also that any extra charge in delivery be borne by the company.

The company on Oct. 1 increased rates on coal to employes $1.25 to $1.50 a ton. A conference will be held with General Superintendent W. W. Inglis. If the demand is not granted the Grievance Committee is authorized to order the employes to strike on Friday.

FREE EXCURSION TO MEXICO.

Special to The New York Times.

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico, Oct. 12.—An excursion of El Paso business men, numbering more than one hundred, yesterday marked the first passing of an American Pullman train into Mexico since Madero's revolution. The visitors were given a warm welcome in the City of Chihuahua, school children welcoming them at the station.

The excursion was provided free to the visitors by the Mexican Government, and they were also permitted to send telegrams free.

NEW BOSTON POLICE PARADE

BOSTON, Oct. 12.—Boston's "finest" was on parade today. It was the first general review of the police force which was recruited from a nucleus of the few patrolmen who held their posts when most of their comrades went on strike a year ago. They passed before Governor Coolidge and Mayor Peters.

Few of the thousand-odd men who marched wore chevrons of police service, but many were medals for service or distinction in the World War. The public saw for the first time the riot squad, armed with shot-guns, and the machine gun squad, with weapons mounted on automobiles.

OFFER $25,000,000 ISSUE.

Anaconda Copper 7 Per Cent. Secured Bonds Are on Sale Today.

A new issue of $25,000,000 7 per cent. secured gold bonds Series "B" of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company, due Jan. 1, 1929, is being formally offered in this market today, by a syndicate of bankers of which the Guaranty Company and the National City Company are managers. The bonds close the issue of $50,000,000 by the company, a similar amount of Series "A" having been sold in January last year.

According to statements made by John D. Ryan, Chairman of the Board of the Anaconda Company, earnings for the seven years ended Dec. 31, 1919, averaged more than $24,500,000 annually, after paying interest and all taxes, but before depreciation charges had been deducted. The average yearly earnings have been equal to nearly 50 per cent. of the Series "A" and "B" bonds, which constitute the sole funded debt of this company. The bonds are secured by a pledge of stocks of constituent companies. During the last ten and one-half years the company has paid dividends aggregating more than $125,000,000.

The company agrees not to mortgage or pledge any of its fixed assets without providing prior security for the bonds and for their payment in priority to all other obligations secured by such mortgage or pledge, and will not permit constituent companies to mortgage or pledge their fixed assets unless the obligations secured thereby (other than those issued in renewal of existing obligations) are pledged under the trust agreement.

The issue is being offered at 96¼ and interest and will yield about 7⅜ per cent.

The Los Angeles banks will advance to banks in cotton growing localities, sums up to 20 cents a pound on Bima, or long staple, cotton, and 8 cents a pound on short staple stock to cover picking, ginning, baling, warehouse and insurance expense.

Bullfights Sicken Postal Delegates.

Why Change Your Banking Connection?

WITH most people a well established banking connection of long standing seems as permanent as their marriage relation.

We do not suggest a divorce in either case, but unlike wives, several bank accounts are entirely permissable, often desirable and even necessary.

Some day you will need another Banking affiliation in either Brooklyn or New York. We have been prepared for your account since 1866 and we know that you can use our services to advantage.

South Africa's Coal Resources

SOUTH Africa contains coal deposits estimated at 56,200,000,000 tons, or 97 per cent. of the estimated reserve of the entire continent of Africa. The annual production has practically doubled since 1906, and in recent years has averaged more than 9,000,000 metric tons. Ample fuel supply, of utmost value to South Africa's rapidly expanding industries, is thus assured.

To American business men interested in the development of the South African market, the National Bank of South Africa, Limited, with more than 500 branches throughout the Union, offers complete facilities for international banking.

HUGE INCREASE IN BANK LOANS

DEPOSITS MAKE BIG GAIN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—According to a report made today by John Skelton Williams, Controller of the Currency, on the condition of national banks in the last fiscal year, commercial, agricultural and industrial loans showed a huge increase. Loans made on bonds and stocks shrank $320,495,000. Paper eligible for rediscount with Federal Reserve Banks held July 1 last amounted to $4,319,997,000.

"The reports of all national banks of the United States as of June 30, 1920, as recently analyzed, show an enormous expansion in their holdings of mercantile paper and of discounts made on the strength of one or more indorsements, and in loans made upon warehouse receipts, &c., and a marked reduction in money loaned on bonds and stocks," says the statement.

"The total amount of loans and discounts outstanding June 30, 1920, was $13,611,416,000, being an increase over June 30, 1919, of $2,601,210,000. The total amount, however, of loans and discounts, exclusive of rediscounts, on June 30, 1920, was only $12,396,900,000, which was an increase over June 30, 1919, of $1,822,062,000.

"Loans made to firms, individuals, &c., on the strength of one or more names on June 30, 1920, amounted to $8,312,200,000, an increase since June 30, 1919, of $2,468,316,000.

"Loans made upon bonds and stocks on June 30, 1920, totaled $3,117,890,000, of which about one-fourth was on United States Government securities, this being a reduction in the amount of loans on all bonds and stocks for the year of $320,495,000.

"Loans made on other securities, chattels, warehouse receipts, &c., were reported June 30, 1920, at $1,782,399,000, a increase during the year of $451,040,000.

"Loans secured by real estate amounted to $229,829,000, an increase since June 30, 1919, of $45,847,000. The amount of acceptances held by the banks June 30, 1920, amounted to $160,068,000, a reduction for the year of $38,498,000.

"Between June 30, 1919, and June 30, 1920, the deposits of the national banks increased $1,230,556,000, against the increase in loans and discounts, including rediscounts, of $2,601,210,000; exclusive of rediscounts the increase was $1,822,062,000.

"While the increase in loans and discounts has been obviously due in very large measure to the unprecedently high prices which prevailed in the six-month period from July, 1919, to January, 1920, which necessarily involved a great expansion of funds and credit in clearing transactions, it should also be pointed out that this enormous increase in loans may also be accounted for, to a considerable extent, by the demands which have been made by the banks upon their customers in requiring them to carry larger deposit balances as a condition precedent to the granting of new loans, or the continuance of existing lines of discount.

"It has been estimated that probably from $500,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 of the increase in loans and discounts represented money borrowed in excess of the amount actually used by the borrowers, and which was allowed to remain in banks to increase the deposit balances of the borrowers. The total increase in deposits June 30, 1920, over June 30, 1919, was $1,230,556,000. The increase in loans and discounts, including rediscounts, for the period, therefore, exceeded the increase in deposits for the same period by $1,370,654,000.

"The records also show that the national banks of the country during the year ended June 30, 1920, made very few investments in public securities, although the amount of new securities floated in this country since the armistice has been estimated at over $4,000,000,000, exclusive of all United States Government securities.

"The holdings by national banks of bonds and securities other than United States securities on June 30, 1920, amounted to $1,802,196,000, being an increase during the year of only $35,158,000. Their holdings of State, county and other municipal bonds amounted to $338,357,000, an increase of $15,374,000.

"Railroad bonds were reported at $416,430,000, an increase during the year of only $4,059,000. Other public service corporation bonds were reported at $288,116,000, an increase of $7,269,000; other domestic bonds at $209,755,000, an increase of $2,980,000; foreign Government bonds, other than bonds of Russia and the Central Powers, at $170,527,000, a decrease of $9,280,000; Russian, German, and Austrian bonds at $9,444,000, a reduction of $4,639,000; collateral trust and other corporation notes at $145,901,000, a reduction of $2,622,000, and claims, warrants, judgments, &c., at $67,710,000, an increase of $15,376,000.

"The largest holdings of railroad bonds were in the national banks of New York City, being $81,942,000. The only other reserve and central reserve cities whose national banks held over $5,000,000 of railroad bonds were Pittsburgh, $29,495,000; Philadelphia, $15,067,000 and St. Louis $5,153,000. The only States whose country national banks held as much as $10,000,000 of railroad bonds in their investments were Pennsylvania, $87,950,000; New York $46,991,000 and New Jersey $37,033,000. The only other States whose country national banks held as much as $1,000,000 of railroad bonds were the New England States, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and California.

"The only reserve and central reserve cities whose national banks held for investment as much as $2,000,000 or more of railroad bonds were New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Boston, Albany, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Washington, Louisville, Cincinnati and San Francisco. The investments of the national banks in the Central West, the Far West and the South were made much more largely in State and municipal securities.

"On June 30, 1920, all the national banks of the country reported that the paper which they had on hand eligible for rediscount with the Federal Reserve Banks amounted to $4,319,997,000, which was an increase over June 30, 1919, of $708,811,000.

"The ten States whose country national banks reported the largest amount of eligible paper on hand on the date mentioned were Pennsylvania, $128,088,000; New York, $125,018,000; Texas, $126,818,000; Illinois, $91,154,000; Massachusetts, $81,869,000; Iowa, $80,032,000; New Jersey, $75,074,000; Oklahoma, $60,109,000; California, $58,617,000, and Virginia, $56,294,000.

"After New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, St. Louis and Pittsburgh, the ten reserve cities reporting the largest amount of eligible paper on hand were San Francisco, $79,000,000; Kansas City, Mo., $67,000,000; Cleveland, $50,000,000; Minneapolis, $39,000,000; Omaha, $50,000,000; Richmond, $35,000,000; Cincinnati, $34,000,000; Portland and Baltimore, $31,000,000 each, and Atlanta, $27,000,000."

LATIN AMERICA CELEBRATES

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 12.—Tribute to Spain, the mother country of the greater part of Latin America, was paid throughout the Spanish-speaking countries of this continent today in many celebrations in honor of the anniversary of the discovery of America, which is called "Race Day."

The celebration here consisted of a parade to the park, where oratorial exercises were held under the auspices of the Spanish Patriotic Society in the presence of Government officials and delegations from the schools and colleges. Other features were a brilliant night illumination and social and literary functions.

MOTOR INDUSTRY

PRICE reductions by leading automobile manufacturers is the natural consequence of contraction of public demand. Over-expansions by many companies; credit restrictions and general reaction in business has brought the automobile industry companies face to face with another readjustment. Primarily a new industry, among those of first rank, the motor business is feeling the effect of growing pains.

Out of the slump the stronger organizations will come forth stronger than ever. With the idea of pointing out such companies as are securely entrenched with diversified business and standard product, we have prepared a circular which thoroughly analyzes present conditions and future outlook.

It also contains a thorough treatise of all phases of the situation; important and vital statistics on the industry as a whole, and on such individual companies as—

BETWEEN YESTERDAY AND TODAY.

Articles of value lost within the past twenty-four hours or earlier may find their way back to the owners by the insertion of an advertisement in the Lost and Found columns of The New York Times.—Advt.

We Used To Ask For Paint. But Now—

DO you remember years ago when paint was just paint, and roofing was roofing? When we bought crackers out of a barrel, and raisins and prunes out of open cases on the grocery counter?

Who made or packed them, how they were made or packed, which were the best brands and why; nobody knew. Usually not even the dealer.

But today when we buy paint, or roofing, or crackers or raisins or what not, we know the brand we want and why. We ask for it by name, and usually we know as much or more about the article than the store clerk.

Through advertising, the manufacturers and packers have reached out beyond the dealer, out to us, the consumers, with the story of their products. They have educated us to see quality, they have shown us why and how their product is better, and the reasons for using more and more of it.

No matter what you make or sell advertising can help you. We should be glad to hold a preliminary conference without obligation, at your convenience.

LANDLORD IS SAFEGUARDED

Real Property Expert in New York Law School to Aid Attorney General Defend Acts.

Harold G. Aron, Professor of Real Property Law at New York Law School and a recognized authority on real estate, in a statement yesterday upheld the constitutionality of the new rent laws and declared that there was nothing in the new laws that was not absolutely consistent with every principle of Anglo-Saxon justice. The new laws, according to Professor Aron, give to the landlord every dollar his premises are worth and safeguard his collection of the rent.

Professor Aron is a member of the volunteer committee which will co-operate with Attorney General Charles D. Newton and other State and municipal authorities in defending the laws against attacks soon to be made in the higher courts by real estate organizations. Other members of the committee are William D. Guthrie, Bernard Hirshkopf and Henry Cochrane.

"The real estate interests in New York naturally desire to test the new rent laws and they have rendered a real public service in centralizing the litigation and retaining such sound, able and high minded counsel as Judge Scott and Judge Ingraham," Professor Aron said. "If the tenants will approach the matter in the same way, a great deal of unnecessary litigation will be avoided and the very important questions involved will be settled in a decent and orderly manner and to the satisfaction of all concerned.

"It has been my contention for some years that there was an adequate remedy in the courts without the new rent legislation, through the injunctive power and the control of summary proceedings by the Supreme Court, and I have just succeeded in the Forest Hills case in getting the Supreme Court to extend its jurisdiction to the landlord and tenant controversy.

Ejectment Act Open to Question.

"With the possible exception of the act limiting ejectment actions which was introduced hurriedly at the last day of the special session, I have personally no doubt as to the constitutionality of the new laws, and, therefore, cannot support the landlords' side of the controversy.

"Every law must be submitted to the constitutional test and if these laws are unconstitutional, and I am sure they are not, it would be a public misfortune for them to remain on the statute books.

"The new ejectment law goes further than I think was necessary, but in enacting it the Legislature was moved by the fact that certain short-sighted attorneys had already attempted to abuse the common law right of ejectment by harassing tenants of the poorer classes with litigation that they did not know how to meet. I am strongly of the notion that, had the real estate interests been acting under the advice of their present counsel, the new ejectment act would not have been found necessary. The question of its constitutionality will invoke some very interesting and novel questions of law of the utmost public importance and the final determination must wait for the highest court. The really important phase of the new legislation, namely that limiting summary proceedings, will not be affected by the outcome of the litigation over the new ejectment law.

Denies Laws Will Retard Building.

"It is exceedingly regrettable that the underlying plan of the new rent laws is not generally understood and that any one should be so unfair as to say that they will retard building. They have no application to new buildings, and by the act of the special session owners and landlords of new buildings have precisely the same rights so far as the collection of their rents and recovery of possession are concerned that they had prior to the passing of any of the new rent laws, including those which took effect on April 1.

"It is also true that so far as the collection of rent and recovery of possession are concerned the owners and landlords of old buildings have the same rights that they always had, with the exception of the new ejectment laws.

"It may be emphatically said that with this exception there is nothing in the new rent laws which is not absolutely consistent with every principle of Anglo-Saxon justice and our own constitutional law. No landlord ever had the right to make a tenant pay rent agreed upon under a lease which was procured by duress and which therefore was not a legal contract. No landlord ever had the right to dispossess a tenant as a means of forcing him to pay an unconscionable rent by taking advantage of conditions under which the tenant was not a free agent, as the law puts it. The new laws in effect provide only this:

"That the rights which the landlord is seeking to enforce are based upon an honest contract not procured by duress of the existing conditions. It is difficult to see upon what moral grounds a landlord can object because the law requires him to prove a fair contract and honest dealing with his tenant before the drastic remedies of the law are placed at his disposal.

Fair Rental Guaranteed.

"The new laws in effect guarantee every landlord a fair rental and the one thing that they prevent is the use of the machinery of the courts to enforce contracts which the landlord cannot prove were fairly obtained.

"The new laws further guarantee the landlord the immediate possession of his property if he has any real honest purpose in putting a tenant out; but this seems almost axiomatic, if a landlord has premises suitable for occupancy, for which his only use is to lease them to tenants, then the tenant who is in possession and is not objectionable should be permitted to stay there as long as he pays as much rental as any other tenant can be required to pay.

"Every landlord has the right under the new laws to get every dollar in rent that the premises are worth and which he can get from any tenant without taking advantage of the tenant's inability to find another home and thus accomplishing what in law amounts to fraud and duress.

"The new laws go further and safeguard the practical matter of the landlord's collection of his rent, and no tenant can take advantage of the new laws without depositing for payment to the landlord each month the rent last paid by him or agreed to be paid by him.

"It is now up to the tenants to act fairly with their landlords, and if tenants generally show a desire to get even or to attempt repeals, the new laws will almost certainly be attacked at the next session of the Legislature."

NEW CHARITY PUBLICATION.

"Better Times" Will Embrace Activities of 2,000 Organizations.

The activities of the 2,000 charitable and public welfare organizations in the city will be described to the public in the future in a monthly magazine known as Better Times, according to an announcement made yesterday by Herbert Hoover. Better Times in the past has been the official organ of the United Neighborhood Houses, but beginning with the October issue its scope will be enlarged.

"The combined budgets of the charitable and social welfare organizations in the city amount to upwards of $50,000,000 a year," Mr. Hoover said yesterday, "and they are contributed to by one-third of a million citizens, the majority of whom consider their responsibility discharged when they sign their names to a check. The activities of these organizations, however, affect every resident of the city and it should be the practice of each citizen to keep himself informed as to the efforts to improve social conditions.

"It is, so far as I know, the first publication exclusively devoted to all the social problems of one city. It will foster co-operation between the many organizations and point out social conditions which need improvement as well as serving as a medium for discussion of community problems."

Herbert Hoover, Dr. Felix Adler, Commissioner Bird S. Coler, Sam A. Lewisohn and Miss Lillian Wald are among the members of the Board of Advisers of the new publication. George G. Hecht, who served during the war with the Committee on Public Information, will be the editor.

$1,500 PIGEONS IN STEW.

Fancier Charges Show Birds Were Stolen for 30-Cent Dish.

Show pigeons valued at $1,500 each found their way into pigeon stew which was sold on the east side for 30 cents a portion, according to charges by Thomas F. Murray, a pigeon fancier of 125 East Eighty-sixth Street, who told the police yesterday that his loft had been raided several times in the last month.

Detective Harry Marks of the East Eighty-eighth Street Police Station arrested Harry Newman, 16 years old, of 304 East Seventeenth Street, and took him to the Police Headquarters "lineup" on suspicion that he had knowledge of the course followed by the pigeons on their way from loft to stew.

Murray declared that "you couldn't taste a pigeon's pedigree in a stew," and that a loss of $1,500 to him meant a gain of only 30 cents or so to the alleged thieves.

SHOPLIFTERS SENT TO JAIL.

Two Washington Girls Get 30 Days and a Third is Fined.

Two young women who admitted tearfully their guilt on charges of shoplifting were sentenced to thirty days in the Tombs by Justices Herbert, O'Keefe and Healy in Special Sessions yesterday. A third, who confessed a passive part in the offence, was fined $100, which she paid.

The prisoners said they were Julia Hart, 20, of 1,009 Virginia Avenue, Washington; Mary Hogue, 22, of 513 Third Street, N. W., Washington and Anna Peterson, 25, of the same address. They were arrested on Oct. 5 by detectives of the Stores Mutual Protective Association, who concluded from their actions that they had started out deliberately to steal and followed them from store to store. When the young women were arrested they had three pairs of silk stockings and three pieces of silk, valued at $40.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Oct. 12.—The cornerstone of the Theodore Roosevelt School was laid this afternoon by Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr. After saying that the Standard Oil Company was pleased to have the school as a neighbor for its local plant, she asked a blessing for the building, the parents of the children who will attend, the pupils themselves and the men and women who will teach. She also besought for the minds of the children the spirit of humility which denotes purity and modesty of mind.

After these exercises there was a reception in the Community House, which is connected with the fifty houses constructed by the company. A band composed of Standard Oil employes played.

COMMERCIAL SALE ON UNION SQUARE

UNIVERSITY PLACE DEAL

Observance of Columbus Day as a holiday yesterday gave a quiet tone to the realty market. Most important of the deals closed were those of commercial properties. On Union Square a good transaction was closed in the sale of the five-story business building at 37 Union Square on the west side, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth Streets. It covers a plot 30 by 150 feet and was sold by William C. Walker's Sons for the Duncan Realty Company. The buyer is an umbrella and cane firm, which will use the structure for its business headquarters. The building was erected several years ago for the retail jewelry trade at the time that Tiffany & Co. was located on Union Square, at Fifteenth Street.

University Place Sale.

The eight-story commercial building at 60 and 62 University Place, corner of Tenth Street, was sold for the R. F. S. Realty Corporation by Spear & Co. It covers a plot 55 by 100 feet and was acquired by the sellers last July.

Vesey Street Purchase.

In the downtown section the five-story loft at 58 Vesey Street was sold by William C. Walker's Sons for the St. Michael's Protestant Episcopal Church, to the White Tar Company for business occupancy. The plot is 24.11 by 151 feet between Church Street and West Broadway.

Sixth Avenue Corner Sold.

A corporation known as the 885 Sixth Avenue Corporation has been formed at Albany to take over the five-story structure at 885 Sixth Avenue, southwest corner of Fiftieth Street. The ground floor was recently used as a saloon. The plot is 235 by 61.11 feet and title stands in the name of Herman D. Kahrs. The directors of the new owning concern are P. Wollag and S. and D. Berkowitz.

Private House Buyers.

Coughlan & Clisby sold for S. J. Clarke the private dwelling at 243 West 103d Street, on a lot 17 by 100.11, to a client, for occupancy.

The four-story residence at the southwest corner of Lexington Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street, on a lot 24.4 by 59, has been sold by Maurice Wertheim for Dr. Eugene Fuller. The latter purchased the property in 1890.

Van Vliet Place sold for the Old Ladies' Home of Bergen County, New Jersey, the three-story dwelling at 64 Bank Street, on a lot 23 by 91, to a client, for occupancy.

Commercial Leases.

A. H. Matthews, with W. J. Russell, leased the six-story building at 368 Greenwich Street for the Millfield Realty Company, Frank N. Dodd, President, to the Manhattan Island Investing Corporation for a term of twenty-one years from May, 1921. The aggregate rent, with taxes, will approximate $140,000.

John J. Meehan, Inc., leased the two-story garage, on a plot 100 by 100, now being completed at the southwest corner of Sixty-fifth Street and West End Avenue for the One Eleven West End Avenue Corporation to the Academy Garage, for a term of years.

Money In Truck Farms

Having operated large farms successfully for years, and being still engaged in farming, we feel we are competent in aiding others to invest safely. There are several large plantations listed with us that will pay good dividends if intelligently operated. These are splendid lands, with plenty of labor. This section needs capital intelligently handled.

One gentleman from New York has operated 6,000 acres successfully in this section for at least eight years. Should he ever desire to sell this property, which has been intelligently and personally managed, we feel safe in saying it would double every cost.

100 FAMILIES LOSE FURNITURE IN FIRE

DENY INCENDIARY ORIGIN

Eleven firemen were overcome by smoke and nearly a hundred Bronx families who had broken up housekeeping rather than pay the exorbitant demands of their landlords, lost all their household belongings early yesterday morning in a fire which swept through the basement, ground and second floors of the seven-story brick warehouse of A. Santini, 441-445 East 149th Street, near Third Avenue. An investigation of the blaze was begun by Fire Marshal Cashman, who late in the afternoon said he had found nothing to indicate that its origin was other than accidental.

The decision of the Fire Marshal was reached in spite of rumors of incendiarism which circulated freely among the excited crowds at the fire who recalled that the warehouse owners had effected a settlement with their van drivers several days after the strike was called on Sept. 1. But members of the warehouse company denied that they had received any threats as a result of their action.

Inasmuch as the building was of fireproof construction, most of the damage was to the contents. The incorporated lessees of the building, who use the name of the owner, were at a loss to explain how the fire could have spread from the basement to the ground floor, or vice versa. The only connection between these two sections of the structure is an elevator in the rear, and they considered it significant that no traces of fire or smoke could be found in the elevator shaft unless it happened that two fires originated in the basement and on the ground floor simultaneously.

At 3:15 A. M. flames were seen issuing from the front windows of the ground floor, and an alarm was turned in by Patrolman George O'Sullivan of the Alexander Avenue Police Station. Acting Battalion Chief George Flynn was in command of the first apparatus that arrived. Particular attention was paid by the firemen to that part of the fire which spread out nearest the garage where hundreds of gallons of gasoline and lubricating oils were stored. In the meantime a third alarm was turned in.

The intense heat generated in the oven-like buildings melted the gas fixtures before they were touched by the flames, and the gas so released, together with the acrid fumes from glued and varnished furniture overcame the first firemen who tried to work their way into the interior with their hose lines. They finally succeeded in knocking a hold in the cement floor of the building and through it started to flood the basement. Fireman Patrick Moore was overcome and toppled through the opening and was rescued with difficulty from drowning.

So serious was the condition of Firemen Frank Henn of Engine Co. 60 and William Burns of Engine Co. 71 that they had to be removed to Lincoln Hospital when dragged from the building. Andrew Lundsten and Albert Gunzel, both of Engine Co. 41, were able to return to their quarters after having been overcome and revived. Seven others were overcome, but were revived sufficiently to return to their duties, including Lieutenant John Gilmartin, Firemen Schipf, John Shelton and E. F. Cruise of Engine Co. 41; Patrick Moore, Engine Co. 82; Christ Houseman, Hook and Ladder 19, and John O'Leary of Engine Co. 60.

The fire was checked after it had spread to the second floor, where much damage was caused. The police estimate of the damage was $25,000, most of which was sustained by families storing their furniture.
